Judging from some of the expressions of some school directors, the circular letter suggesting the lifting of a collection in the public schools of town for the Higbee monument will not be acted upon with much favor. Three members spoke unfavorably against the matter, and it is more than probable that no collection will be taken in the schools of this place.

THAT THIEVING FISH.

John Jones, of Johnstown, Partially Corroborates the Story.

The story about the fish that carried a small fortune in its interior has caused great interest in Johnstown.

Mr. John J. Jones boarded at No. 123 Somerset street at the time of the May flood. The house was washed away and Jones lost everything. He floated on the debris about a half mile and against a hill, to which he climbed over the roofs of wrecked houses and was saved. He is a member of the firm of Lloyd & Jones, contracting carpenters. On Wednesday he said he had heard about the fish story. As to whether the money contents of the fish's belly belonged to him he was not prepared to say.

"Of course if they send them to me I will accept them," he remarked.

The dispatch said there were $10,000 worth of bonds in the fish's stomach, Mr. Lloyd said he had no such amount of valuable paper. His pocketbook, which was lost, contained a note for $600, some greenbacks and some gold and silver coin. It also contained a slip of paper bearing his name. He could not say whether there was a bank certificate in the book such as was found in the fish or not. Mr. Jones has not much faith in the story, but says that he would not like to say that he does not believe it.

Experience With a Maniac.

From the Providence Journal.

Last week Richard J. Barker, a prominent business man of Fall River, who resides in Tiverton, hired in an intelligence office in Boston a woman named Belle McGregor for general housework. She seemed particularly interested in religious matters, but proved a faithful servant till Friday. Suddenly while Mrs. Barker was alone with her, Belle shouted: "I have had a vision and I am ordered to offer up a sacrifice." She started into the kitchen and began to sharpen a carving-knife. Mrs. Barker, who is a slight woman, realized that she had a maniac to deal with, and throwing up her hands as Belle had done, said: "I, too, have had a vision. There is a letter in the postoffice for you. You must go for it." Belle dropped the knife, rushed out of the door and Mrs. Barker slipped the bolt into place. The servant heard it and realized that she was outwitted. Her ravings attracted the attention of the neighbors, and she was finally placed under restraint. Later she was allowed to leave for Boston. After her departure a pile of inflammable material, well saturated with oil, was found in a shed. An attempt had been made to light it, but without success.

A New Composite Metal.

Schmiedbarenguss is the inconveniently long name given to a new composite metal, for which almost marvelous properties is claimed. It is composed of pig iron, wrought iron, copper and alum in bronze alloy and a flux. It is produced direct from the cupola without annealing, yet it can be welded and hammered like iron or steel and can be manufactured, it is claimed, at a less cost than malleable iron or steel castings.

At a test made January 20, in Louisville, it is said to have endured a tensile strain of 168,000 pounds per square inch, that being the limit of that machine. The new composition is the discovery of Mr. Hazfelt, of Newport, Ky., who has made many experiments in producing aluminum.

An Actor Stranded.

The mayor disposed of two drunks and a number of lodgers this morning. All were discharged. The only case of interest was M. B. Biolette, of Goshen, Indiana. He was a member of the Turner Dramatic company that stranded in Connecticut a few weeks ago. The young actor was without means and is getting to his home as best he can. He was furnished with some means by parties who became interested in him to take him part way home.

Death of Ex-Assessor Sharp.

Jacob S. Sharp, of Ephrata, died on Wednesday evening, after an illness of six weeks, aged 75 years. Mr. Sharp was an active party worker of the Whig and Republican parties in his early life. He served as assessor of Ephrata township from 1877 to 1887, when he declined a re-election. He leaves a widow and one son, Samuel L. Sharp. The funeral will take place on Sunday afternoon, and interment made in the Cloister cemetery at Ephrata.

Set Himself on Fire.

At Fairmount, Ind., Jacob Adell, 55 years old, who had a wife and three children, left Norton's store, where he was employed, on Wednesday morning and went home. Taking a can of coal oil, he went to an outhouse, poured the oil over his head, and set himself on fire. He burned to death in a few minutes. Adell's self-immolation is supposed to be the result of insanity caused by religious fanaticism. A month ago he left the Quaker church to become a disciple of Frank Norton, whose creed teaches self-sacrifice.

Blaine Against Reed.

In an election contest in the Illinois House of Representatives a few years ago the same question arose in regard to a quorum as at Washington on Wednesday. The Democrats refused to vote and broke the quorum. The Republican speaker telegraphed to Mr. Blaine, at that time speaker, whether he could not arbitrarily declare a quorum present when the fact was apparent by count. Mr. Blaine replied in the negative, and defined parliamentary law upon the subject. Illinois Republicans acquiesced in Mr. Blaine's decision, but it lost them the fight.

He Has a Big Majority.

John L. Geyer, of Paulding, O., was on Wednesday elected representative for the Paulding-Defiance district to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Frank W. Knapp (Dem.). The Republicans opposed Mr. Geyer, using as a campaign argument the fact that he was an ardent supporter of Mr. Brice in his canvass for senatorship. Mr. Geyer's majority was 1,500, about 500 more than the district has ever before given.

DEAR SIR: Last spring I purchased one of your electric belts, as it was highly recommended for dyspepsia and indigestion. I find great relief from wearing it. Respectfully Yours,
J. M. RUTHERFORD.
