LANCASTER, PA., December 30, 1890.

New York Senatorial Stock. They tell us that the Democratic Ohio Legislature will elect Calvin S. Brice to the United States Senate, notwithstanding the strong opposition which has sprung up in the party in the state against such a choice, upon the ground that Mr. Brice is but a nominal resident of Ohio and is chiefly distinguished as a man of large wealth acquired in Wall Street speculations; a sentiment seeming to have grown up in Ohio against the continuance of the habit of regarding an Ohio man who has gone to New York after a while, and pursues his business there, as still an Ohio man; and there seems to be solid ground for the feeling that a man cannot claim two states as his residence, in one of which to place his dollars and in the other political honors.

Mr. Brice has a residence at the town of Lima, in Ohio, where we believe he repairs when he wants to vote, and which serves him as his political station. His business and social station in New York, in obedience to a law which brings millionaires and intending millionaires into that centre of financial movements. The question which is now raised in Ohio is as to whether a man may not pursue politics in Ohio and business in New York and pluck the prizes in each territory; to which the subordinate question is attached as to whether it is necessary that a United States senator shall be a millionaire. New York possesses many millionaires, who have come into it from other places to achieve fortunes and have found them there.

Many famous Ohio men have gone to New York; and the case of Mr. Brice is a very common one. All of the immigrants may not have amassed as much cash; but it is probable that New York can furnish enough millionaire sons of other states to keep their senatorial chairs properly filled, if it be that a million is a senatorial requisite.

The people who do the business of New York are nearly all born in other places. The New Yorkers who have made their millions leave it to their children to spend; and a fresh crop of hungry countrymen is constantly streaming in to hustle through the business avenues.

It may be all right, in view of this peculiar condition of the New York population, that a man may not be properly considered to have expatriated himself when he goes to that city for business purposes alone, and that it is all right to consider him as a citizen of another place. It may be that the laws of political residence should be suspended as to New York, and that living in it should be held not to count against political residence elsewhere.

Possibly Ohio should not reasonably object to her citizens going to New York for their millions, but should rather cultivate that disposition in them and reward them for their success with political preferment. In this view the election of Mr. Brice to the United States Senate may be judicious. It is Brice, plus his millions, that Ohio has, through the New York invasion; and that is more than Brice without the millions that she would have had if he had staid at home.

It seems that it may be wise in Ohio to still regard Mr. Brice as a citizen eligible to political honors; but it is not so clear that the Senate is the place where he should be stored away. It is true that it is much the present fashion to send only millionaires to the Senate; but it seems to be a practice that would be better honored in its breach than its observance. A man is very lonely in the United States Senate nowadays who is not very wealthy. It seems to be a place that has particular attraction for the men of large income. Washington has come to be a city where wealth can be displayed and expended with large returns; and the Senate is an honorable body, where the labor is light, the company good and all things harmonious with the natural aim of man to be distinguished, rich, social and calm. There is nothing to ruffle the millionaire senator but the newspapers and those he need not read. It is even said that the delights of the senatorial association are such that the jolly good fellows' politics are of no account in the private sessions; and to such an extent is the spirit of brotherly affection carried that certain Democratic senators are even reported as now begging the Iowa Democrats not to do so cruel a thing to them as to take away their Billy Allison; who is an Iowa Republican senator of such easy political virtue as to be threatened with the loss of the votes of the Republicans in the Legislature who do not like the way he sits astride the tariff fence.

Beware of Spain. Senator Call, of Florida, has contrived to galvanize the question of Cuban separation from Spain by his resolution now slumbering with the committee of foreign affairs. The news of the introduction of his measure was welcomed at Key West by a torchlight parade, and there have been many manifestations of sympathy all along the lower Atlantic and Gulf coast. Senator Call has had himself interviewed in the matter and expresses the opinion that if the Cubans should rise and proclaim a republic this government would not look on with indifference while Spain tried to rivet again her imperial chains. He refers to the similar case of the Mexican rising against Maximilian when President Johnson warned the French to leave Mexico. The important difference is that Spain only maintains her ancient dominion in Cuba, while France was trying to establish a new conquest. There can be little doubt that a revolution in Cuba that appeared to have general popular support would command so much public sympathy in America that it would be almost impossible to keep this country out of the quarrel.

Mr. Blaine may be dreaming of the annexation of Cuba as a brilliant climax of his career, which has so far in this administration been very commonplace.

If the Cubans are encouraged to revolt by agitation like that of the Florida senator we will need to hurry up building war ships or Spain will not have much to fear and the scare may be all on our side.

Spain has twelve armored and seventy-eight unarmored steam war ships, and fifteen torpedo boats. The United States has one torpedo boat. In course of construction, and when all the ships now authorized are afloat, we will have eleven armored and thirty-one unarmored vessels. The heavy Spanish iron-clads might call at New York and collect the costs of any riot provoked in Cuba by American agitators, and there would not be much brilliancy in a policy resulting in such a proceeding.

Two women knocked down a man in New York and stole ten dollars from him. The question arises whether they were highwaymen or highwaywomen. The presiding officer of a meeting is a chairman, whether male or female, but if the same rule applies to the highway robbers it is wrong to call for male washers of clothes, who would be washerwomen in spite of sex, but the dictionaries give "washer-man" and do not give highwaywoman. We can speak of a lady chairman, but it would grate against the fitness of things to refer to a lady highwayman or a female highwayman. It would perhaps be better, in these days of woman's rights, to retire from this awful puzzle and speak only of brigands, desperados and other neuter villains.

PRESIDENT HARRISON went gunning for ducks last week, and of the three killed by the party he is said to have slain one, and also to have accidentally taken the life of a pig owned by an old colored man. This touching incident needs explanation and detailed description. Did the chief executive of the United States mistake a pig for a duck, or did he imagine that a pig was a duck, or was he practicing the thicket rule of Old Virginia. Possibly his gun was accidentally discharged, or he may have slain the wild Virginia razor-neck deliberately and for sport, because of the scarcity of ducks. John Wanamaker should get his gun and join the presidential shooting party, and Mr. Ingalls should be persuaded to hunt the neighborhood, as he might easily be slain for a pig.

The cold wave is coming. Last Thursday when the strong winds began the quotation for the day on the INTELLIGENCER calendar was the following from Bryant:

I hear the howl of the wind that brings the long drear storm on its heavy wings. The howl was on hand according to our programme, and now here comes the storm.

A curious five-page pamphlet comes from Boston with the compliments of the author, David Thayer, A. M., M. D., who has made the flight of birds a life long study, "and desires to leave in younger hands the result of his investigations." This result is illustrated in a startling frontispiece representing a "erial railway." The pamphlet bears the title: "Aerial railway for the exploration of the polar zone and for air transit over water and land." The picture shows three huge kites or sails hanging, vertical and rigid, high up in the sky from three long cables that run from a vessel to a row of small balloons. Dr. Thayer does not deign to explain what these rigid sails and connecting rods are made of, but he declares that the balloons are only used to keep the kites up when the wind dies away. "If there were always a strong wind blowing, the cables would be stretched by the weight of the balloons," says the student of bird flight, and many a kite flying boy will agree with him. Sliding on the lines or rods that connect the vessel and the kites is a car in which the crew of three live and work, shifting the angle of the kites by means of ropes and so changing the direction of the motion of the strange apparatus. The car is carried up and down its aerial railroad by the pressure of the wind on another sail.

The inventor quaintly observes that if in consequence of the great violence of the sea any of the voyagers become sea sick, the car may be immediately carried to the upper part of the railroad, near the kites, where it will remain beyond the reach of the motion of the sea, and will traverse the fields of air as calmly as a balloon. The vessel is only intended to act as a drag, and in crossing land or ice a car or sledge is used. "The aerial railroad consists of an apparatus which is raised in any two forces, the first of which is the wind acting by oblique impact upon the surface of the kites, and the second the resistance of the same force by means of a drag."

This beautifully simple device was suggested by observing the flight of sea gulls in accompanying an ocean steamer during a long voyage to keep it steady. The gulls seemed to be resting on their wings, but easily glided far ahead of the swift steamer, and circled all around it. The sailing vessel operates on the same principle, but with a drag so heavy that its progress is very slow. The aerial railway raises a huge expanse of sail with just enough drag to keep it steady, and the small crew high above water. The inventor hopes to make it useful for rapid and light journeys of small parties by land or sea, and when he makes his trial trip in a howling gale due attention will be given to his obituary.

THE UNIVERSAL MALADY. Oh, for some relief effective. From this cursed gripe! Oh, for some new investive. To describe the gripe. When you've taken six or seven Quinine pills, and used every drop of More, it makes you sigh for heaven. Where there is no gripe. —From the Somerville Journal.

Almost Buried Alive. A special from Springfield, Ohio, says: Capt. Jacob Garrett, of the Lagonda avenue engine house, received a telegram last Saturday night announcing the sudden death of his father at Sandusky. The cause assigned for his death was an epileptic fit. Mr. Garrett left at once for Columbus, where the funeral was to be held, and waited the arrival of the remains. Arriving at the capital city he and other relatives received the body which had been shipped in the care of a relative. The casket was opened for a last look, when signs of life were perceived. Restorative were brought and a physician summoned, and, in a short time, the supposed-to-be dead man was able to speak. He was taken to his bed, and now lies there very weak and ill, but still alive, and his relatives are not without hope that he may yet be wrested from death's grip.

A Great Cry for More Women. Has been going up from the far west for a good many of the years. The pushing western boys are not anxious for beauty, but they need healthy wives. A great cry for health comes continually going up from thousands of women, young and old, all over the earth. A number of remedies have appeared in answer. A few have done good, and some have done better. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a cure for all those peculiar "weaknesses" and diseases of women peculiar to the sex.

Wanamaker's. PHILADELPHIA, Monday, Dec. 30, 1890. THE SECOND SERIES. BARGAINS IN FLAX.

Cumulative, an added Bargain Line daily, will be the plan for the greatest January Sale ever organized in this house.

On Saturday last, Muslin Underwear. The success was immense, and the sale only just begun. But you were not invited to an ordinary stock. The reserves have been ordered in, and we open business with full lines to-day.

This Monday Morning a great offering in Linens of many sorts. Some are European Bargains brought out for this sale, others are from our own stock. All are extraordinary Bargains. The consumer commands the market to-day.

LINENS. The special goods offered this morning were bought long before the advance in flax, and will be sold much below present values.

Table Linens. 68-inch Barnsley Bleached Table Linen. Nearly 6 months ago we purchased the entire stock of a celebrated Barnsley manufacturer, and will sell the goods this week at about half the usual retail prices. The purchase cannot be repeated, and the goods were made to sell at not less than $1.10 a yard. Our price will be 65 cents. These, like all Barnsleys, are extra heavy and improve by washing.

A finer quality, same make, 70 cents, nominal value $1.15. Much superior, same make, 80 cents, nominal value $1.24. 61-inch Cream Damask—extra heavy, in four designs: A one-inch ball. The Queen Household. The Duke of Leinster. Ivy Leaf.

Good value at 50 cents, but cut to 38 cents a yard. 67-inch extra heavy Cream Damask, 100 pieces, put at 50 cents from 75 cents.

Napkins, Towels, Etc. 500 dozen 19-inch German Cream Damask Napkins, to be compared with any other at $1.25, will be sold at 85 cents a dozen.

200 dozen 24-inch Square (almost bleached) Damask Napkins at $1.10 a dozen. We know of no Napkin at $1.50 a dozen to equal it.

500 dozen 22-inch Bleached Napkins, extra heavy, at $1.25 a dozen, have sold at $2.25. 100 dozen finest Irish 26-inch Square Napkins, Double Damask, all beautiful designs; will compare with any $9 Napkin: extant, now sold for $5 a dozen.

Huck and Damask Towels will be sold during this sale far below the usual price. 200 dozen bleached, chiefly red borders, at 80 cents a dozen.

500 dozen Crepe Bath Towels, formerly $1.50 a dozen, now $1.08 a dozen, or 9 cents each.

500 dozen Bleached Double Huck Bath Towels, well worth 18 cents, now 12 1/2 cents.

350 dozen Large Size Loom Huck Bath Towels, red borders, good value at 20 cents, now 12 1/2 cents.

200 dozen Damask Towels, knotted fringe, at $1.50 dozen. 500 dozen very fine Damask, knotted fringe, 18 1/2 x 36 1/2 inches, at 15 cents each.

500 Cream Damask Towels, extra large size, wonderfully low at 15 cents each.

250 Large Size (nearly 50 inches long) Damask Towels, knotted fringe, worth 40 cents, now 22 cents.

200 sets Fringed Tablecloths, 2 1/2 yards long. One dozen 3/4 Doilies to match, for $2 the set, lowest ever sold before, $2.50. Red and blue borders only.

50 sets extra fine fringed cloth and Doilies to match, at $3 the set.

50 sets cloth and doilies to match, at $3.35.

60 pieces 90-inch French Linen Sheeting; will be sold at 65 cents a yard. The goods appear rough at first, but after one washing present a smooth face and show the excellent quality of the flax.

90-inch Flemish Sheeting, not so slightly as the Irish, but superior quality, at 75 cents a yard.

Handkerchiefs. 350 dozen Men's Plain White Hemstitched Handkerchiefs at $2.50 a dozen.

200 dozen of the same kind,

Wanamaker's. very fine, at $3 a dozen, or 25 cents each; to be compared with any 50 cent Handkerchief.

The above two lots cannot be duplicated, and are at the same prices as sold during the Holidays.

300 dozen Ladies' Scalloped and Embroidered Handkerchiefs, slightly tumbled from Christmas showing: those that were 50 cents, now 40; those that were 75 cents, now 60.

You know our Handkerchief business. Nothing to match it in America. Stock never so attractive as this season.
