THE HISTORIC BARBER. ONE VERY ORIGINAL NOTES ON THE GREAT MEN HE HAS SHAVED."

Edgar William Nye Receives the Gushaz Confidences-Commodore Vanderbilt and a Few Others as Shavees.

It was in Chicago, the booming eity along whose busy strotes 1 had so often wandered and on the banks of whose brawling river I had so oft been " bridged " that I met a barber who made a specialty of shaving eminent men. I noticed that my presence did not seem to unnerve him af had supposed it would, and that he held my nows a good deal higher while shaving my upper lip than I had ever held it, even in the bright and haleyon days when, as a little boy, I wore a vest made over from other garments of my father's handed down from the dim and musty past.

His hair had formerly been a bright red.

ear or down the back of your neck. "One time, however, the commodore swore at me quite a good deal, I remem-ber. I had shaved him a little too close, and so his face bled a little. Of course I had to rub alum on it to stop the bleeding, and it made the old man quite smart for one of his time of life. He got kind of hot and told me I could go away and never come back any more. I told him I had a wife and family and I would like very much to stay.

wife and family and I would like very much to stay. "'No,' said he, 'you cannot shave '' for a biled owl," or " for sour apples," or "the ace of spades," ' or some such thing he said, I know. 'But,' said he, 'I do not want to see your family suffer. You have out my face so often now, you—mullet head, and then puckered it up with alum, that my mouth stavs open all the time and prety soon I will have to put a gore into the back of my neck. Go away from my house and never, never return if you please. As I said, I do not want your family to suffer, and so I will give you a letter to a business man I know down town, who will see that you get a job at his place. Now go away."

Barrett.' "He would say, 'Sirrah, I know thee not!' He would then fold his arms, and, with growing wonder and delight, look in the mirror at the only man for whom he ever showed a genuine respect and esteem which nothing could shake. Then he would take off his coat and fold his arms again and throw back his head and try to look like the man who acts as chief train dispatcher for the solar system. dispatcher for the solar system.
