Investing Millions. It is said that within the last year and a half over one hundred millions of dollars of English capital has been in-vested in industrial enterprises in this atry; and that this was but onetenth of the amount of such capital that has gone in that time into such places entside of England, particularly in South America, Africa and Australia; and the gentleman who gives this esti-mate to the New York Sun and who claims to have started the ball in this country in the purchase of the New York breweries, and who is still busily driving at it, declares that he docs not include in this estimate the many millions that have gone in-to mining and land speculations. It sounds like a fairy tale to say that a thousand millions of British money has gone out in this way into the industries of foreign lands in so short a time. But it is no longer incredible when it is ex-plained how the wheels are greased for the movement. It seems that companies to promote the schemes sprung up in great numbers. The idea upon which they flourish is that they can procure the pro-fitable use of capital and take a care for its safety that the owners of it have neither the opportunity, talent or taste for doing. It is the speculative money of the country that they undertake to handle. What goes to them is doubtless generally what the owner thinks he can spare for a "flier" and what would go into a lottery if lotteries were lawful. The English capitalist is said, moreover, to value an investment according to its promise of dividend, with little consideration for the present cash value of the the increase ; our habit, on the contrary, being to look closely to the value of the

The companies that thus kindly offer profitable investment to the money that the owners find to burn their pockets pick out an eligible looking business that is busy enough to be worth promoting and buy it. Then they add to the price the sum they want for their profit, and divide the total into three classes of securities, bonds, preferred and common stock ; which they offer to the public. And it is stated that the common stock goes off like hot cakes, the preferred stock more slowly, while the bonds generally remain on hand, showing that the people who go into these enterprises are delighted to take the greatest amount of risk that they may indulge in the pleasing anticipation of dividing all the big remainder of profit that is to be left after the prudent bondholders get their moderate percentage. And it is not clear that they are not sagacious in so doing ; ably no very valu amount of safety in any form of the ininvestment and if their money is going it had better go where it will give them the most delightful pleasures of hope. But there is another set of companies that have an allied mission with these promoting companies. It was necessary when a property was purchased that the movement to stock it should not be a failure ; a result which could not leave the property upon the hands of the men who had bought to unload at a profit on others, but it would also throw a damper upon the whole business of provid-ing their outlets for rusting capital. Bankers were therefore paid a good commission for guaranteeing the successful sale of the bonds and shares ; and finally companies have been organized with this as their sole business. They are said to make a great deal of money out of it, the temper of the investing public being such that shares are not often left on their hands, and they get their commission without having to pay out much money themselves. It is to be said of these schemes that. while highly speculative, the investors are not fleeced by the originators in any secret fashion, as it is the habit of investors in this country to be fleeced. These English companies, to obtain any standing, have to furnish the most detailed accounts of their enterprise, its cost and commissions to the London Stock Exchange, and must have their account approved by a reliable firm of public accountants; so that the Eng-lishman who sees his money going where the woodbine twineth cannot say that he did not have every fair opportunity to hedge himself of the course that it pursued. Some of these days doubtless we will have these extraordinary facilities offered in this country to people who do not know what to do with their money; but at present this class here is hardly numerous enough to need them. But one thing might be taught our capitalists by this European demand for our industries; and that is to look with greater favor themselves upon industrial investments ; about which they are so often as timid as hares.

to lose, and in which they have to gain to kee, and in which they have to gain at least the chance of showing their power and of commanding respect and substantial recognition from a Republi-can administration ; which they are not getting now to any perceptible extent. In the coming moves on the Pennaylva-nia political cheesboard nobody stands to lose anything but the party of Quay.

What McKinley Will Do.

A Pittsburg glass man who has been testifying before the ways and means committee that his industry wants the tariff on its raw materials removed, says, when he gets back to Pittsburg, that the committee seemed to him to be intent only upon hunting opinions calling for an increased tariff on everything, and that the prospect of getting any recom-mendation of reduction from it was poor. That Pittsburg man did not see through a glass darkly. Mr. McKinley's com-mittee will not reduce the tariff to accommodate the manufacturing interest that the Republican party has taken under its wing to protect even against itself. The manufacturer who asks for tariff reduc-tion and who thinks free raw materials would help him is not to be hurt by his evidently infirm mental condition. Mr. McKinley will have the majority of the ways and means committee take good care of all the manufactures, imbecile or otherwise, and will give them all the protection that a close fence around the ountry can afford.

Jersey Murders.

Over in Jersey they seem to have a strong and strange disposition, when anyone is murdered, to charge the crime upon the nearest relation. The case of Le Coney in Camden not long ago and that of Kniffin in Trenton just now are in point. There may be a tendency in Jersey families which authorizes these arrests and charges ; but we prefer to think that it is a stupidity or malignity in the dispensers of Jersey justice that suspects without due cause. Certainly the nearest relative should have a fair inference of innocence exercised in his behalf ; until at least he gets home from the funeral. It must be very distressing to live in a community where relationship is deemed a cause of homicide. No Ice Famine Likely.

No Ice Famine Likely. From the Philadelphia Record. "There is no probability of an ice fam-ine," said Edward P. Kershow, vice presi-dent of the Knickerbocker Ice company, last night, " and there is no reason why the ice along the Kennebec river, in Maine, should not be as plentiful as previous years. The Kennebec ice is usually cut when it has attained a thickness of twelve inches, which happened last year about February 5. Why at Booth Bay there was a thickness of three inches three weeks ago."

a thickness of three inches three weeks ago." "The greater portion of the ice used here is received from the Kennebec river, Booth Bay, Bangor, Richmond and Portland, Me. Should the Delaware river freeze, which is the only obstacle we are likely to encounter in getting our supply, our ice can be forwarded by rail. I feel very con-fident in asying that the residents of Phila-delphia and neighboring vicinities will be supplied with all the ice they require for the year to come."

Asking an Impossibility.

From the Binghamton Republican, At the door-"Marier, this is the fifth time I've asked you to come and let me From the upper window—" Well, I heard you. Say it again and then sing it." "Can't, I sin't got the key."

The Independents.

That tale that the Philadelphia Record gets from Pittsburg, about the running of an Independent-Republican ticket against Delamater, should he get the nomination, is probably borrowed more from the possibilities than from present facts. It is perhaps presented now chiefly as a threat to the boss who demands Delamater. And it has enough meat about it to be worthy of his con-sideration ; and doubtless would get it if he was not a man who cared nothing for a success that was not completely his own. Quay is not in a mood, and is not likely to be, to hearken to threats from the Pittsburg quarter, and it con nequently is not profities to contemcal in this state that will exist should Delamater be nominated for governer. This will certainly indicate a split from the Republican vote, whether that shall go to an independent candidate or help to sweep the Democratic vote. The effect, of course, in either case will be to advance the prospect of Democratic up was ; and that result will be contem-plated and cheerfully accepted as a choice of evils by all the Republicans who go into the movement. It will be the alwariy in which they have nothing ater be nominated for governor
