The Electric Motor Grant.

The city solicitor advises the mayor that the act of 1876 requires permission to erect poles for the transmission of electricity to be "given by ordinance only"; and under this opinion the mayor will be likely to veto the resolution by which councils sought to give the permission to the parties who sought it in such a hurry, and for no sufficient reason. The folly of councils is fully rebuked by this law which lies in its way, and which was clearly enacted so that valuable franchises should not be granted without due notice to the community and proper consideration of the subject.

No law should have been required to prevent the councils making such grants precipitately. It should always be their practice to let matters that affect the public lie over from one meeting to another that the public sentiment may be heard and that objections may be considered. And in fact this is the law governing the bodies. They cannot pass resolutions off hand upon such matters, but must use the prescribed deliberation of an ordinance. In this matter of grants to electric companies, about which the act of 1876 is concerned, the prohibition of legislation save by ordinance is too clear for question, and it would nullify the action which has been had upon the application of the electric companies, without the mayor's veto which comes along to bury it out of sight.

The stockholders of the car companies who seem so unaccountably willing to trade off their property for a five per cent. mortgage upon the same property, and to other security that they will ever get their money back, will have an opportunity to make a more provident dicker for their stock, while the city is taking time to consider whether it wants any more electric poles anyway; and what it shall charge for them if it does permit their erection. Councils will surely be wise enough after a little thought to secure something for what they give, and to make sure that they will get what they bargain for. The stockholders may be so disgruntled with the street car business as to be ready to hand over the whole concern for a fair promise, and trust to the superior sagacity of the foreign experts in the car business whom they bargain with as the sole security for its redemption. But the city fathers need to be more prudent. They will understand that all the cash that the car companies will take in will come out of the pockets of the citizens and they should know that they get an assured and full value for it and not simply promises of value.

He Would Be Powerful.

Mr. Bland, who is the Democratic chief champion of free silver, does not like Secretary Windom's free bullion measure, but we suspect that if Mr. Bland were a Republican he would see as clearly as all the Republican silver men seem to be seeing, that the Windom plan is just the thing for them. Mr. Bland makes the very sound objection to the plan that it puts the whole matter of silver inflation under the control of the secretary of the treasury, through the authority he asks for to suspend the purchase of bullion in order to defeat possible combinations against the government; and also through the discretion reposed in the secretary to decide the many matters that will call for the exercise of discretion in carrying out the provisions of the law. The secretary of the treasury will be a good deal bigger man than the president, and more powerful than any Wall Street magnate, under the law Mr. Windom proposes.

Curious Accidents.

Some Which Are Shown by Records of Insurance Companies. From The New York Sun. An interesting chapter of curious accidents might be made up from the recent records of the big accident insurance companies. Here are a few odd ones picked up at random. A man named Stark, of Meade county, Ky., carried his gun carelessly while hunting. His dog ran up and wagged his tail against the trigger. The top of Stark's head was blown off. James Moran, a Cincinnati drug clerk, wound up a big automatic advertising device in front of the shop. An immense steel spring stored the motive power. Something broke. There was a prodigious whirling and then the whole machine flew into a thousand pieces. Mr. Moran lost a few fingers. A New York editor was taking a drink from the office water cooler, when a straw from a white hot boiler slipped down his throat and nearly strangled him. A New York physician, responding to an urgent call, pulled the bell at the patient's house, when the wire broke, the knob came out, and he went over backward down the stone steps, fracturing his skull. A piece of fat pork caused a series of accidents in a Crawfordville, Ind., household. It caught fire in an oven and blazed out into the room. A small boy threw on water and the hot grease was scattered over him, burning him badly. He bolted for the door and fell over his little brother, who was knocked senseless. The father hastening to the door, fell down stairs and was rendered unconscious. The fire went out. A commercial traveler in Omaha was walking from the railroad station by a hotel in a gale of wind. As he turned a corner an English sparrow struck him in the face. It bit pierced his eyeball and rained his sight.

Adventure With a Bear.

A thrilling adventure with a bear occurred at Waldorf, in Hungary. The following is the account given in the London Standard by Advocate Foster, who narrowly escaped with his life: "I went with a party of friends to the neighboring mountains to shoot roe deer. There were plenty of them, only the dogs hounded them away to the valley beyond. I consequently changed my place, and took my stand at a place which I thought to be favorable. Presently I heard the dogs coming, but fancied from their bark that they were chasing a bear. I quickly withdrew my shot cartridges and put in my rifle, but what was my surprise to see a huge bear trotting quietly toward me, apparently unalarmed. I fired and saw him within seventy paces. I fired and saw him fall, but nevertheless I thought it prudent to give him a second bullet, which likewise took effect. I afterwards proceeded to the hillock close by and called my companions, but hardly had I raised my voice ere the bear got up and made straight for me. I had just time to reload and fire when he was within five paces of me. It did not quite finish him off, for he fell upon me with a terrible howl and knocked me heavily to the ground. I managed to pass the barrels of my gun into his open jaws and fired a second shot. Luckily also, two

Life in Pison Creek.

Missionary (just arrived)—Are you the mayor of the place? Mayor Rattler—Yes, sir. "Is there a church here?" "Er—well—um—er—well, stranger, caused if you ain't got me there, a new blacksmith shop and four saloons opened up last week, and I heered some talk of a church but I'm blowed if I know whether the school went through or not. Ask Judge Pullinger—two doors above—how 'a'ys goes into every new thing."

Cleveland's Letter to Democrats.

The Young Men's Democratic club, of Canton, O., celebrated the second anniversary of President Cleveland's tariff message to Congress Thursday night, with speeches, a banquet and ball. Colonel C. S. Brice and other well known Democrats were present. Letters of regret were received from ex-President Cleveland, Governor-elect Campbell, ex-Governor Hoadly, Congressman Mills and others. President Cleveland's letter says: "If the executive you count plate and outlined in your letter are carried out all who attend them are certainly promised a rare exposition of sound doctrine from the standpoint of the tariff. It is a pity that the spirit and tone of your letter, so far as relates to the purposes of your club, are very gratifying. The constantly growing interest in your organization in the principles of the Democratic party constitute, in my opinion, the most reliable hope of their ascendancy. If at any time it should be found that you had been so far from your party did not invite to its standard the enterprising and thoughtful young men of the country, to-day such an allegation should be disputed. And these men, keenly alive to their country's welfare, quick to discover the needs of the present and ready in the freedom of untrammelled thought to follow in the path of good citizenship, can be safely trusted with political responsibilities."

James Robinson, a colored man, lately came to Wheeling, W. Va., from Elmira, N. Y.

He was steady and industrious, but he was the victim of a gang of rascals who lured him about the Astor hotel, on Wednesday night, while sleeping in the barber shop, a number of them poured alcohol over his clothes and person, and they set fire to his suit. Robinson was burned to a crisp. He lay several hours without being noticed or attended to. Three of the negroes are under arrest for the crime.

Value of Dr. Hostetter's Eucalypt.

The first account of Dr. Herbert Hostetter, administrator of the estate of Dr. D. Hostetter, who died over a year ago, was filed on Thursday. The personal estate amounted to $20,000, and the real estate in the hands of the administrator $5,740,308.40 for distribution among the widow and the three children of the deceased. The administrator has distributed $200,000 to each of the children and a large sum to Mrs. Hostetter, making a total distribution up to the present of $1,200,000. There is also a large amount of real property owned by the deceased and such will not be made except in the proceeding in partition. This amounts to several million dollars more.

Lingered Between Life and Death. Mrs. Geo. P. Smoot, a highly cultivated and estimable lady of Prescott, Ark., writes under date of April 21, 1887, that she had contracted 1887 my eyes became inflamed, and my stomach and liver almost hopelessly disordered. Nothing I ate or drank helped me. I was afflicted with diarrhoea, and for some time my life was despaired of by my family. The leading physician of the county, Dr. J. W. Smith, advised me to use Dr. Fawcett's "Respiratory Pellets." They were administered by me, and in a few days I was able to eat and sleep. I have since used them, and I have never been troubled with the ailments I was enduring. In May, 1888, I became afflicted with a severe cold, and my throat was sore. I used Dr. Fawcett's "Respiratory Pellets," and in a few days I was cured. I have since used them, and I have never been troubled with the ailments I was enduring. MADE HIS LIFE A BURDEN.

I have had scrofula until it made my life a burden. I was incessantly miserable, sick, weak, and unable to do any work. I had a sore throat, and my eyes were inflamed. I had a cough, and my chest was sore. I had a headache, and my stomach was disordered. I had a diarrhoea, and my bowels were loose. I had a fever, and my temperature was high. I had a loss of appetite, and I could not eat. I had a general debility, and I was unable to do any work. I had a despair, and I was ready to give up. I had a hope, and I was ready to try anything. I had a cure, and I was ready to believe. I had a faith, and I was ready to trust. I had a love, and I was ready to give. I had a life, and I was ready to live. I had a future, and I was ready to hope. I had a God, and I was ready to praise. I had a heaven, and I was ready to go. I had a soul, and I was ready to save. I had a name, and I was ready to bear. I had a home, and I was ready to love. I had a family, and I was ready to care. I had a world, and I was ready to see. I had a life, and I was ready to live. I had a future, and I was ready to hope. Hood's Sarsaparilla.

A complaint which affects nearly everybody, more or less. It originates in a cold, or succeeds a cold, combined with impure blood. Disagreeable flow from the nose, tickling in the throat, offensive breath, pain over and between the eyes, stinging and burning nodes in the ears, are the more common symptoms. Catarrh is cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla, which strikes directly at its cause by removing all impurities from the blood, building up the diseased tissues and giving healthy tone to the whole system. Hundreds of testimonials prove beyond question that a positive cure for catarrh is found in Hood's Sarsaparilla.

HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA.

"For 25 years I have been troubled with catarrh in the head, indigestion, and general debility. I concluded to try a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it did me so much good that I continued its use till I have taken five bottles. My health has greatly improved, and I feel like a different woman." Mrs. J. B. ADAMS, 58 Richmond Street, Newark, N. J. N. B.—If you have decided to take Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced by any other.

PHILADELPHIA, Friday, Dec. 6, 1890.

There is nothing whatever in the condition of the market to put Berlin Iron, and many Fancy Goods of plush, leather and metal at prices that do not pay, save our desire to increase sales by conformity to the great trade law of the age, the law that commands concentration of trading power for the reduction of cost. We didn't make that law. No man or men made it. It has been evolved from the increase of the precious metals, steam navigation and ocean telegraphy. We obey the law strictly. Hence this great business.
