Preaching. Our contemporary, the New Era, after week or two of meditation and consultion, has reached the conclusion that this its duty "to open its columns to take part in the differences," which it says have risen in St. James' parish on account of the selection by a part of the vestry of a pastor whom the mass of the congregation believe is unfitted for the post; as stated some time ago by a communication published in this journal. The New Era thinks that we did very wrong to allow this statement to appear in our columns about "the internal affairs of church government " which" should be held as ered in the estimation of the press as the affairs of the family, into whose dissensions the public journal has no shadow of right to interfere, unless those

It seems to us that this is strange doctrine to be proclaimed by a journal that proceeds promptly to discuss the trouble in St. James' parish and take sides therein. We believe that there has been no breach of the peace or judicial inquiry in this case, such as would warrant our contemporary's treatment of it, upon its own doctrine of the proprieties of the dissensions culminate in a public breach of the peace or become a matter of judicial

The simple fact seems to be that there are but nine of the twelve members of the St. James vestry in office; and that five of this nine selected a rector who is not acceptable to the congregation, although in but a few weeks the annual election would have made the vestry full. If these five vestrymen took advantage of the temporary power, which their minority of the full board had to impose an undesired rector upon the congregation, it would seem to be a matter of such public interest as to legitimately attract attention and comment in the press; and the New Era has our permission to wade into the controversies if it desires to do so, even though it manages, as usual, to steer clear of facts and fairness in its statements and

It is a matter chiefly for the voters of St. James' church. If they like the conduct of their five vestrymen and choose to take and keep the rector that has been put upon them, no one else need be much bothered about it. The youth of the young man, we quite agree with our contemporary, is not a crime nor a necessary disparagement. The important defect charged against him is not lack of years but of ideas; and that this is a true bill we can clearly testify, upon the evidence of his trial sermon.

Sunday Cars and Collections.

The Duke street cars were so crowded on Sunday that several men were noticed standing, a phenomenon heretofore only observable on circus or football days. This is a startling evidence of the success of Sunday cars and also proves the eagerness of many people to get to church. No doubt the running of the cars has caused an increased attendance at the churches, but whether the car fare is deducted from the money that would go to church collections remains to be seen. As it is a sad fact that this money is usually in coins of the smallest value the subtraction of the car fare may be considered impossible and the conclusion is forced upon us that many of the street car patrons cheerfully pay six times as much for their religion. Pastors should not fail to make use of this interesting fact to persuade their congregations to at least double their contributions. It is evidently a simple matter of demand and supply and the worshippers, as a rule go to church as cheaply and comfortably as possible, while the clergy, operating on the theory that Christianity is without money and without price, can only appeal to the liberality of their congregations and accept the weekly pyramid of pennics. The result is sad, but not so hard a reflection upon human nature as may at first appear. Many of the good people who give pennies no doubt do so because they fear that people near them, who can not afford to give dimes, would feel badly if their pennies were without company in the basket. This is at least a more pleasant theory than the preposterous one that in a community where abject poverty is almost unknown, abject ideas of liberality prevail. The street car experience proves that religious tendencies are not discouraged by cost; but it will not do to attempt to take up collections with a nickel and slot machine, and there is no safe way of increasing church income except by stimulating interest in church affairs.

The Astor Heir.

The great fortune of the late John Jacob Astor will probably go in a mass to his son, William Waldorf Astor, who is chiefly distinguished as the author of a novel that is poor both in literary quality and in moral tone. President Arthur made him minister to Italy, and. as wealth seems to be the great condition for success in positions of that sort, he made himself reasonably successful. It may be hoped that the responsibility of his great wealth will discourage Mr. Astor from further literary venture, and as he has the reputation of working with nervous energy and determination at anything he undertakes it is possible that under him the Astor money may be more daringly used for the pushing of great enterprises. With all his caution the great original John Jacob had an adventurous spirit which encouraged him to rivalry with the great Hudson Bay Fur company, and led him to buy government bonds during the war of 1812. The Astors of dams across the narrow valleys, wherever a water course was found, and by drawing the water miles away into the desert land. So great were the beneficent results that an immense amount of capital has been drawn into these enterises; and dam building seemed to be the solution of the question as to how to give value to this territory.

But if these costly dams cannot be made to stand, evidently there is an end to the fertility of the Arizona desert lands. If they come to be deemed very precarious property, a great check will be given to their construction. So that the evidence of insecurity that is afforded by the breaking of this dam, that is said to have in a moment destroyed what had cost $800,000 to erect, promises a severe blow to Arizona's progress. It is said, as usual, that the dam was badly made; but this is so common an indictment of these engineering works as to have come to be considered a dam habit; and probably will continue to be, until some means is found of holding up to the criminal law those who build them.

St. MATTHIAS' Day. He's breaking ice. The superstitious iceman is as gloomy as the day.

THE Wool Reporter announces by request that at Roubait, France, Americans vho are obliged to do business through the United States consul are embarrassed by the fact that that official cannot speak a word of English. This is the improved diplomatic service of Secretary Blaine.

ONE of those mysterious English syndicates that are prowling around buying up great industries nowadays is said to be negotiating for the purchase of all the cotton duck mills of the country. Wool Reporter says that options have been given for the mills which will expire in the middle of March.

"The intent of the purchasers is, it is said, to concentrate the business, and utilize the several mills each for a different and separate branch of manufacturing, no small task. There are 11 or more duck factories, in which some $4,500,000 is invested, and a still greater sum must be expended by the syndicate to obtain the monopoly."

This syndicate scheme, unlike many of the British kind, aims at monopoly and needs watching.

THESE English syndicates are rather large affairs. One is said to have bought the Chicago stock yards for thirty millions. A stockholder confirms the story but thinks the price must be twenty millions. A difference of ten millions does not seem to matter much

THE Canadian Parliament has been considering and has just rejected a measure of very grave importance, the bill to abolish the official use of the French language in Canada. Premier Sir John Macdonald made a vehement and very eloquent speech in the Commons chamber on Thursday, urging the members to dispose of this question "now and forever so that no such complications as are at present threatening to sap the life-blood of our young country would again arise to thwart the country's growth and progress," This is certainly strong language, but seems warranted by the excitement of the French Canadians over the proposed change. Sir John con-tinuing begged his hearers "to think of the awful consequences should this cry which raises race against race, creed against creed, and language against language be continued. It will ruin the prosperity of our country. It will ruin our credit at home and abroad. It will destroy our credit in England." And all of this, he said, was to be risked because a few fanatics are opposed to carrying out the solemn covenant with the French, who are now a proud and happy portion of the Dominion. This speech was enthusiastically received and an amendment declaring for the French language was adopted by the votes of threefourths of the House

THE Philadelphia Ledger calls attention to the fact that the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad company has been heating its cars by steam for some time, and has added electric lighting. "Au extra car or consort is attached to the tender of the engine. This contains a marine botler to furnish steam for heating and also for running an engine and dynamo to supply the electric lights. A storage battery is also provided to be used in case of accident to the dynamo or engine, but thus far the battery has not been required. The boiler of the consort is so constructed that if overturned the water would be turned into the fire to extinguish it, and, besides that, the car is lined with steel inside and outside." It is natural that a road in that cold country should solve the heating problem long be fore the railroads of this section have made a single stagger at it, but the Pennsylvania railroad can no longer pretend to lead all others if it does not quickly undertake to furnish better light, and safe and comfortable heating. The cost of the improved system seems to be the real block to progress in this respect and many of our roads are badly in need of healthy competition to drive them to consider the comfort and safety of their patrons.

Suicide of a Bank Cashier.

Wm. Rushton, until very recently as-stant cashier of the Farmers and Mehanics' National bank, shot himself dead in Philadelphia on Saturday night in the house of Neilie Beach, at 405 North Twelfth street. He had previously shown symptoms of insanity. The inmates of the house told the police that the man, who was a perfect stranger to them, came there about nown or Saturday A. A. Saturday and Saturday A. about noon on Saturday. A young girl named Nettie Thorn engaged the man in conversation. He went upstairs, saying he was going to remain all night. He said that all he wanted was plenty of sleep. He retired, and was called at 629, and then went saleen again. At 10.30 Nette There went asleep again. At 10:30 Nettie Thorn heard several shots fired in rapid succes-cession. Thinking that the man had killed heard several shots fired in rapid succescession. Thinking that the man had killed ran out and around to the station house.

Two of the bullets he had fired ploughed up the wall in two places. But forty-five cents was found in his pockets. His watch, though a handsome one, had no chain attached to it. The man had apparently been drinking, as two bottles partly filled with whisky were found in the room.

A few weeks ago Rushton resigned his position as assistant cashier of the Farmers and Mechanics' bank, with which institution he had been connected for some time. Rumors were rife at the time that there was something behind the retirement, but inquiries at the bank elicited the information that the retirement was a voluntary one.

one,
It has since been learned that the business under Mr. Rushton's direct supervision was not receiving the attention necessary, and the bank officials, it was said, learning of Mr. Rushton's convivial habits, hinted that his resignation would be accepted. Rushton would say nothing be accepted. Rushton would say nothing as to his leaving the bank's service, nor would the officials further than to say that the resignation was induced by continued ill-health.

It is thought that this severance of his the thought that this severance of his connection with the bank has preyed upon his mind, and in his weakened physical condition the continued use of alcoholic stimulants had unsettled his mind. He was a very popular man, with hosts of friends in business and social circles,

The Arizona Dams.

The barsting of the great dam in Arizona is a great calamity for that arid country, which of late years has been made to blossom as a rose in many places through the irrigation that was made possible by the erection of great.

Christianize the Negro.

Cardinal Gibbons began on Sunday at the solemn high mass a course of Leuten sermons. His subject was "Penance," and in the course of his remarks said: "There are now 7,000,000 negroes in the United States, and the negro question has become a serious problem to the American people. The best solution of this problem, in my judgment, will be found in Christianizing the negroes. BRAVED DEATH IN THE FLAME. A Mother Rushes Into a Burning Re by the explosion of a lamp in the cabin of the canal boat A. Chandler, lying at the foot of West Sixtieth street, New York, early on Sunday morning. Dennis Daily, 3 years old, the son of the captain, Patrick Daily, was burned to death, and Captain Daily, his wife Ellen and two other children were so severely burned that they had to be taken to the hospital. An astrai oil lamp was suspended from the centre of the cabin, and about half an hour before midnight this exploded, scattering the burning all over the sleeping inmates and setting the cabin on fire.

Mrs. Daily screamed and then picked up two of her children and pushed them through the window to the deck of the canal boat Pratt, which came alongside to render assistance. Two other boys were saved in the same manner. Captain Daily was awakened just in time to save his life.

In the excitement Mrs. Daily forgot all In the excitement Mrs. Dally forgot all about her youngest boy, Dennis. She heroically rushed back and found him in his bunk, and when she carried him on the deck he was still alive, but almost burned to a crisp. Several canal boatmen put out the fire, and notified the Roosevelt hospital authorities. The boy Dennis died a few hours afterward. The other two boys are badly burned, and two girls were also injured.

THE HATFIELD-M'COY FEUD.

Detectives Will Try to Have Twenty of the McCoy Gang Tried For Murder.

The long-drawn-out and bloody Hatfield-McCoy feud is threatened with new complications. The Hatfields, who have been nunted for months by detectives who are after the reward offered by the state of Kentucky, have turned hunters. They have employed legal counsel, and papers have been filed with Governor Fleming on which he will base a demand on the state of Kentucky for the surrender of about twenty members of the McCoy gang, to be tried for murders committed in West Virginia. Virginia.

Governor Fleming has determined to follow the course of his predecessor, Governor Wilson, and protect the Hatfields unless assured that they will secure a fair trial in Kentucky. The report that he intended to honor Kentucky's requisition for them was without foundation. The for them was without foundation. The effort of the Hatfields to have the McCoys effort of the Hatfields to have the McCoys arrested and tried is a direct result of the hanging of Ellison Mounts at Pikeville. The Hatfields have recently sold large tracts of land, have plenty of money and are well armed. A fresh effort to capiure some of the McCoys and be revenged for Mounts' death is daily looked for.

MATRIMONIAL PLANS CHANGED. He Loved the Youngest But Finally Married the Eldest.

George Sparks, a young man from Kittey township, near Ottawa, Ont., became en-gaged to the youngest daughter of Charles Smith, of Whitehurston, after a brief courtsmith, of whiteuriston, after a orier courriship. The day was set, the clothes were bought, likewise the ring, when it suddenly occurred to the trusting couple that it might be as well to tell the young lady's old folks. This the lovesick swain did after the most approved fashion, but great was his consternation and chagrin when the old man declared that the constraints of the constraints. declared that the ceremony could not take place, at least in the way it had been arancaster Dispatch to Philadelphia Inquirer. A prominent citizen of Marietta received letter from an official in one of the departments at Washington Saturday with regard to the delay in turning the Demo-crats out of postollices. He says that the president has positively declared that he will permit no more changes in presiden-tial postoffices until the expiration of four years from the date of confirmation by the Senate, unless sufficient charges are made and sustained against the incumbent-to secure his removal.

The letter further states that congress-men may storm as much as they please, and yet the administration will make no more exceptions to the rule now re-estab
