PARMER STEBBINS FLOPS.
Yes, squire, I bought this farms of shine
Jest after the war was done,
And, though I say it, a purtler farm
The sun don't shine upon.
I paid three thousand dollars down,
An' I've worked both night and day,
An' figgered an' twisted the best I knew
Ter make the blamed thing pay.

My wise and I get up at five
An' work till nine at night;
We've done the best thing we knew how
Tee make things come out right.
But things somehow have backward slid
Instid of goth' abead,
An' I'll be dashed if I don't wish
Sometimes that I was dead.

They say our butter is the best
That's made in this 'ere town.
But all we git at Jones' store
Is thirteen cents a poun'.
Our wool is down ter twenty-two,
Our beef is four joents, dressed;
An' eggs so cheap they hardly pay
For the wear and tear of the nest.

The speakers in the last campat's
All promised better times,
An' said if the peaky Dimererats won
Our dollars would turn to dimes.
They said Pertection would fix us right;
But experience teaches me
That the more Pertection we farmers git
The wasser off we be,

I've allers been a Republican,
An' voted the ticket straight,
An' I blowed for Benjamin Harrison
In eighteen eighty-eight.
Times can't be wuss if we have a change,
So now what I'm goin' ter do
Is ter vote for Grover Cleveland
In eighteen ninety-two.

Egyptian Costumes in Boston.

The very latest fad which has traveled bout the country in the wake of the celeprated English egyptologist has struck Goston with full force. As explained by he Advertiser, this is the adoption, by adles of fashion, of Egyptian costumes at heir afternoon teas. These costumes are nodelled after the manner of the times of he Pharachs. One of them, worn by beautiful brunette, is described s of soft, brown silk, with long lowing sleeves, and yoke embroidered in silver. The petticoat is of stripped Syrian like, in rose color and silver, with a wide ash of the same colors. The slashings of he outer gown show linings of Egyptian ed. Over the shoulders hangs a brown pauze voil, embroidered in silver. Slippers red. Over the shoulders hangs a brown gauze veil, embroidered in silver. Slippers in rose velvet, embroidered in silver and seed pearls, flesh-colored stockings, a brow pendant of dull gold, and an antique necklace of cornelian and silver, complete the costume. These gowns will no doubt be all the rage before the season is over."

His Intentions Were Not Bad. rom the New York Tribune. "Sir," she said, leaning across the car, with chock aflame and an angry sparkle in her eyes. "you are impertinent." "Ma'am?"

"Ma'am?"
"You are no gentleman, sir."
"I don't understand, ma'am."
"Yes, you do. I've ridden nine blocks, and every time I look your way, you smirk and smile. You better believe I'm not that kind," she added, taking in the rest of the car.

"Madame," he said sadly. "I wish to heaven I could help smiling at you. I have St. Vitus' dance. If it annoys you," he added apologetically, "I'll smile out of the window."

Hateful Blood Relations. Hateful kindred are those sprung from the Hateful kindred are those sprung from the parent slem—malaria. They are chills and fever, bilious remittent fever, dumb ague and ague cake. These foes to bodily peace are all blood relations, as there is no doubt that these endemic complaints are produced by contamination of the blood by the miamata existent in both air and water in malarious regions. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters expels from the blood the virus with which miasma infects, but it does more than this, it neutralizes the atmospheric and acqueous poison and its germs before they have permanently fructified in the system, and thus effectually protects against it the fierce inroads of this diabolic brotherhood of diseases. Thus it is not only a remedy, but also a preventive, prompt in relieving, lasting in affect, perfectly efficient. For the cure of the inflammation and con-For the cure of the inflammation and congestion called "a cold in the head" there is more potency in Ely's Cream Baim than in anything else it is possible to prescribe. This preparation has for years past been making a brilliant success as a remedy for cold in the head, catarrh and hay fever. Used in the initial stages of these complaints Cream Baim prevents any serious development of the symptoms, while almost numberless cases are on record of radical cures of chronic catarrh, after all other modes of treatment have failed.
