ADDRESS, THE INTELLIGENCER,

LANCASTER, PA., February 4, 1890.

The Tracy Horror. The great family affliction that has fallen upon the secretaries of the state and navy recall to the Philadelphia Inquirer the disasters which fell upon the holders of these places under Tyler's administration when the exploding gun of the Princeton bore them to death; and the likeness is not lessened by the fact that these are striking character-People who believe in luck may find food in these disasters to show that Providence frowns upon this administration ; of which, however, there is better and sufficient evidence in its shortcomings, and folk will need to be prone to superstition who will see in the afflictions of families the visiting of wrath upon political administrations.

Certainly there will be no lack of sympathy to these secretaries in their afflic-tions, prompted by political antagonism. The terrible trouble brought to the home of Secretary Tracy, especially, invites for him the tears of the people. It is one which might visit any household afflicted with stupid servants. Its particular instruction is in the light which it throws upon this condition of our domestic life. With every care, no precaution can be taken against the stupidity of those employed to care for the house. The entire dieaster of this conflagration seems to have come from the fanning of the fiame from the door left open by the servant; and after such performance it is safe to conclude that the fire was also originated by his carelessness.

Can nothing be done to prevent such horrors? Will it not be practicable to have the fire department of a city assume as part of its duty the visitation of the houses in each district to instruct the occupants as to what they should do in case of fire? There is a fire drill in all well regulated companies; why no introduce one in each household?

Roads and Ruts. The argument of Mr. Eby before the agricultural society that the width of running gear of vehicles should be made to vary in order that ruts might not be worn in the roads will strike many as resembling the suggestion that a man walk on the heels of his shoes so as to mave the soles. The trouble is that our country roads are so poor in the first place that drivers naturally follow the track of other vehicles as the only portion of the road bed that presents a smooth surface, and so gradually a pair of ruts are formed. When they get too deep for use some driver strikes out boldly over the wilderness of stones and mud, and the next man who comes along carefully follows in his track. If the gauge of vehicles should be chauged we would certainly have fewer ruts but

re misery with the existing low

standard of country roads. If all or even a large majority of our roads were properly macadamized, it might be worth while to seriously cousider the suggestion of a varied gauge, which might make their preservation less expensive and remove the rut difficulty, but most of the county roads are mere fenced routes of travel of the most primitive construction, and depend upon the wear of vehicles and horses to keep them in passable condition in good weather. It may be a pity that the well-made roads have to suffer under the uniform gauge of vehicles, but more's the pity that the travelling publie have to suffer by roads that will not admit of any other treatment. The system of varied gauge is said to have been tried in England and parts of Europe and found to work very well, but in those old countries they have roads that would astonish our township supervisors. Let us first get roads worth caring for, and when bad roads are the rare exception it will be time to consider the alteration of vehicles so that the very important rut difficulty may Reed's Mistake.

The statement sent forth from the Democratic side of Congress does not eave a leg for the Republican side to stand upon ; in its tone, argument and facts it is so convincing as to make it certain that the country will be satisfied by it of the impregnable strength of the position taken by the Democratic congressmen. In this no mistake has been made from start to finish. A wonderful self-control has been shown by the Democratic representatives under the intense provocation of the highhanded rulings of the speaker, who stood before them in his actual puny strength, but in whom they respected the state whose unworthy officer he was. We who have boiled with indignation over the outrages of this satrap, are able to find credit to the resolution in the action of the representatives who were the actual recipients of his blows and who could readily have followed their feelings and torn him from his seat, had it been wise to do so.

It was wiser to submit and to refer the ssue to the country. And so, also, it was wiser to remain in their places in the House and to continue the struggle, though under constant defeat, to main-tain the rules, order and precedents of the body. The continual iteration of his wrong-doing to which the Republican speaker is thus forced, covers him and his party with opprobrium, and will certainly result to their great damage and discredit.

The presentation of the Democratic position throws all the light upon the issue which the public need to judge it. And they will not care to seek arther after they find that the precedents of a hundred years have been spat upon by this speaker, first and alone of all speakers. They will understand the ree of that exposition of the law which mys that an uninterrupted practice for ny years suffices of itself to make a law; and they will easily see that the practice of the House, which has always sevalled, is one so well established that a cannot be torn down by the action of the afty-first speaker of the House. It is not for him clearly to overrule the manimous construction of his fifty pre-decessors. With this statement the dis-pusion may begin and conclude, so far as the public mind is concerned. It will ask no more light as to the impro-priety of Speaker Reed's ruling than to know that it seeks to upset that of the fifty speakers that have gone before him.

A FEW DAYS ago in the German Reich-

The Lancaster dealers have done nothing mon sense will work them up to a better understanding of the demand for lower as yet in the way of purchasing the new erop. They allege that it is not a good taxes. The discussion of Mr. Landis high tariff resolutions by the agri-cultural society on Monday brought forward one citizen who very plainly decrop to buy at the prices asked and will not touch it until the farmers come down in their prices. Country packers have been buying a little of the crop, but they clared and proved that he was not crazy on the subject of protection. A man may be a protectionist without go-

New York Tobacco Market.

From the U.S. Tobacco Journal. Activity in our market seems to have revived at last. Operations in seed leaf became quite animated the past week, and transactions in Wisconsin leaf were almost ing to the violent extremes demanded the rabid high tariff men, but transactions in Wisconsin leaf were almost booming. About 1,200 cases of Wisconsin changed hands at prices ranging from 10; to 12 cents. Housatonic Havana seed moved also into considerable quantities, one Water street house alone selling 250 cases at 25 cents running. And the Onondaga came also in for a good share. As we pointed out last week, the '88 seed leaf is destined to become more desirable the further the year advances, because the defects of the '89 crops are becoming too apparent to whet the appetite of the market for the new leaf. This is the reason why the tobacco fields which usually swarm with buyers this time are almost deserted this year.

The Sumatra is, of course, in demand, following of party leadership, and so emphatically assured of the awful peril of lowering the tariff in the least, that it takes time and patience to bring him to a fair contemplation of the case. The farmer is of all men the one whose interests are most seriously affected by the The Sumatra is, of course, in demand.

because it is recognized as the principal wrapper leaf. But there is so much of it at present in stock that the holders are enat present in stock that the holders are en-gaged in a break-neck race to dispose of it. One importer is reported to have closed a contract with a buyer to sell him a third of every lot of his entire importations at an advance of $11 a bale; another one to have for including in the census statistics advance of $11 a bale; another one to have offered a manufacturer a quantity of bales the pick of his importations at 5 cents a pound advance on the actual cost. True, much of the Sumatra which is in the market does give anything but satisfaction. Its burning is not perfect and its assortment as kaleidescopic as any seed leaf could be. Complaints are heard frequently that bales can be ransacked from top to bottom and not another hand found in it like the sample submitted for examination. If Sumatra will ever play out in this country it will not be due to any tariff rate, but to the reckless carelessness with which the to a political discussion. Self interest and the logic of events will in the end to the reckless carelessness with which the assorting is done now. If the carelessness notice that American clams are being to the reckless carelessness with which the assorting is done now. If the carelessness be intentional, in order to pass the tobacco under the lower rate, it utlerly misses its purpose. For it would appear that the heavier the tobacco the higher rises the percentage of the higher rate of duty. From 3½ per cent, two years ago, when the equal assortment of the Sumatra was still its chief recommendation, it has risen to 42½ per cent. in the first three months of the present fiscal year, when tobaccos were imported which are offered for disposal now at but a margin profit. But there is no cause whatsoever for any undue haste in disposing of the Sumatra at any price. The cigar industry of the country is in an exceedingly prosperous condition. The output last year touched nearly the four thousand million line. And there were hundreds of million cigars more manufactured on which no picures of London have taken to praising To-DAY one hundred years ago the first session of the United States supreme court was opened in New York by Chief Justice Bancon, Me., is a smart city. It furnishes its own electric lights and finds that they cost only 13 cents per night each. Lancaster has not made great effort to ascertain whether a plant established by the city would save a considerable sum in the lighting expense. Taxpayers want the most for their money and are getting tired waiting for the city fathers to give some assurance cigars more manufactured on which no tax was returned, as the smokers consumed in factories by workingmen and that the power running to waste at the oldconsumed in factories by workingmen and employers. The increase last year was ninety-five millions and the prospects are that this year's increase will be still larger, Consequently more and more leaf is needed every year and as the domestic fields cannot supply it, the foreign markets have to do it. Particularly during the current year, as the domestic leaf coming in the market the present year will not be of much account.

much account Havana sales are going on steadily. The new crops at Havana promise but scanty returns owing to the continuous drought. Consequently the holders of both '88 and '89 stock are in the happiest mood. Prices instead of being lowered are rising grad

From the Tobacco Leaf. The market for the past week was not a brilliant one. All in all, the sales did not amount to over 1,000 case. There has been quite an inquiry for Pennsylvania seed leaf, fillers and binders, and a little of officer said: "The school teachers are a dissatisfied crowd. Put them through seed leaf, fillers and binders, and a latter of this tobacco sold at fair prices. In the country it is about the same as in our mar-ket, very quiet. We think that business will pick up shortly.

Scrofula in Children.

"In the early part of 1887 serofula appeared on the head of my little grandchild, then only 18 months old. Shortly after breaking out it spread rapidly all over her body. The scabs on the sores would peal off on the slightest touch, and the odor that would arise would make the atmosphere of the room sickening and unbearable. The disease next attacked the eyes and we feared she would lose her sight. Eminent physicians of the country were consulted, but could do nothing to relieve the little innocent, and gave it as their opinion, that the case was hopeless and impossible to save the child's eyesight. It was then that we decided to try Swift's Specific (S. S. S.) That medicine at once made a speedy and complete cure. For more than a year past she has been as healthy as any child in the land,"
