The Revolt Against Delamater. Senator Delamater is evidently determined to enjoy a rough experience in traveling towards the gubernatorial contest. He has promised to lead a still rougher one in reaching an election.

The Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph devotes four columns telling how Delamater carried Cambria county, a result which excited general surprise owing to the assumed popularity that Adjutant General Hastings secured in his flood administration among the Cambrians.

The exposure of Delamater is going to be effective in preventing his nomination or promoting his election. It has evidently made up its mind that it will be a bad thing for the Republican party, or for its section of it, to have Delamater nominated and elected.

No one, we should think, can take great pride just now in being a Republican in Pennsylvania, realizing as he must how totally ineffective is the voter's voice in selecting his candidate. Who imagines that Senator Delamater would have the ghost of a chance of nomination for governor if the voice of the party were really taken? He has no fame as a statesman and no brilliant qualification upon which to base his ambition to be governor.

He has wealth, education and intelligence, and doubtless quite sufficient capacity for the gubernatorial office, which does not demand vast intellectual resources, as our experience abundantly tells us. But there is nothing striking about Delamater's career or character to call him up to the gubernatorial chair, or to the influences potent to give the nomination. Against him is his reputation as the instrument of monopoly. It ought to suffice to kill him before the people. It would suffice before his party, if the masses consulted it. It will so suffice before the people if partisan prejudice does not prove a sufficient bulwark to him.

Farmers, Vegetables and Fools. The statistician of the agricultural department finds one reason for the depressed state of the farming industry to be the narrow range in crop production. He finds that we import a great many agricultural products which might as well be produced here. In commenting on this the Philadelphia Telegraph observes: The average American farmer, even located almost within sight of one of the centers of the East, goes on raising his three staple crops; one year, wheat, oats and corn; the next year, oats, wheat and corn; the next year, corn and wheat. He runs right around in a small circle, and wonders why he doesn't get on better. There are thousands of productive farms in Pennsylvania that do not raise fifty dollars worth of fruit or vegetables to sell in the year. That kind of farming is looked upon with contempt, and is declared to be too much trouble, too expensive, too uncertain, and all that sort of thing, when the fact is that there are hundreds of fruit raisers in South Jersey who make more money every year on ten to twenty acres of land than the many Pennsylvania farmers with ten times the amount of land do in farming the old way.

Jersey truck farmer? Now, it would be pleasant to see the Telegraph man work a Pennsylvania farm as if it were a Jersey truck patch, right on the great highway of travel between big cities. The Pennsylvania farmer knows by investigation and actual experiment what crops will pay him best, and if any one can make farming pay he can. His readiness to take new ideas is shown by the development of tobacco culture in this county, and if the agricultural department has any new staple to offer he is ready to try it, but it won't do to hurl vegetables at his head, and command him to go follow the lead of the truck farmer. His conditions are altogether different, and his vituperation of the defender of high taxes recoils upon his own head as a "little trash."

At a meeting in Washington on Tuesday night, the fund for a Methodist university was raised to $33,500. When that figure has been multiplied by ten it may look like a university.

The exports of goods from the United States to Great Britain during the first seven and a quarter million in estimated value, and for the twelve months ending February 28th, the excess of exports was nearly seventy-three million dollars. In addition to this the excess of the exports of gold and silver reached fifty-seven million in that twelve months. So we sent abroad one hundred and thirty millions more than we received. Is it any wonder that our foreign trade refuses to extend itself when in the face of these figures we refuse to admit without tax the raw materials of manufacture?

Those who oppose us will dash to pieces," said Emperor William a few days ago. If there is truth in the report of his quarrel with the British Bismarck he has a chance to do some dashing.

OUT IN KANSAS they are forming "Re-submission clubs" to urge a re-submission of the prohibition amendment to the people, as a strong sentiment has developed against it. The clubs are composed of Republicans who are convinced after trial that prohibition is a mistake and dangerous to the party, and, strangely enough, the president of the state organization has written to Quay, asking for his influence to bring about another vote on the matter and the defeat of prohibition. As Quay has declared himself for prohibition in Pennsylvania his position in Kansas may be peculiar. The Kansans complain that they are losing in population and immigrants seek refuge in the mountains of Kansas. The Republican leaders blame prohibition for the sudden drop of their majority from eighty-two thousand in 1888 to fifteen thousand in 1890. Democrats see other causes at work there, but none are so blind as those who won't see.

THE surprising announcement is made that there are to be more tests of the cruiser Vesuvius. This vessel has been tried so often and in so many different ways that at the final test of her guns a little while ago it was carefully stated that nothing more remained to delay her commission in the active navy. Her contract stipulated a speed of twenty knots an hour and she made it with ease, but Secretary Tracy insists upon a horse-power test. The Vesuvius was begun and practically completed under a Democratic administration.

ANOTHER tale of Indian woes comes from Wisconsin. On the Flambeau Indian reservation, which is at the northern end of the state, some forty miles from Lake Superior, the Indian women and children are suffering terribly from hunger and cold. Supplies are offered at the government agency on condition that the government shall be reimbursed for them, but as the Indians have nothing to give except their small reservation of poor land they very wisely refuse the terms, and are bearing their trials with admirable fortitude. They recently ejected without ceremony some missionaries whom they mistook for land sharks. The deed of this reservation is said to be wholly unfit for cultivation and these Indians are not blamed for their poverty. The authorities are said to be troubled to know what to do with them, but if their lands were good enough for white men to covet there would be little hesitation. These Indians should be given good land to be held by them as individuals and plenty of room for them could be found on the other reservations about to be opened for settlement.

THE interest in forestry aroused by the present agitation of the matter, need not bear fruit only in the form of an association, but should also show itself in other ways. For example, the Lumbermen's and Merchants' societies, which take their names from trees to plant while they gather breath and other stimulus for singing. It would be a very pleasant thing for them to go out year by year and add to their growing forest along the hills of the Conestogas. No doubt any landowner along the creek would be willing to have his young trees planted on his steep hillside. If every man of these societies would plant a tree every year they would soon have a park to be proud of in their old age, and future generations would arise and call them blessed.

BROWN'S SARSAPARILLA.

A Governor's Opinion

An ex-General of the Union Army, ex-Governor of the State of Maine, ex-Representative to Congress, and ex-Attorney General, speaks for us. With the exception, possibly, of Hon. James O. Blaine, there is no man so well-known to the people of Maine, as Gen. Harris M. Plaisted, Who has a grand record as a soldier, who has been the Governor of the State, Representative to Congress, and who is at present the editor and proprietor of the New Age newspaper, printed in Augusta, Me.

A Method of Advertising. Over one hundred thousand very simple bottles of Kemp's Balsam, with the following words away in this state last year. The corresponding sale on the Balsam has never been equalled or approached by any other remedy. It is medicinal and will give relief, or the free sample cures them, rather than help the sale. If you have a cough or cold, or even consumption, we will certainly advise a trial. The large bottles are 50c and $1.

THE KID WHO LIKE. The medicine we should like is that which does its work quick and well. Buckel's Blood Purifier is the quickest kind of a cure for dyspepsia and liver and kidney affections. For sale by W. T. Hoch, 137 and 139 North Queen Street, Lancaster, Pa.

DETECTIVES AND PRIVATE OFFICERS. Usually wear their badges of authority conspicuously. New York City. Dr. Foster's Electric Oil wears its badge in the form of a ribbon around the neck. It is advertised in every newspaper, and is the best medicine for rheumatism, neuralgia, and other painful affections. It is sold by W. T. Hoch, Nos. 137 and 139 North Queen Street, Lancaster, Pa.

BUCKEL'S AURICULAR SALVE. THE MOST VALUABLE MEDICINE FOR CUTS, BRUISES, BURNS, ULCERS, HAEMORRHOIDS, FEVER SORES, TETTER, CHAPPED HANDS, CHILBLAINS, and all skin eruptions, and positively cures Piles, or no pay required. It is the best for all the above, and is sold by W. T. Hoch, Druggist, Nos. 137 and 139 North Queen Street, Lancaster, Pa.

HIS FINGER NAILS CAME OFF. For a year I was afflicted with a horrible case of blood poison, and upwards of five months of that time I was unable to work of any kind. My finger nails came off and my hair dropped out, leaving my head as clean as smooth as if it had been shaved. I consulted the best local physicians, and spent hundreds of dollars for medicines of different kinds, but without receiving the slightest benefit. I did, but became disgusted with the treatment I was receiving there, commenced taking Swiff's Specific (S. S. S.), and in the time I had taken two bottles I was completely cured - cured by Swiff's Specific (S. S. S.). When the world-renowned Hot Springs had failed.

FOUR YEARS ON CRUTCHES. For fifteen years I was afflicted with rheumatism, four years of which I was compelled to go on crutches. I was unable to do any work during that time. During that time I tried every remedy I could find, but without receiving any benefit. I finally began on Swiff's Specific (S. S. S.), and in a few days I was enabled to get up, and to-day I am enjoying the best I have ever known. I can do any kind of work I desire, and I believe that Swiff's Specific (S. S. S.) is the best blood purifier on the market to-day.

Wanamaker's Philadelphia, Wednesday, March 26, 1890. New Dresses and Wraps. New things for Misses. New fixings for Baby. New Millinery for big folks and little.

We've told you in the papers a little of all of them, not much of any. They're not tellable stories. Words fail. But the rooms full of freshest, newest, most stylish things are waiting for you. Not the things of yesterday, or day before. They are all the time slipping out, but we fill their places with more just as rare-ripe.

The Black Dress Goods. We can't say too much of the stock. No weak spots. No excuse places. Full rounded in every particular.

Long lines of Black all-wool weaves, great in quantity, in beauty, in perfection of finish. Long lines of Black all-silk weaves. From the best looms of Lyons and Paterson—each with its special excellence.

Skip them both. Lets think to-day only of the Black silk-and-wools—the lovely stuffs in which the luster and strength of silk is mellowed by the finest fleece. Twice over, maybe, what any other retail store in America can show. Call the roll:
