ISAAC SAWTELLE'S TRIAL.

It is begun in Rochester, N. H., and excites popular interest. ROCHESTER, N. H., March 12.—The adjourned trial of Isaac Sawtelle, for the murder of his brother, Hiram, was begun here to-day before Justice Wentworth.

It is estimated that 1,000 people were present at the opening of court. Sawtelle was brought into court amid great excitement and some trouble was had in keeping the crowd in check. The presiding judge excluded all witnesses for the state during the giving of testimony. Prosecutor Kival opened the case for the state by calling Jeannette, the widow of Hiram, who testified regarding the receipt of telegrams from her husband calling him to Rochester, also regarding the Sawtelle property, which is supposed to have furnished the motive for the crime. Her testimony was not completed when a recess was taken until afternoon.

A Six-Mule Runaway. A six-mule team belonging to R. M. Kauffman, a Manor township farmer, caused a great deal of excitement on the first square of West King street, early this afternoon. On the large wagon, to which the mules were hitched, was a great load of iron in bags. Going down the hill the driver of the team tried to apply the brake, but was unable to do so, as the bags were in the way. The mules started to run over the slippery Belgian blocks, but the driver held to the line and succeeded in turning them into South Prince street. As they made the turn around the corner they were traveling pretty fast, and in front of the Stevens house the sideboard of the wagon gave away. About fifteen bags of the bran were thrown off into the black mud, which seemed to be almost a foot in depth. The mules were stopped before they reached Milfill street, after they had scattered a few more bags along the street. No further damage was done, but several teams that lined the streets made narrow escapes from being struck, and at one time a frightful accident was looked for. The driver displayed a great deal of pluck in holding to the mules.

John Eberly, who is charged with robbery by John Welbrock, was held by Alderman Spurrier last evening. The prosecutor and the accused both live on the Wabank road. He says that while he sat there Eberly stole his pocket-book containing several dollars and some other articles. The same night Welbrock was arrested for being drunk and taken to the station house. Eberly escaped for a time, but was arrested several days ago. After hearing the evidence the alderman held the accused for trial at court.
