ADDRESS, THE INTELLIGENCER, BANCASTER, PA., April 1, 1890.

A New York Case.

A late occurrence in New York city erves to mark the great power of the ress over the administration of justice. I commandsjjudges and juries, and the st of them seem ready to obey. When is a just command it is well ; but the ble is that far less attention is paid or the newspaper editor to the justice his cry than to its ability make a sensation and sell paper. Every journal is contendg to be in the front rank of circulation; and to make its paper fly, it must make the furfly, and not be very particular about the occasion. When any one docs wrong, there is a chance for an interesting publication ; and when a public official goes wrong there is a big opportunity, which is embraced with a zeal approaching frenzy and often pressed with an injustice savoring of savagery. New York had a sheriff who was credited with being a very good sheriff; but one day last summer he got a divorce, on the application of his wife. But she artly claimed that she had not signed the application ; and here was a fine apportunity for the newspapers to raise the sheriff's scalp and a big sensation ; which they accordingly proceeded to do; and the judges were aroused; and it really seemed as if all New York was in the throcs of convulsions over the discovery that a divorce could be got in its courts without due observance of the law.

The sheriff, his son and everybody ine who was connected with the divorce. rere indicted for conspiracy in getting it; and have been convicted under the rul-ngs of a judge who seemed to have been fully inspired with the prevailing moral tenza and who was too much in fear of the newspapers to have much imind of his own about the matter. It appeared upon the trial that there had been some irregularities in the divorce proceedings that had been prompted by the desire to secure the divorce privately; out it also appeared that the wife had signed the application for divorce and that it was made with her knowledge and consent. It was a divorce obtained by collusion, but not by deluding the msenting wife; which charge had been the serious one in the public estimation and the castigation of the press.

The sheriff and his son became the victims of the clamor ; and were called ip for sentence before the Pharises who was their judge. And what think you that he said to the son, who had testiled that his mother had signed the apdication for divorce, fully knowing its purport? He excortated him, the rights newspaper reporters tell us, for schaving in so unnatural a manner to his mother. Now, though his mother was shown to have been a drunken nd unamiable creature, from whom any scent man would naturally demand a divorce, she was still undoubtedly entitled to the veneration of her son ; but do we understand the New York judge to say that it is a decent son's duty to perjure himself to sustain his mother's dinner to Editor Smith than is custom-nry at the festive tables of ordinary folks, or even at those of the remarkable Clover club, which is a peculiar Phila-delphia institution that is set up as the gauge of Philadelphia wit, and carries the meroury steadily down in the bulb.

Nine Would Take Out The Bung. The Senate passed the dependent pen-sion bill by a strong vote ; and by a stronger vote declined to add to it a proposition to remove the limitation on the arrears of pensions now granted and make the payment of them commence from the date of the wound or disability; which would result in an expenditure of five or six hundred millions, in big checks of thousands of dollars to cover arrears accruing since the Strange to say, nine Senators voted for this amendment, most of them doubtless for buncombe. Our Quay was one of them; and that delightful crystalization of honesty, John Sherman, was another. Respectable Allison, too, was there, and acidulous Ingalis with Voorhees and Turpie, Democratic Indianians, ready to help the soldiers to all that there is in the public crib.

The little grab of forty or fifty millions that was taken by the bill that was passed to pay pensions to dependent soldiers is not worth fussing about in the presence of the defeat of this more than ten times greater appropriation for the benefit of the soldier voters, and the capture of their purchasable suffrage. All idea of the principles of government are lost in many politicians in their search for votes ; and even the sensible declaration of General Grant, that no able-bodied soldier should draw a pension, fails to convince some legislators that such able-bodied beggars should not be hearkened to.

THERE is a strange rumor published in a

Roman paper and cabled straightway all world that negotiations are in over the progress between the emperor of Austria and the vatican which may lead to the cession of the troublesome Province of Trient to the pope as a residence. The famous old city of Trient or Truent, often promi nent in church history, is at present the see of a bishop and has two Episcopal palaces, four convents and a seminary. If this rumor should prove to be true it may raise a sensation equal to that caused by Prince Bismarck's retirement.

THE people of Johnstown sent five hundred dollars for the relief of the Louisville sufferers. Kindness always pays and calamities usually leave survivors very sympathetic. If lucky old Lancaster should some day get a bad shake from an earth-quake Johnstown would surely strain every nerve to help us.

VAN HOUTEN'S COCOA

"Best and Goes Farthest."

Now that its manufacturers are drawing the attention of the American publie to this first and, ever since its invention, the best of all cocoas, it will soon be appreciated here as well as elsewhere all over the world. All that the manufacturers request is simply one trial, or, still better, a comparative test with whatever other cocoa it may be; then VAN HOUTEN'S COCOA itself will convince everyone of its great superiority. It is because of this that the English paper Health, says : "Once tried, always used."

Wanamaker's. PHILADELPHIA, Tuesday, April 1, 1890. Every day these times is like a Millinery opening here. The new Bonnets and Hats follow each other like the bursting buds of a half acre of mixed roses in June. No two days alike ; new beauties with every sunrise.

In all sorts of Dress Goods there are numbers of patterns and weaves that we control for this market. Of course they are among the choicest. It isn't the common run of stuff that's hard to get. One maker excels in silk weaving, another in wool, another in silk-andwool; this printer puts marvelous pictures on cotton, that on silk, or on wool. Some of blood. the best things can only be had in little quantities -- so few weavers have the wit to make them. Here are three from the Black Goods :

Bismarck's Retirement.

The New York Herald has a cable ory to the effect that Prince Bismarck did not retire of his own motion, but was deliberately forced out by the emperor. He is also reported to have said in reply to an address by the citizens of Dresden that his retirement was not of his own seeking.

A very long and alarming story is made of this simple point, and the impression is given that the chancellor is a senly injured man, the emperor an unrateful master and Germany going seadlong to the dogs. There is no visible occasion for all this, as it is pretty generally recognized that Bismarck was not the kind of man to resign unless under strong pressure, and it does not make much difference whether it came from the emperor, who has always hown the greatest respect for him, or from circumstances which seemed to nake the firm enforcement of his lifelong policy a delicate matter. It apcars that the time was ripe for a change or apparent change of policy, and the old chancellor may have realized that his retirement would make the operation more easy and dignified for the government ; particularly as the young emperor was credited with liberal tendencies. Outside of vague report and the ravings of foreign correspondonts there is no evidence of bad feeling between the chancellor and the emperor, unless the retirement of Count Herbert Bismarck is so considered.

At the Board.

Newspaper men down in Philadelphia seem to take to eating and oratory as naturally as the sparks fly upward. Apparently they are not busily occupied with their professional duties, as they never fail to find time to gather round the festive board. Their particular provocation just now is the appointment of Charles E. Smith, editor of the Press, to the Russian mission; a place that they were rather unkindly reminded by a New York editor had come to be looked upon as the Siberia of Penneylvania politi-Ciabs.

There was too much truth and too little poetry in the suggestion to have made in keenly agreeable to the guest of heoceasion ; but as it has been suggested more or less covertly at nearly all of the perous dinners that have been eaten in his honor, it is possible that he has become as used to it as the cel to being skinned and fails longer to wince under

But the instruction of the experience that the diplomat who is being skiled from his country and does not want folks to know it, would do well to scept of few public dinners, and to scure the exclusion from them of the vine under which the truth is spoken ; and a great deal of trash, too.

In truth, it is a great wonder to us hat newspaper men, who are so wont to core others for folly and to seek to tear be lion's skin from the ass, so habitually em as silly as anybody when they get wether to dine and wine. There was weakness to the square yard of alk at this newspaper men's farewell judge to say that it is a decent son's duty to perjure himself to sustain his mother's charge against his father, that is to make the father infamous? Go to; ye heathen t

The recent reception of the Prince of Wales by the German emperor had a great effect on the aged queen, who is now con-vinced that her son ought to have a chance to play the leading role in England dur-ing the rest of her life, which is certain to short.

The queen's bodily infirmity is increas-ing, and she is so rapidly running to flesh ing, and she is so rapidly running to flesh that massage is necessary to assist her breathing. One strong objection the queen has to abdicating is the contigency of being called ex-queen. She wishes to assume the title of queen regent for the rest of her life. A special bill will be introduced into Parliament when she is willing to resign the actual throne, and the Prince of Wales will be crowned king of England and emperor of India.
