Low Prices for Native Seed and the Haas Variety Commands Little More. Trade in Old Goods Dull Rore.

The leaf tobacco market in old goods the miers are still picking up tobacro in all one of the county when they can buy their own prices.

Some of the crops around Millersville are reported to be very poor. There is, however, much that is considered very fine. Last week a farmer of that section leaded an arre of seed leaf on his wagon, intending to bring it to a packer in Lancaster. The packer offered him 7 cents for the wrappers, but would pay nothing for seconds and fillers. The farmer told a cigar manufacturer of Millersville of the offer made to him, and believed that he could save a few cents by disposing of the leaf in Millersville. The cigar man looked at the weed and offered to buy the wrappers at six cents. The terms were so-cepted, and the farmer was paid $11.28. Counting for toll, feed for horses and man and time, the farmer would have made a mistake in coming to Lancaster.

The Churchtown correspondent of the INTELLIGENCER sends the following list of sales for his section:

The New York Market.

From the U. S. Tobacco Journal.

The market remains in a very comatose condition. Wholesale transactions have almost crassed entirely. Whatever business is done is limited to the retailing of a bale or a couple of cases. No such depression has been experienced during the past few years. And yet a brighter day is bound to come. The holders of Sumatra will feel quite cheerful at the prospect of baving a duty of $2 enacted. No doubt some pretty lively hustling will be done in the Sumatra line the next few months. The first inscription of this year will take place on the 21st inst. The quantity will amount to 2,500 bales.

The new Wisconsin is being bought at present at a very lively rate. It is the extraordinary cheapness which attracts the buyer to the Wisconsin. A temporary full has set in in the buying of the state seed while the Pennsylvania remains utterly neglected.

The Havana moves as freely as ever. No

Business was not as brisk this week as Business was not as brisk this week as the previous one. 1888 Pennsylvania B's were eagerly sought for, as it is an understood fact that the new Pennsylvania seed leaf is a failure, and also that very little good Havana seed tobacco is in the crop. Speaking to a prominent packer the other day in regard to this crop, he said, "It is the most dangerous crop to bandle, from present indications, that I ever saw."

In Wissensin, buying of the new crop is present indications, that I ever saw."

In Wisconsin, buying of the new crop is going on in a moderate manner. In Onondaga the farmers are holding their tobacco too high to make business lively. This crop is the soundest and best raised this year.

Gans' Report.

Sales of seed leaf tobacco reported by J.

S. Gans' Son, tobacco broker, No. 131
Water street, New York, for the week ending March 17, 1890. Market is very dull:
230 cases 1888 Wisconsin Havana, 9i to 12]c.; 125 cases 1888 New England Havana,
16 to 37]c.; 100 cases 1888 reta Havana,
12] to 14]c.; 185 cases 1887-'88 Pennsylvania seed leaf, 8i to 11]c.; 70 cases 1888 Pennsylvania Havana, 12 to 13c.; 30 cases 1888
Dutch, p. t.; 100 cases sundries, 6i to 32]c.
Total, 860 cases.

The Philadelphia Market. From the Totacco Leut.

Business in the leaf line is unquestionably quiet. Buying is confined to such stock as needed for immediate wants. Bit ders have the call, while B's can be sold if heavy and ot too high in figures. The total aggre-ate of sales shows a slight improvement er last week. Sumatra sells very well, but not as freely

A Carriage Factory, a Barn and a Dweiling Beducest to Ashee.
This morning at an early hour the town of New Holland as well as the entire surrounding neighborhood was disturbed by a very disastrous fire which took place in the western part of the village. It started, or was started, in the coach works occupied by Buck & Co., and owned by John Brubaker. The flames were discovered by Reuben Yundt and Bamuel Jacobs, who live a short distance away. They aroused the neighbors and soon the whole village was up and at the fire. As the place is without a fire engine or any apparatus for extinguishing flames, every person made themselves useful carrying water. The flames made great headway, however, and in a short time the building was reduced to ashes. From the coach shop the fire made its way to the barn of the Red Lion hotel near by, kept by Henry Sieverling, and that building was totally destroyed. Before the progress of the flames could be stayed a house, which was next to the barn and occupied by William Sloat, was in flames. It was also destroyed, but all the furniture and everything else belonging to the family was saved, as it was considerable time before the flames reached the building which was believed to be in danger from the start. The dweiling was owned by Squire E. H. Burkholder, of Farmersville.

In the coach works there were several

In the cosch works there were several new buggies and a large lot of tools and other material. All of those, together with the books of the firm, were destroyed. In the barn was a large quantity of hay, sthaw, &c., with several vehicles, and they were all burned. It is believed that the fire was of incendiary origin. The buildings were all of frame.

The stock of the coach factory was insured in the Penn Township Mutual com-pany for $2,600, and the building, as well as the barn, was insured in the Penn Mutual company of Chaster county. The house was also insured.

On Monday, about noon, fire was dis-covered in the large barn of Christian Klick, a farmer, who resides in Lescock township, about a half mile southeast of Intercourse. The family and others tried to stop the progress of the fiames, but they were unable to do so, and the whole building was destroyed. The live stock was all taken from the barn and none of the animals were burned. A large quantity of hay and straw, together with the farming

At the time Martin Eahleman Jr., was passing in charge of two four borse teams. The team in the and they began ronning. The aniof the engine, and the tongueand wagon were struck. There was quite a wreck and the wagon was broken to pleces. The harness was torn from the lown the railroad track. Another horse had two hind legs broken, and it was that was quickly done with an axe. The accident caused the engine to leave the track with the pilot and cylinder head broken. Henry B. Luken, the engineer, remained at his throttle and he cailed to John Hartranft, the fireman, to jump, killed. The tracks were torn up for some distance. The track was blocked for some time before the wreck could be cleared up, and the down passenger train was obliged to turn and come back to town. It was after seven o'clock in the evening before the track was cleared, and the engine after wards came to this city and was taken to Reading for repairs.

STRICKEN WITH PARALYSIS.

Bev. C. Reimensnyder Taken III on Mon Rev. C. Reimensnyder, a representative of the American Sunday School Union was stricken with paralysis on Monday, at his boarding house in York, kept by Mrs. Spangler, at No. 103 West Marke street. He was preparing for breakfast when stricken and not coming down stairs a messenger was sent to his room. He was found on the floor unconscious and partly dressed. He was placed in bed and Dr. Jacob Hay summoned. An examination showed that his right arm and leg and the right side of his face was paralyzed. He was able to talk, but could with difficulty move his right

Secretary S. B. Herr, of the Young Men's Christian association, brought Mr. Reimensnyder to Lancaster on the noon train and ook him to his home on West King street. He was a trifle improved this morning.

Lusk Was Not Married.

Lusk Was Not Married.

When A. P. Lusk died at the home of his sister, Mrs. J. J. Dull, in Harrisburg, about two years ago, he was supposed to be a wealthy bachelor of correct habits and devoted exclusively to business and a select circle of friends. When he passed away, however, and his executor had filed his account exhibiting a residuary balance of nearly $50,000, which auditors were appointed to distribute, a young woman, whose maiden name was Jennie E. Stoner, appeared on the scene and claimed to be the widow of Lusk. The auditors on Monday find, after a careful analysis of the testimony, "that no marriage was ever contracted between the claimant and testator, and that the legatees named in the will are entitled to take the estate." Exceptions were filed and there is no doubt that the contest will be determined finally in the supreme court.

Runaway Boys. Henry Hinder, 17 years old, and Amor Jones, 15 years, whose homes are in this city, were arrested in Philadelphia on Monday as runaway boys. They claimed to have an uncle living on 15th street, above Columbia avenue, Philadelphia, and he was notified of their arrest. He said he wanted nothing to do with them, as they had run away from home several times before. The authorities will keep them until Saturday, and if not claimed by that time by their relatives, will be released.

LANCASTER, PA., TUESDAY, MARCH 18, 1890.

What at first seemed an insignificant fire in the Bowes-Merrill bookstors, Indiseaseoils, on Konday afternoop, resulted in a catestrophe in which at less ton mak were tilled and a dozen wounded, some of whom will die. The building occupied by the book company was a four-story and basement marble front building ficing Washington street just before 3 o'clock near the furnace in the sub-basement. The fire department, when it arrived, seemed at a loss to locate the fire and began pouring water into the building at the front, when the seet of the trouble was in the roar. For two hours the fight had continued in this way until a majority of the speciators had left, under the impression that the fire was out. About 150, however, there was a terrible crash, and the entire building, except the front wail, fell inward. At the time a number of firemen, variously estimated at eight to twenty, were at the roof of the building and were buried in the debris, which was piled forty feet high within the walls of the burned building.

Immediately the work of recouing the fiving and extricating the dead was begun by at least 500 volunteers who, in addition to the uninjured firemen and members of the police force, formed a strong corps of workers. At times their ears would be greeted by the groans of the wounded undermeath the ruins, and then the work would be pushed with renewed vigor. For three hours the forces labored to rescue the wounded and recover the dead.

As fast as willing hands could haul away

As fast as willing hands could haul away the bricks they were removed, but the ladder was too firmly held to yield. The man with a broken arm was dragged free and carried away. Under him, mute but breathing, appeared the upturned face of a poor fellow not seen before. The mortar and dust were cleaned from his lips, but he was buried so deeply that no immediate help could come to him.

On all sides blackened and bleeding faces, distorted with agony or dreadful in death, urged the crowd who had scaled the heap to cassist them to redouble their efforts. The debris had fallen so that it lay with a valley-shaped surface, and this made available space for work very small. There was no place to deposit the materials dug from the bottem of the valley, except to throw them upon the sides of the depression, from which they continually rolled down toward the centre again.

upon the sides of the depression, from which they continually rolled down toward the centre again.

All the work of relief was thus carried on with great difficulty. One by one the men nearest the surface were extricated, but as the workers went down farther, they discovered new victims, and the horror steadily grew. The forward part of the building still stood high and burning flercely, and threatened every moment to fall down and bury the brave rescuers, but they gave no heed to the peril.

On either side the walls towered and seemed ready to fall, but there was no time to think of them. As fast as the workmen became exhausted others stood ready and anxious to fill the places, so there was not a moment of delay in the labor of relief. Every moment was filled with an awful suspense, for all were thinking of friends who lay buried beneath them. Names which men inquired after were passed hurriedly from lip to lip, and people bent down to scan closely the blackened and scarred faces. Persons who had friends among the fireman, or among citizens who were supposed to have been near the fatal among the fireman, or among citizens who were supposed to have been near the fatal walls, became frantic as time passed and they could get no word. As the wounded were carried out of the ruins they were met with embraces and tears of joy; but when the still, broken forms were borne away, motionless and limp, then it was when the full sadness and horror of the calamity came upon the waiting crowd.

At 11.30 p. m. 22 men were taken from the ruins, nine of whom were dead, and the rest more or less injured. Others are known to be under the mass of debris, but have not yet been reached.

A HORRIBLE CUTTING AFFRAY. Two Friends Fall Out While in Liquor and One Stabs the Other.

A fatal stabbing affray took place between Shamokin and Centralia, and the miscreant who did the stabbing is now in miscreant who did the stabbing is now in Bloomsburg jail.

Saturday night a party of miners got several kegs of beer and took them to a shanty where they had arranged to indulge in an orgie. Among the party were two men very intimate, named John Morris and John Pettol. Some time during the night or early morning an argument arose between them and from words they went to blows, and at last utterly beside himself Morris drew a knife and made a desperate lunge at Pettol. The knife blade struck Pettol's watch, breaking it, but not cutting him. The row became general, and in perfect frenzy of passion, Morris made another lunge at Pettol. This time the blade took effect, cutting through the left abdominal walls and making a horrible gash, through which the man's entrails protruded.

In the meantime passers-by had heard the disturbance and given notice to the officers, who raided the place just as the murderer came rushing out, stained with his victim's blood. He was grasped by Officer John, who, after a terrific struggle, overcame him and took the recking knife away. Morris was brought through Shamokin Monday morning for Bloomsburg, heavily ironed hand and foot. He was cut and bruised, and is a villainous-looking man.

has accepted the resignation of the chancellor."

A Berlin dispatch to the London Daily Ness, timed nidnight, says that all telegrams are rigorously inspected by the authorities, and are stopped if they go beyond announcing rumors.

The immediate and estensible cause of the resignation of Prince Bismarck is a divergence of opinion between the chancellor and the emperor concerning factory inspectors. General von Caprivi is mentioned as the successor of the chancellor.

Bunian, March 18.—The emperor has not yet decided whether he will accept Prince Bismarck's resignation, but it is believed in official circles that his majesty will give a final decision to-day. Some of the morning papers affirm that the emperor yesterday informed Prince Bismarck that he would not insist upon his remaining in office if it was his desire to retire to private life.

5 P. M.—It is just aunounced that Prince Bismarck's resignation of the chancellor-ship was accepted by the emperor at noon tical circles that the present difference beirreconcilable. It arises from the chancel-for's refusal to accede to the request made by Dr. Windthorst, the leader of the Clerical party in Germany, to restore to the Duke of Cumberland, the claimant of the throne of Hanover, the larger portion of the Guelph fund.

The report is repeated to-day that the emperor proposes to appoint General Von Caprivi, who is now commander of the Tenth army corps, to the chancellorship.

WASHINGTON, March 18.—The world's fair committee of the House held what will probably be its last meeting this morning. The result of the session was a complete victory for the Chicago people. Mr. Belden's proposition, which requires Chicago citizens to present to the committee an absolute guarantee of a ten million dollar fund before the bill is re-ported, was defeated. The dates for the exposition, April 10 to October 20, 1892, were left as fixed upon yesterday, but the chairman, Mr. Chandler, has given notice that he will move in the House when the bill is under consideration that it be so amended as to provide for the dedication October 12, 1892, and the holding of the fair the following year.

CHICAGO, March 18.—On Sunday night a woman was found lying on the sidewalk at 55th and Morgan streets. Police thought she was intoxicated, but after she had been taken to the station it was found that her skull was fractured. She died last night without having recovered consciousness.

It has been learned that the unfortunate woman was Mrs. Jennie Bingham, formerly of Milwaukee, but known in Chicago as Mrs. Jennie Taylor. She has been living here with an engineer named Taylor. There are suspicious that she was murder-ously assaulted on the street on Sunday night by Bingham, who, it is learned, left his home in Milwaukee a few days ago and cannot now be found. Bingham some time ago was an inmate of an insane asy-

Smith had the best of the fight, which was for $500 a side, from the first to the tenth round. Curtis was knocked down twenty times, but managed to come to the front at the call of time. In the sixteenth round he was knocked down six times, and the last time was unable to get up to respond to the call.

PROHIBITION OF PEDDLING. in Important and Interesting Opinio

An Important and Interesting Opinion of the Supreme Court.

The supreme court reaffirmed their decision in regard to peddlers Monday when they handed down an opinion by Judge Wiltiams in the case of the commonwalth against Gardner and others, appealed from the court of Schuylkill county. The opinion refutes the argument made that to forbid peddling is a violation of the bill of rights.

of reach—if it is true that such a person is the ward of the Federal constitution, engaged in inter-state commerce, with the power of the government of the United States interposed between him and the police power of the state, it must be admitted that we have stumbled on a startling and unlooked for result of the investment of the general government. startling and unlooked for result of the investment of the general government with the power to regulate commerce. Fortunately the Federal courts do not so hold. They distinctly recognize the police power of the states and their right to forbid altogether the saie of such articles as are injurious. The conviction in the lower court is sustained."

PORTUGAL AGAIN ABOUSED. The English Fing Holsted in An African

District.

It is reported that Mr. Buchanan, the acting British consul, has hoisted and saluted the British flag in the Shire district. Mr. Buchanan is accompanied by a large force of natives under command of European officers.

large force of natives under command of European officers.

The action of Mr. Buchanan has caused great excitement in Lisbon. The government has made a formal protest to Lord Salisbury against the action of Mr. Buchanan. The feeling runs so high that it is feared an attack may be made upon the British legation, and a guard of troops has been placed there to prevent any hostile demonstration. The Spanish cabinet was specially summoned on Monday afternoon to consider the situation.

The newspapers in Lisbon all clamor for reparation for the English occupation of the Shire district.

It Must Be Held in 1892.

The world's fair question is daily becoming more complicated. It seems now that the whole matter may come up in the House sgain for determination as to whether or not there shall be any celebration. There is a disposition on the part of the Chicago members to have the fair postponed until 1893. The friends of other cities say that Chicago got it on the ground that it was to be held in 1892, and that if the fair is to be postponed the question of defermining the site will have to be fought over again. In committee on Monday it was decided by a majority vote to have the fair held in 1892, as originally proposed, but the Chicago members do not like this, and are actively at work to change that result.

The New York members also insist that Chicago show a guarantee fund of $10,000,000 before the bill is passed. This Chicago cannot do, and if a majority of the House insists on that being done, the whole thing may fall through. It Must Be Held in 1899.

Colobrated Its Fifth Anniversary. Esto Perpetuo Lodge, Grand United Order of Odd Fellows, celebrated its fifth anniversary on Monday evening. The members marched from their hall on North Prince street to the African Methodis Episcopal church, on Strawberry street, where the exercises were held. After a hymn by the congregation and prayer by Rev. Seth D. W. Smith, Col J. W. Simpson, of Harrisburg, most worshipful presi-dent of the order, delivered an address. He was followed by Edward Mellon, of this city, whose address was on the color line. After the exercises were closed at the church the meeting was adjourned to Love and Charity hall, where refreshments were
