Mr. Nye's Experience With Stage Supes"-Dignity Often Conceals a Good Deal-Cost of a Ball in New York-Biography of Wild Bill.

a self made young man, who is not to appear before any audience in a high top rubber boots which he has il day to wash buggles in, and light stlights amid thenders of applause, done of these gentlemen the other. He brought nine others to help I think that the most of them sleep at stage night. They were playing sleege" behind the drop curtain we came.

"YOU HAVE WENT BACK ON ME."

I do not know what they were there for. We did not want them. We did not need them. They joyfully stood around in the way and spat down a large knothole near the curtain rope, although it was a hopeless task, for it dried up before the next one could get ready, and so they are no nearer to floating the stage away than when they first began. I asked the head man if he would get me a glass of water. He said he had to remain in order to attend to the curtain. As we do not use any curtain or scenery or properties, except a glass of water and a stick of hearhound candy, I thought he could be spared, but he did not seem to think so, and I got a small boy to bring me the water while the head boy, now stage Napoleon, went to reading once more the thritting tale, "Married in Haste, to Repent at Chicago; or, How I Won Her," by A. Oner, Esq.

He was the tiredest young man for one who was just in the fluff and bloom and heyday of life that I ever saw. He had a retreating chin. Otherwise he would not have liad the strength of purpose to spit over it, this forchead also asked to be excused and went back into his hair in search of Ideas and one thing and another, I judge.

One of his front teeth had disappeared. YOU MAVE WENT BACK ON ME. "

scatted and went back into his hair in search of ideas and one thing and another, I judge.

One of his front teeth had disappeared. Doubtless kicked out by an infuriated horse while the two werel sleeping in the same stall, the horse being tied, however, and unable to get away, using his only means of discouraging a bed fellow with whom he could certainly have mothing in common. The loss of this tooth gave him greater scope as an expectorator, and would have assisted his smile if he had ever smiled, but he never smiled. It is very rare that such a man laughs. His dignity and a set of liverwurst thought works in a poor state of preservation, are all he has. Life is a sericus matter with an ass. I do not say this in order to be suphonious, but from the rich and overflowing treasures of a ripe experience. (I thought I would say that before some one else did it for me.)

The ass is always sad and dignified. He

The ass is always sad and dignified. He is profound and mournful. If you desire to see solemuity, dignity and mental obliquity, go to the penitentiary and to the corral when the deep voiced ass with the low, retreating forehead trills his tremendous notes in the hush of the evening.

My dear friend, Mr. Shew, once said

My dear friend, Mr. Shaw, once said that dignity was no more the sign of wisdom than the paper collar was the sign of a shirt, and I can put my hand on my heart and say he was right.

I once knew a man who had a good deal of dignity and a beard that he could part in the middle like a skye terrier's. With these race gives of mind and heart heart. I once knew a man who had a good deal of dignity and a beard that he could part in the middle like a skye terrier's. With these rare gifts of mind and heart he married a sweet young girl and got a reading notice of forty lines in exchange for a wedge of bride cake, which was afterward used in thin strips for double leading the editorials. He advanced rapidly, until he had obtained the confidence of all who knew him. Cashing this confidence one Saturday evening, he parted with his parted whiskers, his flowing hair became fled, and in the merning, as a dignified man who had never been known to smile, wrote his name on the register at Montreal. "Many Citizens," "Veritas," "Pro Bono Publico," "Vox Populi," "Tax Payer," a wet eyed grass widow and two little dignified clubs with pompadour hair wept and would not be comforted. He never came back.

and would not be comforted. He never came back.

En route I have received several letters and queries from readers and correspondents, which I will take the liberty of answering here if I hear no objection prior to the publication of this.

"Retire Pennypacker," Toledo, Ohio, asks what the cost of a ball would be if properly given to one's friends in New York.

A recent estimate is as follows as nearly as I can recollect: Rent of ball room Orchids, palms, etc Floral favors for ladies Jeweled favors for German say at $10

apiece, say 20,000
(When your company comprises other nationalities than the German, you might make it for less.)

Dinner at $10 per plate. 10,000

Music B. and S. for following morning $50,000

Of course slight reductions could be made on this, say if you use field grasses with powdered alum on them and pressed autumn leaves instead of the orchids, you can save from $7,000 to $8,000. Or if you want to trim your hall with festoons of seed corn and dried apples instead of palms, you may cut down this bill $3,000 or 3,500.

Again, you might cheapen the floral

Again, you might cheapen the floral offerings to the ladies by using paper flowers, or postponing the ball until golden rod gets within the reach of all. A dinner rod gets within the reach of all. A dinner in New York may also be arranged much cheaper than $10 a plate, by having several bright conversationalists at each end of the table and skipping the horse doovers, arriving at once at the removes of say a broiled pig's feet on toast, a bottle of Ann Hizer Sec and ice cream. A bright conversationalist or a good humorist who is willing to give a fair equivalent for his food can save you at such a meal hundreds of dollars. You might have to take the conversationalist and humorist out into the wood shed and give them something conversationalist and humorist out into the wood shed and give them something extra before the meal, in order to keep them up to where they would be willing to sparkle and be the life of the party, but even then it would be a great saving to you. I once went to a delightful dinner of this kind, but was not told to sparkle, so of this kind, but was not told to sparkle, so talked entirely with a young lady near me all the evening regarding Mr. Russell and the Delsarte theory.

The host was so mad that he did not pass me the pie at all, and ate my dried prunes with the rich umbrella juice that went with them, while I was looking the other way. When he gave me my hat and overcoat at last, in the hall, he hissed in my ear:

overcoat at last, in the hall, he hissed in my ear:

"You have went back on me and have came to my house for the last time. If you had of done the square thing you would have had as good a time as you was ever at, and got your little old $5 besides, but now you can be excussed. I didn't ast you come here and stuff yourself full of victuals and then talk art to a mere stripling of a girl. If you want to get ahead you want to do it some other way."

I teld him that when I found out where to get a head I would be sure to give him the address. I then selected a good pair of overshoes, teck what I thought to be a fresh cigar from the stand and went away. It did not smell so fresh, however, after I lighted it as I thought it would.

He was a coarse, vulgar man, with a great deal of money, but too mean to give his wife money-enough to build her dress sufficiently high to pretect her chest from the biting blast. Little do we know, Mrs. Pennypucker, of the suffering there is from exposure even in the homes of wealth.

"Bright Alfarata," San José, Cal., asks what to do for an ingrowing nail and how to make sait rising bread. I do not know what to do. I never had eyether.

"Theological Student."—No, you are wrong about that. At Guttenberg, on the 4th, the fifth race of six and one half furlongs was won by Fordham, Blue Rock second, Carnegie third; time, 1121?.

"Sangamon," Eric, Pa., asks how the passenger steamships of the United States compare with those of other countries, England especially. The United States does not or do not compare well with England in the matter of passenger steamers. Aside from the Hoboken ferry and a naphtha is unch our keels are not found plowing the waters very much. Buffalo Bill goes over to London with his Indians and scouting clothes in a foreign steamship, and then foreign attentions in a foreign steamships bring them home, also the fleecy William and his band. Then he goes to Paris in a foreign steamships. Several hundred thousand Americana go over there

THE KILLING OF WILD BILL.

When we get the world's fair it will be the same way. The American is not an aquatic bird, but rather a hewer of wood and vender of town lots. He riseth up in the morning while it is yet night, and saith unto himself. I will buy a farm in Anoka county, and I will lay it out in lots, and I will also lay out the gentle ass that buyeth the same, and I will make him for to bray before the evening has come, for behold he shall call for a room at an inn and shall record his name thereat, and the name wherewithal he shall record himself will be Dennis.

"Birdie," South Brooklyn, N. Y., asks. Who was Wild Bill, and how did he die? Wild Bill was a gentleman named Hickock, and he did not reck aught for any one. It was said that he had a most peculiar thorax. All his ribs and breast bones were so closely united that his heart and side lights were encased in a bony panoply almost imperious to a bullet, and he was frequently spoken of as the man with the hunting case [thorax and Bessemer works. He could drink, or he could let it alone, so he divided up the time in such a way that he would let at lalone, mostly while engaged in slumber.

He was shot in the back of the head by a brave but crossed eyed man at Deadwood in the spring of '76, as he sat at a card table in one of the social centres of that city, playing progressive enchre. Wild Bill wore profuse hair, in which at card table in one of the social centres of that city, playing progressive cuchre. Wild Bill wore profuse hair, in which at early spring time the swallows were wont to build their nests and rear their young. The murderer of Wild Bill, after his crime, came at once on horseback from Deadwood to my town, where through strong political influence I got an introduction to him. He talked pleasantly and even kindly to me, although he had denied himself to all other reporters and held even kindly to me, although he had denied himself to all other reporters and held himself aloof from the general public. Helwas rather plain in appearance, and yet I can truthfully say that among all the murderers I have known, and who have written in my butograph album, he have written in my autograph album, he was the most unostentatious and least puffed up by his sudden elevation.— He told me that he only regretted that he had not fitted himself for the position to which he found himself so stradenly elevated.

On the day of his execution he ate a hearty breakfast of ham and eggs, angel food, pork sausage, blane mange, calves' liver, custard pie, mackerel, snow pudding and codfish balls. He then wrote in a steady hand the following sentiment in an album for a beautiful young lady who tried to get him pardoned:

"DEAR ONE—I hope you will try to live a blameless life, so that you can meet me iu heaven.

"Robert."

" ROBERT." All his advice to every one was good. He even told the clergyman who went with him to the scattold that he must not be weary in well doing, but strive on through life and he would surely obtain his reward.

He was dressed in his best suit of clothes.

As he went to the scaffold, he carried a bouquet of choice orchids, given him by the Young Ladies' Band of Crime Pre-when asked if he had anything to say before his death he only smiled sweetly, laid his chew of tobacco on the cross piece of the scaffold and said: "Ladies and gentleman, I'm going home to die no more. I cannot make a speech, but I am resolved, from this out to lead a biameless life. I hope you will all do the same, so that you can meet me in that bright land to which I am now going to." At this point the great weight of his overshoes broke his neck, and he passed on to receive his reward. Skepical people were afraid that he had been a little over sanguine regarding the future state, but hoped that he had, as a old distiller expressed it, become one as a old distiller expressed it, become one

It must be good, for everybody recommends t. We mean Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup. Price 25

"Yes: I shall break my engagement," she said, folding her arms and looking deflant; "It is really too much trouble to couverse with him; he's as deaf as a post, and talks like he had a mouthful of mush. Besides the way he hawks and spits is disgusting." "Don't break the engagement for that; tell him to take Dr. Sage's Catarrh Romedy. It will cure him completely." "Well, I'll tell him. I do hade to break it of, for in all other respects he's quite too charming." Of course it cared his catarrh.

In 1875 a sore appeared on my nose, and grew rapidly. As my father had cancer, and my husband died of it, I became alarmed and consulted my physician. His treatment did no good, and the sore grew larger and worse in every way, until I was persuaded to take S. S. S., and a few bottles cured me. This was after all the doctors and other medicines had failed. I have had no roturn of the cancer.
