A FORMER COLUMBIAN MAINED IN READING ON MONDAY.

His Left Leg Crushed-Conductor How ard Injured by a Switch Lever Striking His Face.

Columbia, Dec. 10.—A serious and perhaps fatal accident happened yesterday afternoon at 5:50 o'clock to Urias Marka, a brakeman on the Reading & Columbia railroad. He formerly lived in town and ran between Reading and, Columbia. He was run down by a Lebanon Valley freight engine at the Oley street bridge, Reading. The engine and three cars passed over his right leg below the knee, the left heel was badiy crashed and he was otherwise injured. He was removed to the Reading hospital, and his condition is very serious. He lives at Reading and is employed on the Schuylkill branch. Marka has a wife and two amall children.

Charles A. Howard, conductor on the Columbia & Port Deposit railroad, met with a painful secident yesterday at Perryville. He was setting a switch and the lever struck him a terrible blow in the face. He was knocked down, receiving a very painful wound alongside of the nose.

The residents of town were startled from their alumbers at 5 o'clock this morning by the prolonged whistling at the Columbia rolling mill. Whistling of this character is usually taken as a signal of fire, and as the noise continued for over an hour people arose, dressed themselves and started out to find the cause. They found that the whistle had alipped its cable and despito the efforts of the mill men the y histle kept on sounding.

A DRAMATIC ENTERTAINMENT. The Liederkranz Draw a Very Large

Audience to Their Hall. To usher in the tenth winter season in a befitting manner, the Lancaster Lieder-kranz arranged a dramatic entertainment, which was followed by a sociable on Monday evening, which was attended by far the largest assemblage that popular singing society ever drow together. As early as eight o'clock every available soat in the hall was taken, and when, twenty minutes later, Grosh's orchestra—which had been enlarged for the occasion—pealed forth the melodious strains of C. Mueller's overture, "The Contest," an audience had gathered which crowded the room to the doors. The performance of a German comedy in one act and five scenes entitled "Pride Will Have a Fall: or, The Jolly Tinker," was highly enjoyable and held the interest of the audience to the end. The various performers acted their roles quite creditably. The story of the comedy, simply told, was something like this: A young and rising merchant, Emit Miller, betrothed to Berthu (Miss Julia Peters), the daughter of a privy councillor, who are as thick as flies in Germany, on returning from a lengthy business trip finds that the lady of his To usher in the tenth winter season in a a privy councillor, who are as thick as flies in Germany, on returning from a lengthy business trip finds that the lady of his heart has put on French airs and looks down upon her ardent lover as being too lowly to woo for her hand. She declares she will marry only an earl or a duke, and no one else. Emil is almost heartbroken over this unexpected disclosure, but, after some reflection finds a way out of the difficulty. Meeting an old acquaintance, a jolly perambulating tinker whom he has befriended various times, he pours out the story of his woe to him and induces the tinker Hans (Mr. Victor Roth) to assume the guise of a ccunt, make love pours out the story of his wee to him and induces the tinker Hans (Mr. Victor Roth) to assume the guise of a ccunt, make love to his lady and win her for him. Quite naturally the uncouth tinker feels out of pisce in the elegant dreas of a count, and the ensuing scene between Bertha, her man servant Johann, (Mr. Wu. F. Freiberg), hinself and valet (Mr. Edw. Kein), who acts as his prompter, were indeed indierous. Finally the tinker, feeling quite weary, discloses to Bertha the true situation, who, however, believes him to be jesting and asks of him to take her to his castle and noble relatives. The last scene represented the camp of the tinker's chums, all queer looking knights of the road, who sang a chorus in good style. The tinker and his bride, whose eves have now opened and who rois her fooftsh step from the bottom of her heart, appears among them. Emil, the discarded lover of Bertha, new steps out from among the followers of Hans, the tinker, tells her of his little trick, convinces her that all was sham, presses his suit with more fervor than ever, and the curtain falls on a happy, loving couple receiving the congratulations of Hans and his band. The whole wound up with a tableau.

Between each seene the orchestra played of Hans and his band. The whole wound up with a tableau.

Between each scene the orchestra played a selection. The costumes in the play were appropriate, and came partly from the establishment of Mrs. Liller. After the performance, which lasted an hour and a half, the hall was eleared for the dancers, and good cheer cleared for the dancers, and good cheer reigned both up and down stairs until the wee small hours of the morning. The Liederkranz society can justly be proud of the unprecedented success achieved by this dramatic entertainment.

KINDNESS TO AN OLD NURSE.

A Januarier Lady Refuses to Prosecute

a Crazy Domestic.

A dispatch to the Press says: John A.

Weimer, the Iron manufacturer and his wife, of Lebanon, Pa., arr.ved in Pittsburg on Monday to response in a telegram from Inspector McAleese, saying that Winnie Robinson, their thieving domestic, was under arrest. Winnie, when she left there some time ago, took a number of valuable articles which fid not belong to her. Mrs. Weimer identified some of the articles in the trunk which the police found with Miss Winnie. There were also two big trunks of goods in Allegheny which the police on Monday afternoon brought over.

Mrs. Weimer, however, felt so kindly toward the colored woman that she refused to prosecute, but preferred to do something to make her more comfortable the rest of her life. She says she is satisfied that the woman's mind is affected. Mrs. Weimer was a Miss Wiley, of Lancaster, and the Robinson woman, who is well on in years, nursed her from childhood. When she married Mr. Weimer, Minnie lived with them until a short time ago, when they sent her home to Pittsburg.

Having secured a portion of the stolen valuables, Mr. and Mrs. Weimer secured the release of their old servant, who returned to her brother's house rejoicing.

Early last evening William Wiley went to the station house with a horse and buggy, which he said he had found runbuggy, which he said he had been and hord buggy, which he said hat during the afternoon they saw an old man in the buggy and he was whipping the horse. Finally he was thrown out and the animal got away from him. The team was taken to the livery stable of Edward Hartman, in the rear of the Grape hotel, where it will be kept until the owner calls for it. Mr. Hartman thinks the team belongs to a Columbia livery stable. The horse is a bay and rather small. The buggy is a good one and has been done up. The makers' names on the back are "D. Rupp & Son," Columbia, When found the blankets, whip and everything were in the buggy. The belief is that the team was hired in Columbia by some men who are on a drunk here. ning loose at Duke and North streets.

WEDDED AT A HOTEL. A Mt. Joy Couple Come to Langaster to Take Their Vows.

Mulberry street.

This afternoon a very pretty wedding took place at Hotel Lancaster. The parties who were united in the holy bonds were R. Frank Gantz and Miss Sallie Graybill of Mount Joy. The ceremony took place in the large parlors of the hotel, which had been beautifully decorated with fine plants, cut flowers and a pyramid of fruit. The officiating clergyman was Rev. Um tenhen, pastor of the Lutheran church at Mount Joy, and half-past two o'clock was the hour. After the ceremony the bride and groom with their friends sat down to an elegant dinner prepared in Mr. Snyder's best style. Those at the table, exclusive of the newly made man and wife, were Rev. Umbenhen and wife, Simon R. Snyder and wife, H. C. Shock and wife, Z. W. Keller and wife, John Breneman, Miss Minnie Frank, Harry L. Stager, Dr. S. P. Lytle, Miss Mamie Kuntz, Dr. James P. Zeigler, and John M. Snyder. After the wedding the couple went East by Day Express on a trip to Philadelphia and New York and they will visit Nlagara Falls before they return. who were united in the holy bonds were Falls before they return.

William Balz, the genial proprietor of the McGrann house on North Queen street, received a deer from a friend up the state recently. Last evening he gave a venison set-out to his friends at the hotel. A large number had been invited. The house was crowded, but there was enough for everybody. Not only was the venison done up in the best of style, but the tables were provided with all kinds of the finest edibles, and it was a royal entertainment.
