THE WATER DEPARTMENT.

Water Superintendent Frailey sent in the thirteenth annual report of the condition of the water department for the year ending February 28, 1889. From it the following extracts are taken:

The engine and pumps at the works are in good condition and during the past year 1,548,274,706 gallons of water was pumped, which is a daily average of 4,318,410. The number of tons of coal consumed during the year was 2,247, the cost of which was $5,617.56.

The consumption of water daily percapita was 139 gallons based upon a population of 31,000. The cost of delivering each million gallons of water into the reservoir was $3.38. This includes labor, superintendence, engineers, supplies, &c.

The expenditures in the department during the year were $13,856.83. The amount for new work at the pumping station and repairs at Ranck's mill was $2,137.57.

During the year the number of connections made was rather small. There were ninety-one new water takers, and nineteen who increased their supply. The pipe extensions during the year were 3,851 feet, divided as follows; ten inch 1,079; six inch 2,360, four inch 422.

Ten new and improved fire hydrauts and three old once were put in. Also nine six inch stop valves, two of ten inch and one of sight. The cost of pipe, pipe laying, labor, lead, &c., was $2,502.17.

The report gives the number of strokes made by such of the two Worthington pumps, the number of gallons pumped and the daily average of gallons pumped and the daily average of gallons pumped and the daily average of gallons pumped and the total daily average consumption of water in Lancauter is considered.

an i the daily average of gallons pumped by such pump.

The total daily average consumption of water in Lancaster is considered rather high. The superintendent's report con-cludes as follows:

Many complaints are made about the distribution of the water on West James street, above Mulberry. Many of the water takers in that locality complain that they do not get water during the day time, and offentimes it will not how at night above the first foor. We are unable to remedy

The parents in a stupidly drunken way tried to keep the child, but Mr. Burns retained her. He took her to the station house where she was recognized. She was kept there over night, and is there yet. An effort will be made to have her placed in the Children's Home. Had it not been for Mr. Burns' interference the child might have perished in last night's storm.

Katle is a very bright little child, and she soon became a favorite among the police officers, several of whom she recognized. She is amarter than many children with better opportunities and this morning she was happy as a child in a palace. She spent the time singing, peeping into drawers, plagueing the policemen and the characters who come for soup. Some time ago Constable Pyle took her to his house for a few days while her parents awaited a hearing, and as he entered the station house this morning Katle asked him how his little girl was. When asked where she lived Katle quickly replied "on the road, but sometimes in the stone house of East King street." The little thing would make a great deal of life in the home of any one who would adopt her.

It is Organized on Wednesday And the Members Join in a Hunt.
The gentlemen of this city and vicinity who are interested in forming a kennel club, for the purpose of hunting foxes, had a meeting yesterday at the farm of William W. Grosh, one of the best known young hunters in the county, who lives on a farm near Neffaville. Invitations to the meeting best known and the second to a large number of near Neffsville. Invitations to the meeting had been sont to a large number of well known gentlemen, and the result was that they responded very promptly and there was a large attendance, especially of gentlemen from this city, who for years have been taking a great interest in fox hunting, which, by the way, is a very healthful exercise. It was not long after the people had assembled until the meeting to form the club was called together in one of the spacious rooms of the house. Charles W. Eckert was made chairman, and in a little speech he stated the object of the meeting. He told exactly what the club intended doing, and it was not long until everybody present was interested in a short time no less than forty gentlemen had enrolled themselves as members. The club will have two kennels of hounds, and W. W. Grosh will act as master of the one at Neffsville, and Andrew Hershey will have charge of the other at Ironville. The annual dues were fixed and everything was done towards making the club a great success, which it will no doubt be. It was resolved to hold a meet-ing at the City hotel, in this city, on next doubt be. It was resolved to hold a meeting at the City hotel, in this city, on next Thursday evening, when by-laws will be passed. There was the greatest enthusiasm at the meeting and the club starts out with the brightest prospects.

After the meeting of the Kennel club, the fox which Mr. Grosh had provided was dropped. It was about three o'clock when he was started and he ran in a north-westerly direction. The dogs were turned loose in about twenty minutes and a large number of horsenen started in pursuit.

number of horsemen started in pursuit. The hounds, about 50 in number, ran the fox very sharp, catching and kiling him after going about five miles. The brush was captured by Samuel Bard, a well-known hunter of Ironville.

The hunters were so well pleased with the chase that they started towards Sun Hill to try and start a wild fox. The hour was late, however, and that idea was aban-doned. Then the members of the Kennel they were handsomely entertained by that gentleman. It was late in the evening until everybody left and all were satisfied that the Kennel club had had a good start.

After the men had their hearing before

After the men had their hearing before the mayor they were taken before Alderman Deen, where Special Officer John Gill had preferred charges against them of cruelty to animals and reckless driving. Quite a number of witnesses testified to the manner in which the men drove through the streets, and that they whipped and otherwise treated the horse badly. Mr. Stoner, the owner of the horse, testified that he had loaned the animal to Jackson to come to town after a bushel of peanuts. When he did not return Mr. Stoner sent another man after the horse and found him, minus a couple of shoes, at Shober's hotel. The prisoners were each fined $5 for fast driving and $10 for cruelty to animals (from the latter they can appeal). With the costs, the bill of each was $29. The men started out to try to raise the amounts, or they will have to go to juil for 15 days.
