A UNIQUE WREATH.

Widow of a Waterbury Man Per

The Widow of a Waterbury Man Per-petunces IIIs Memory. A special dispatch from Waterbury form, says: "A unique piece of handi-work has just been completed by Mrs. Syphia Laramore, of this city, who is now portary wreath in memory of her hus-band, who was dead nearly five years beend, who was dead nearly five years beend it of relies of her late husband, and of articles which were the property of the wives who preceded her. The frame of patty into which, while soft, the win-dow placed, among others, the following piece set the spectacles of her late laubanted and samall vial containing the pills which were left over from his last liness. Besides he had treasured during life, his jacknife, piece of candy, (which she says, he had left in the senal bottle containing hermit, Harry Kieffer; keeper of excheq-uer, Henry Eckman; clerk of exchequer, John S. Beck; master of records, W. J. Tomlinson; sir beraid, Gabriel Souder. Valuation Reduced

Valuation Bioduced. The city of Lancaster, through its solici-tor to-day appealed from the valuation of the old water works in Lancaster town-ship, as fixed for county purposes. The commissioners exonerated the city from the payment of the tax levied for 1889, as the property was not occupied for water works purposes. The valuation for 1890 was re-duced from $25,000 to $12,000.

The Almahouse Solicitor. By some mistake yesterday one name was left from the list of officers elected. It was that of J. W. Brown, esq., who was dented endedices elected solicitor.

left uncaten,) buttons of all kinds from his old clothing, and a small bottle containing cheese made by his first wife. "All of this collection is labeled, as for instance, "The smelling bottle used by the wife before me." Inclosed in the frame the wife before me.' Inclosed in the frame is a picture of him whose memory the wreath is supposed to perpetuste. The wreath above the portrait is composed almost entirely of flowers and leaves, jeach of these made either of some portion of his cost, waistcost trousers, neckties or sus-penders, and worked together artistically. The shirt in which he died is honored by having made from it a showy bird, too wonderful and strange for description. Just outside the wreath are placed suspender buckles and watch chains entwined with the hair of the mother of his first wife. Some of the hair from his own head has been made into tendrils and the stamens of one of the flowers is of the material that lined his coffin. On another side of the one of the howers is of the material that lined his coffin. On another side of the wreath is a bunch of raisins he bought her the winter before he died, saying: 'Now; don't cook any of these, but eat every one. Balancing the raisins are three wires, each supporting one of his teeth, and behind them is the last tooth-pick he ever used."

TWO GOOD SHEEP STORIES.

A Follow My Leader Game That Was Very Disastrous.

Very Disastrous. From the Potland Oregonian. Several "sheep men" from the Inland Empire were gathered around the stove at one of the hotels yesterday discussing the prospects for mution this winter and wool next spring and the profits to be made by driving sheep to the Willamette to winter, and at last they got to telling stories about them.

and at last they got to telling stories about sheep. One told a story which illustrated the same follow-my-leader trait in the char-scter of sheep. At a port on the Sound one evening just after the deck hands had got all the freight stowed away, there came down 500 sheepto be put on board. All hands were vexed because of the delay and trouble connected with shipping them, but finally a pen was made of hurdles between decks and a gangway rigged and in the dusk all was ready to take the sheep on board, and they were started down the gangway. The first one, as he struck the deck, saw an opening in the other side of the boat, across which a hurdle had been placed. Instead of going along to the corral prepared, this sheep made a running jump, cleared the hurdle and landed in the salt chuck alongside. Every one of the band followed suit, and in a short time 500 sheep were struggling in the water. The captain, followed suit, and in a short time 500 sheep were struggling in the water. The captain, having seen the last one go down the plank yelled out : "All right down there?" An anawer came back: "All right sir; send them down." "Send them down," roared the captain. "haven't you the sheep down there?" "Not a sheep sir," was the reply, and investigation showed that there was not a sheep on the boat. The captain could not delay any longer and so steamed away, and only a small number of the ahsep ever got ashore.
