

MYSTERY.

LAKES AND LAKE REGIONS IN VARIOUS COUNTRIES. The story of Titicaca and the legends about its shores—where the Chaco, their home—Devil's head with Ave.

History and legend go hand in hand in the combination of the mysterious and the supernatural. It is hardly necessary to add that no white man has ever viewed this remarkable phenomenon.

Speaking of transparent lakes, however, there is one not mythical, but actual—which is among the world's most famous beauty spots. It is that dainty gem in the Yosemite valley called Mirror lake. Only a mile in circumference, it seems to have been placed there for the encircling mountains to see their forms and faces in.

There are a great many people in the vicinity of New York, and other places, too, who think that the League will yet capitulate, and the League will only have eight clubs when the bell rings. It seems to me rather a priori hope, and yet I know that some of the New York club managers still believe that the League will capitulate.

Collectively the Brotherhood has about 10 per cent. the best of the League in players, I believe. Compared team for team, so far as paper calculations can demonstrate it, the Brotherhood has a much greater advantage than the League. It is not completed, because the League team is not completed, the Brotherhood appears to have the strongest teams at Chicago, at Pittsburgh and at Cleveland. In Brooklyn the League team leads.

These are a few among the many inland bodies of water that have gained peculiar fame by reason of natural singularity or association with the strange doings of various portions of the human race. FRED C. DAYTON.

It has recently become a feature of American Athletic Games. Tripod or three-legged racing has become of late quite a feature of athletic games in America. In England the pastime has been practiced for years. The two men who compose the team are fastened together by a broad strap just above the knees, the buckle being placed in front so that it impedes the progress of the muscles. At the ankle a double strap is placed. The left arm of the one is then placed around the other's waist, while the latter's right arm encompasses the former, and then, when they have tested the mark, they "see" as shown in the picture. A peculiar half hop, half jump, strike them going, and in a few strides they strike their gait and run as one man.

Two men who compose the team, as shown in the accompanying cut, are C. S. Buse and C. L. Jacquelin. They made their debut as a three-legged team on Aug. 31 of last year at the games of the New Jersey Athletic club at Bergen Point. They won this event, lowering the then existing record by 2.5 seconds. The name being "Daisies" in appearance the members of the team are evenly matched, and although Jacquelin is the heavier of the two, a good distribution of strength and weight is effected by having him take the outside position, in which place the greater weight of the team is borne by him.

At the games of the Hempstead Amateur Athletic association, held at Hempstead, L. I., on Sept. 15, 1889, the champions lowered the 100 yards three-legged record, covering the distance in three seconds with one-fifth of a second of the world's record, which was made on a cinder track, while the new record was made on a poor grass track, after a four start.

Among the spring hats and millinery are an unusual number of greens. Some wreaths—and, in fact, most of them—are all in green, sometimes three or four shades and sometimes only one. Hop blossoms and leaves are made up into rather low wreaths, with trailing ends. Burdock stickers and leaves are among the "high novelties," and they are certainly pretty when put in among soft black or other lace. I think greenish yellow and yellowish greens are the favorite shades. I noticed among the flowers that nearly all the field and wild spring blossoms are represented. Daisies for children will always be popular.—O. H.

LEAGUE GOSSIP.

What the Recent Meeting Suggested to W. I. Harris. SMALL CHANCE FOR EIGHT CLUBS.

Indianapolis Clings Like Grim Death to Her Franchise—The Brotherhood's Great Strength—The American Association Prepared to Fight Hard for It.

My idea of what the National league would do at Cleveland didn't pan out very well, except in that my belief that Indianapolis would not be forced out proved correct. Certainly if unanimity on the part of the other clubs and persuasive eloquence could have done the business there would be only eight clubs in the League today; but John T. Brush was determined not to be bulldozed, and with typical Indiana persistency he held the fort and is still holding it.

THE OXFORD-CAMBRIDGE RACE.

Great interest attaches to the coming race between the picked crews of Oxford and Cambridge universities. The former are said to be in great trim and confident of victory. The illustration shows them starting from the university barge to paddle over the short course to Ilford. The order of rowing is: W. F. C. Holland, Brasenose (bow); J. H. E. Fuxley, Corpus; J. R. B. Rowse, Magdalen; A. C. H. St. J. Horby, New; S. Lord Amphil, New; G. C. F. Drake, New; J. G. Nickalls, Magdalen; W. A. L. Fletcher, Christ Church (stroke); J. P. Lonsdale, New (cox.).

He Had Been to the Ball. "Why, what's the matter, Pat?" asked an employer of his man of all work; "wherever have you been?" "Och, to Widow Mulrooney's ball, yer 'unner, and an illigant time we had of it. Four fights in fifteen minutes an' a wind up knock down wid the byes from the 'swamp' that left but wid whole nose in the house an' that was on the 'tacklet. Beddy, the folks of it most I has not seen since we waked Tim Donnelly."

SOME LENTEN FASHIONS.

OLIVE HARPER WRITES OF STYLES FOR THE PENITENTIAL SEASON. Glances at Gowns Which Will Appear on Easter Sunday—How the Loveliest Creations of the Season Are Constructed This Year.

NEW YORK, March 13.—To be "As tall as a tute and pale as a nun" is the fashion for young girls just now; that is, for them to appear as tall and slender as they can, and as demure and saintly as the nun in manner as they walk along the street with pretty prayer books clasped in their reverential little hands. It is Lent.

What with the black gloves, the somber dresses and the handsome prayer book, and the serious face, with eyes downcast in silent reflection or upturned in reverent appeal, according as they look the best, the present fashion makes the young girl irresistibly lovely.

As the Lenten girl goes slowly along the street it is not certain that her thoughts, like her eyes, are fixed upon her devotions, for are not the dress-makers holding revel and carnival among the beautiful fabrics which are to ravish the eyes of the beholder as soon as Easter comes? Oh, the lovely, dainty dresses, soft and fleecy, rich and shining, that are to see the light after this penitential season! It is penance to have to wait four whole, long weeks before one can wear those beautiful dresses!

Tailor made gowns with flat, smooth seams are seen more than ever among the new spring styles, and they ought never to be abandoned, as nothing can be so snug and trim and pretty, of whatever material they are made.

I found on the other day, just finished for a newly married lady, of cadet gray cloth, with a plain front, flat panels with stitings at the sides and a drapery of enamel blue velvet, which, drawn in short tablier form across the front, fell in the back in a sash to the bottom of the skirt. The front of the basque had velvet lapels and vest, and altogether was a model of simple richness and elegance.

A gown for a young matron which was just finished had the back laid in deep kilts of black moire and narrow panel on each side of embossed black velvet. The front was of rich plain velvet in shawl drapery. The basque was perfectly plain with small steel buttons. A dainty shoulder cape was of the embossed velvet with two falls of lace, and with this was a black lace bonnet with old rose ribbon bows. This dress was particularly rich and handsome, and will first see the light of day on Easter Sunday—providing the weather is fair. If not, I do not doubt that some tears will be shed, and not exactly of a penitential nature.

Another dress to be worn on that momentous occasion was just having its final "trying on" as I arrived, and it was so handsome that I instantly seized its spirit, and here it is. The dress was of olive green velvet all around the bottom and partially up the left side, where the drapery folds over in curtain style. Above the band of velvet was a row of crocheted trimming in dark green sadder's silk in Eiffel points. The basque had a full row of white crepe de Chine and bordered by bands of velvet to match the skirt. A dainty toque, with a half rosette of embroidered crepe de Chine, in white crepe and moss green velvet. Tan suede gloves complete the costume.

Any lady can make herself a dress after these models, and if she is spry can get it done for Easter and look just as pretty as the ladies will who paid good money to know how to do for the originals. OLIVE HARPER.

The McKinley bill lately passed by the house of representatives, which is being attacked so fiercely here, the senate committee, contains three important features. One is the simplification of methods of collecting revenue, and to that there is comparatively little objection. Another makes important distinctions between goods sold by sample and those sold in actuality, and to this there is a great deal of objection, especially in New York. The third settles some disputes as to the rates of duty to be charged on goods liable to different classifications, generally fixing the higher rate, and deprives the importer of the right to a jury trial of such issues, and to these provisions there is very heated opposition.

Recent discussions on the Blair bill to extend Federal aid to education in the states have had prominent the facts that there are now about 1,100,000 colored children in the common schools of the south and nearly 100,000 more in private schools, academies and colleges. Of the colored schools to which the Blair bill is to be applied, the average is as high as the average college in the north. Thirty colleges for colored students and 1,200,000 colored children in school is certainly a marvelous exhibit for a region so lately prostrated by war.

HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA. That Hood's Sarsaparilla does possess curative power Peculiar to itself is conclusively shown by the wonderful cures it has effected, unsurpassed in the history of medicine. This absolute merit it possesses by reason of the fact that it is prepared by a Combination, Proprietary and Process Peculiar to Hood's Sarsaparilla, known to no other medicine, and by which the full medicinal power of all the ingredients used is retained. Hood's Sarsaparilla is a highly concentrated extract of Sarsaparilla, Dandelion, Mandrake, Dock, Juniper Berries, and other well-known vegetable remedies. It has won its way to the leading place among medicines by its own intrinsic, undisputed merit, and has now a larger sale than any other similar preparation in the country. If you have never taken Hood's Sarsaparilla, I will convince you of its absolute and merited value. Take it this season!

I have for a long time been using Hood's Sarsaparilla, and believe me, I would not be without it. As a spring medicine it is invaluable. E. A. Rhodes, 130 Ontario Street, Chicago, Ill. Be sure to get Hood's Sarsaparilla.
