Elevate Its Quality. We sincerely hope that the Demo-eratic Legislature of Ohio will be better inspired than to choose Mr. Brice to be senator. Doubtless he would make a better senator than many of the men who are already ensconced in the body, as little to its honor as to their own. It is saying very little for the candidacy of an aspirant to the Senate that he is as fit for the place as the average of those who fill it. That average is wretchedly low. It is only high in the cash valuations of the senator. The Senate has become the millionaire's mecca. When his money commands the way he gets there; and, if the practice continues, it may be necessary some day to require a vow of poverty as a condition of admission to the Senate; just as a vow of chastity is demanded at the nunnery. Immense wealth is not a wholesome qualifleation of the senator; and it should not be permitted to aid an ambition to reach the nation's highest council cham-

Mr. Brice's friends print a certificate from Judge Thurman testifying to his competency for the place; and we do not at pir doubt that he is competent according to the existing standard of competency. But we need another and a higher We want to go back to the time when there were no millionaires in the Senate but instead giants in intellect and athletes in debate. A monstrous pall overhangs the Senate of to-day. No lustre appears anywhere about it save the lustre of millions. The senators from Pennsylvania, who never say a word, have abundant company in their silence, which is hardly more distressing, however, than the loquacity of others who speak and say nothing. The men in the Senate who are worthy of the station they fill can be counted easily on the fingers of the hands.

We would like to see the Democratic party setting its face to the election of enators of first-rate quality; and therefore we hope that the combination of Mr. Brice's millions and second-rate quality will not be strong enough to send him to the Senate from Ohio. There are able men in that state surely, fit in every way to adorn the senatorial place and elevate the senatorial quality We trust that one such will be chosen.

Fox Hunting.

Some members of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals have recently excited flerce discussion of the ethics of fox hunting by trying without success to secure the punishment of two employes of the Radnor Hunt who had slong, pulling the car with them. killed a fox. The killing of foxes has always been regarded as a meritorious act because necessary for the protection of hen roosts, and the S. P. C. A. people only made themselves ridiculous by interfering with the hunt. Undoubtedly there is an element of cruelty in the hunting of foxes, but so there is in all kinds of hunting, and the pleasure of the hunters is not because of but in spite of this cruelty. The exhileration and excitement of the chase and the violent open air exercise are often worth more to the health of the hunters than many a roast beef or chicken dinner, and so it may be argued that the cruelty to the fox for the sake of health is quite as justifiable as the killing of chickens and cattle for food. High authorities contend that animals feel very little pain when made the prey of each other and a fox may expire with as little pain after a long chase as he would suffer if shot. Girard the lion hunter, was knocked helpless by a lion, which began to make a meal of his arm, and he always said that he felt no pain. The shock seemed to deaden feeling. However this may be, there is little use protesting against the crucky of fox hunting and there are many other fields far more worthy philanthropic attention. Lancaster county is particularly well suited to the sport, and as it is famous for its large numbers of good horses, and its hills of the northern and lower ends are fine homes for foxes, the taste for fox hunting is sure to grow. Our hunters may not wear " the red," or ride in the most approved English style like the hunt clubs of the great city suburbs, but they can show dogs, horses, and foxes of the very first quality, and they know how to hunt.

The Plan of the Speaker. The House of Representatives is running along without special rules and it is said to be the purpose of the speaker to let it run thus; thinking that as the power of interpreting parliamentary law lies in his hands, his party will fare well enough. If the Republican majority in the House was such as to enable it to formulate such rules as it wants, the situation would be different. No code of rules can be adopted that is not satisfactory to the strong Democratic minority; and no such code, in the speaker's opinion, will be any better for the Republican majority than the general parliamentary law as construed and administered by himself.

The speaker of the House is remarkable for the boldness, unserupulousness and intensity with which he devotes himself to his party, upon which stands his prospect of political fortune.

It will be a notable battle that will be wared between him and the Democratic leaders on the floor; and he will be a great gladiator if he comes safely through with his programme. What takent there may be to meet him will have abundant opportunity for exhibition. It is a situation in which the peculiar ability of Mr. Randall would particularly shine, and his illness is a great misfortime. But there is plenty of good material to take his place and to produce the new man for the hour.

Gaard the Grant.

We presume that the members of council have made up their minds favorably to electric street car propulsion, and that they will consider to night the ordinance granting the privileges asked the street car companies, with a disposition to concede all that may be waged between him and the Democratic given while duly protecting the interests of the city. As we have said here-tofore, we believe that the trial of this electric power should be made. If it is successful it will be of much benefit to the city, as it will bring into closer communication the population not only of the town but of the surrounding populous country, into many parts of which it will pay these electric railways to penetrate. How far they can take the place of steam railroads is a question to be determined in practice; and we think that those who propose to try the experiment should have the aid of the city which expects benefit from it.

But we are nevertheless strongly of the opinion that the prospective advantage of this system will not warrant the city in legislating farther into the future than it is necessary for it to do; and that while it may properly free the enterprise from taxation for a brief time, it should not fix a tax upon it now that the grantees may claim in the future cannot be exceeded, no matter how inadequate it may then be. And the law which requires that all city railways shall be run upon a continuous circuit of rails should be enforced upon those of this town in granting them the new privileges that they ask for. So also should the power be expressly reserved of revoking or modifying the grant in the interest of the public safety.

THERE is a very bold and vigorous orator among the negroes of the Carolinas. He is Dr. J. C. Price, the president of a, socalled, negro college at Salisbury, N. C., who thus rebukes those of his race who complain of their color: "Black is a favorite color. A black horse we all admire. A black silk dress is a gem. A black broadcloth suit is a daisy. Black only loses its prestige, its dignity, when applied to a human. It is not because of his color, but because of condition, that the black man is in dis favor. Whenever a black face appears it suggests a poverty stricken, an ignorant race. Change your conditions; exchange immorality for morality, ignorance for intelligence, poverty for prosperity, and the prejudice against our race will disappear like the morning dewdrop before the rising sun." He ridiculed the idea of moving the black race back to Africa and found hope in the fact that the negro is imitative. "The Indian always does the opposite from what he sees the white man do. Hence he has gone down. It is just the reverse with the negro. A white man gets a house painted white, with green blinds; the negro does the same. The white man rides in a buggy; the negro gets one too. Rome imitated Greece; England imitated Rome; America imitated England, It's a help every time, and the negro is following right in the white man's steps,"

This is a very proper spirit, and if a fair proportion of the race could be imbued with it, there might be no race question, but it may be remarked that the negro has been an imitative creature for a good many thousand years but has built up no civilization in Africa, and ruined what little was given him when left to himself in Hayti. He had the advantage of contact with ancient Egypt in the full development of the earliest civilizations, but his imitative qualities did not enable him to follow Egyptian civilization.

A PNEUMATIC street rallway is being built in Washington. To all appearances it is a cable grip railway, but in the cable conduit there are a series of cylinders coupled together which are made to re volve by compressed air motors placed be neath the track at intervals of fifteen hundred feet. An arm projecting from the car carries friction wheels which press on these revolving cylinders and are drawn

SAFETY FOR CIRCULATION. Proposed Provision For National Banks-A Bill Drawn By John

Jay Knox, The following bill, drawn by John Jay Knox, president of the National bank of Republic, New York, is to be submitted to Congress :

A Bill to Provide for a Permanent National Circulation: Be it enacted, &c., That from and after the passage of this act every national bank now organized, or which shall hereafter be organized, shall be authorized to issue circulating notes as now provided by law in amounts not exceeding 75 per cent. of the capital stock of each bank.

See 2. That not less than 75 per cent of

SEC. 2. That not less than 70 per cent, of the circulating notes authorized to be is-sued by each bank under this act shall be secured by United States bonds, at the rate of 100 per cent, upon the par value of such bonds, provided that at the option of each bank one-half of such circulation of 70 per cent, may be secured by a deposit with the treasurer of the United States, under such regulations as may be prescribed by the secretary of the treasury, of gold coin and bullion or silver bullion at the current market price of such bullion at the time of deposit. Whenever the mar-ket or eash value of bullion and of United States bonds deposited with the treasurer is reduced below the amount of circulation issued for the same, the controller of the currency may demand and receive the amount of such depreciation in other bul-lion or in gold or sliver coin, to be deposit-ed with the treasurer, as long as such depression shall continue; or the amount of the circulating notes of such bank may be reduced by charging the excess of circulation to the redemption fund provided by section 3 of the act of June 20, 1874. SEC. 3. That an account to be designated as "the national bank safety fami" is hereby authorized to be opened on the hereby authorized to be opened on the books of the treasurer of the United States by reducing the amount of United States notes now outstanding $1,500,000, and by reducing the national bank redemption fund $1,500,000, and crediting the amount of $1,000,000 to the account of the said "national bank safety fund." To this fund shall be added the duty of one-half of 1 per cent, each half year upon the average amount of national bank notes in circula-tion, as provided in section 5.214 of the re-vised statutes of the United States.

Sic. 4. That if any national bank after the passage of this act shall become insolvent, and any of the circulating notes of such bank shall remain unpaid after the assets and the individual liability of the shareholders of such insolvent bank shall have been exhausted, such circulating notes shall be redormed and cancelled and destroyed as now provided by law, and the amount of such notes shall from time to time be charged to the "national bank safety fund," as provided in this act.

Mr. Knox was called upon by a New York Times reporter, to whom he gave the following extended explanation of his proposed amendment of the banking laws:

"The measure is a practical combination of the safety fund and free banking provisions as they have existed in the laws of this as they have existed in the laws of this state, and which were admirable provisions in their way; but the safety fund in the state of New York was a failure, and for this reason: It provided for a tax upon the capital for the purpose of securing not only the circulation to the transfer.

not only the circulation but all of the debts of the bank,
"Soon after the system was established there came a financial crisis, and there were, for those days, a large number of failures. They did not involve more than

000, and of this circulation only $15,000,000 was that of insolvent banks—less than 44 per cent. The amount collected from the assets of the 150 banks that have falled has been more than $16,000,000, including $0,000,000 of individual liability. So that the amount collected from the assets has been more than enough to pay for all the insolvent bank circulation if it had been entirely unsecured. We propose to leave only 30 per cent. Of the circulation unsecured—an amount which, during the last twenty—live years, would have been only $1,500,000, or $180,000 a year, when the circulation was an average of $000,000,000.

"With an estimate of $180,000 circulation to pay this year, we propose to create a sinking fund by a tax of 1 per cent. upon the circulation. During last year this would have realized $1,400,000. If the circulation increases to $200,000,000, the tax will amount to $2,000,000; if the circulation should increase to $300,000,000, we would have a tax of $3,000,000 collected with which to pay $180,000, provided the banks will be as well managed in the future as they have been in the past.

"This 30 per cent. of circulation is left unsecured, upon the principle that more than three-fourths of the banks are managed with skill and with sagacity by men whose financial reputations are much dearer to them than is mere money making. There is only a small portion of the banks, as may be seen by the controller's report, that fail, and it is only these that it is necessary to secure absolutely. If the circulation should increase to $300,000,000,000 within two or three years—then, in the year 1207, when the 4 per cents, become eirculation should increase to $300,000,000 within two or three years—then, in the year 1907, when the 4 per cents, become due and payable, we would have more than $40,000,000 in the safety fund, less the amount used to fedeem the insolvent notes unprovided for by the security—which amount, if the banks are as well managed in the future as in the past, would not be over $4,000,000. So that after 1907 the safety fund would be so large that the circulation could continue to be issued from that time forward secured entirely by a gold and silver deposit.

"I have no intention of antagonizing the proposition of the secretary of the treasury.
I believe the passage of a bill like the one presented would be of assistance to the secretary in his plans and would relieve the treasury from the necessity of purchasing such large amounts of silver builton, and would give the banks all over the country the opportunity to help bear the burden, with the prospects of only a reasonable profit in the operation."

How to Select a Wife.

Good health, good morals, good sense and good temper are the four essentials for a good wire. These are the indispensables. After them come the minor advantages of good looks, accomplishments, family position, etc. With the first four, married life will be comfortable and happy. Lacking either, it will be in more or less degree a failure. Upon good health depends largely good temper and good looks, and to some extent good sonse also, as the best mind must be affected more or less by the weaknesses and whims attendant on frail health. THAT TERRIBLE " GRIPPE."

What It Really is Explained by One of

What It Really is Explained by One of on the Best Informed Men in America.

The president of one of the leading New York Medical colleges, in conversation with the writer, the other evening, said:

"La Grippe, the Russian influenza, that has caused so much talk, is a more severe affliction than people usually think. It arises mysteriously and appears to have its origin in the atmosphere. The last time it visited America was in 1800, and it came then, as now, from Asia. The name 'influenza' comes from the suggestion that the malady was due to the 'influences' of the heavenly bodies, but more modern science has discovered that is due to the changes in the electrical conditions. Whatever may be the cause, it is a strong congestion of the blood vessels and mucons membrane, principally in the head and throat, and nothing but strong stimulants will check ...is congestion and keep the blood actively circulating. For this purpose I know of nothing better than pure whiskey, and I believe Putty's Pure Mait to be the best and purest whiskey known in the world.

Formerly this influenza was said to precede to be the best and purest whiskey known in the world.

Formerly this influenza was said to precede an epidemic of the plague, and the person who was about to be taken with the latter, had as a preliminary a fit of succeing. Now it precedes a worse epidemic than the plague, namely, the terrible piccuronia. Its beginning is slight but its ending is often terrible. Pains in the limbs, back, chest and head; a sore throat and lacte of appetite; copious discharges of the nose; these are some of the symptoms of this dread disease. Upon the slightest approach of any of these symptoms, a nervous feeling, or instinde, resort should be had to a pare whiskey, which is the only certain means of breaking up this epidemic before it secures a hold upon the system, for check it when it has become started. Care should be taken, however, to secure only that which is pure, as the article above named certainly is."

HOODSSARSAPARILLA.

Rheumatism

Is believed to be caused by excess of factle acid in the blood, owing to the failure of the kidneys and liver to properly remove it. The sold attacks the fibrous tissues, particularly in the joints and causes the local manifestations of the dis ase, pains and nelies in the back and shoulders and in the joints at the knees, ankles, hips and wrists. Thousands of people have found in Hood's Sarsaparilla a positive and permanent cure for rheumatism. This medicine, by its purifying and vitalizing action, neutralizes the acidity of the blood, and also builds up and strengthens the whole body,

Wonderful Properties "I have taken Hood's Sarsaparilla and found it excellent for rheumatism and dyspepsia. I suffered for many long years, but my complete recovery is due to Hood's Sarsaparilla. I re-commend it to every one because of its won-derful properties as a blood medicine," John KULLIMAN, 85 Chatham Street, Cleveland, Ohlo,

Inflammatory Rhenmatism " I just want people to know that we think Hood's Sarsaparilla the best remedy for inflan matory rheumatism in the world. My husband had this terrible affection for two years and Hood's Sarsapariila helped him more than any thing else, I am always glad to tell what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done." Mrs. F. ATKINSON
