Officers Cramer Stormfeltz also spoke, as did Charles Strickler, of the Morning News, who represented the press and made two speeches, besides delivering a recitation. Officer George Myers, of the Ninth ward, sang "McGinty," and "One of the Fin-est," and Officer Messenkop, of the Seventh ward, sang "Twenty Years Ago."
The supper was a fine affair and the officers remained at the table for about

AN HEIRESS BLACKSMITH. Unable to be With Her Smithy Love

Otherwise Than as Helper. The escapade of Jenny Ladd, the only daughter and heiress of Harris Ladd, of Stephney, Conn., a retired manufacturer, in masquerading at Bridgeport as a blacksmith boy, to be able to be near a low-born lover, is the sensation of the day. Miss Ladd is 18 years old, a brunette and very pretty.

Last summer, at a picnic she met George Hazleton, a journeyman blacksmith of Bridgeport, who was passing himself off as a Yale student. The girl fell in love with him and seeing a chance for a prize, he besieged her and the two became engaged.

besieged her and the two because engages.

The parents objected in vain.

Donning boy's clothes and cutting off her long hair Jenny ran away from home and trudged all the way to Bridgeport, and, after two days hunt, found her lover and after two days hunt.

became his helper, though he, affrighted, entered protest.

The ruse succeeded for two weeks, when Hazleton fell suddenly a victim of pneu-monia and died. The girl was distracted, and the whole story has come out. Satur-day she was kicked by a horse, and the smiths discovered her sex. She has since disappeared, and her repentant father offers a reward for her to return to him.

Mr. Rothermel Chevis, 90 West Fourteenth Street, New York.

DEAR SiR:—I was very much surprised after my kind interview with you and giving you the large amount of information you desired, that you did not call upon me, as promised the next morning as agreed as promised, the next morning, as agreed upon, and still further disappointed that you did not drop me a line why you did not call, or even let me hear from you since. The conversation we had was a matter, to a great extent, of the strictest confidence, and a part of it should be kept secret and not used as I gave it to you. That was about our United States senator. Should you make use of that in connection with my name it would do me a great injury, and if it got to his ears, would be the means of doing your cause a great deal of harm. as promised, the next morning, as ag and if it got to his ears, would be the means of doing your cause a great deal of harm. Consequently my advice to you is to be very careful and not let the matter get any publicity. Hoping to hear from you, I am yours very truly, H. P. CROWELL. Philadelphia, April 1, 1889.

A COLD DAY FOR REPUBLICANS.

Democrats Gain Great Victories in Harrison's Home—Beturns From Other States.

Fuller returns from Monday's election in Indiana show that the Republicans were completely routed throughout the state. Counties that have invariably given Republican majorities went Democratic candidates are elected by 3,000 majority. Two years ago the Republicans carried it by nearly 1,500. Republicans seem to be well satisfied that it means a very strong hint to President Harrison.

City and township elections at Evansville, Ind., resulted in favor of Democratic in every office except township trustee and two justices. The new council stands ten Democrata, two Republicans. Out of eight township trustees in the county, the Republicans elect six, Democrats two.

Russell Harrison's appointment and the Republican party in Montans. Editor Lyman, of the Helena Independent, telegraphs that the election held there on Monday resulted in the choice of a Democratic mayor and seven of the eight aldermen. The city has usually from 400 to 600 Republican majority.

The returns of Monday's charter elec-city has usually from 400 to 000 Republican majority.

The returns of Monday's charter elections, in Michigan, where politics entered into the fight, show heavy Democratic gains. Among the larger places Kalamazoo, Ypsilanti, Munroe and Hillside went Republican; while Lansing, Grand Rapids, Jackson, West Bay City and Muskegon, have gone almost solidiy Democratic.

The first election in Des Moines, Iowa, since the annexation of two suburban districts, was held Monday. The returns indicate the election of the entire Republican ticket by 500 majority. At Keokuk the Democrate elected the assessor and four aldermen. The Republicans secured two aldermen.

The municipal election in Toledo, O., gives the city a Democratic common council and a Republican board of aldermen, with a Republican majority of one on joint

The charter election was held in Albany, N. Y., on Tuesday. Hon. James H. Manning, managing editor of the Albany Argus, the Democratic candidate for mayor, has a the Democratic candidate for mayor, has a majority of 7,245, a Democratic gain on the vote for mayor two years ago of 4,555. The Democrats carry every ward but one for supervisors, and every ward but two for aldermen.

The charter election in Jersey City on

The charter election in Jersey City on Tuesday resulted in another victory for what is termed the "ring" element of the Democracy. Mayor Cleveland has been re-elected by a majority above 1,500. His Republican opponent, George F. Perkins, was heartily supported by his own party and also by the Independent Democrats.

Cranston and Jamestown, Rhode Island, elected Republican representatives on Cranston and Jamestown, Rhode Island, elected Republican representatives or Tuesday. North Smithfield and West Greenwich failed to elect. Under the statute the present representative holds over, but an effort will be made to hold another town meeting. If the sitting representative holds over the Legislature will stand: Republicans 52, Democrats 47, with nine to be elected from Providence. The Republicans will then only need to elect two to control the grand committee.

He claims that he is merely the counsel. It has been known for a good while past that E. K. Martin, esq., has been anxious to secure a paper in which he could have his say. Especially has this been the case since he became a candidate for lieutenant governor. He is said to have been writing editorials for the News for some time past and is charged with being the author of those which so fiercely attacked Thomas B. Cochran and others who are opposing him. It has been understood that the Quay people here, of whom Mr. Martin is looked upon as the leader, have not been satisfied entirely with the New Era, and Mr. Martin does not think it can be depended upon as a Quay organ. of false pretense. L. H. Campbell appeared as the prosecutor. "He knew that the discovery had been made, and even came to New York in hopes of arranging the matter. Although Bartholomew had threate o give the sheriff trouble and fight to the ast he walked to the scaffold quietly and with a firm step. His last words were mixed with violent oaths and blasphemou

Immediately after Bartholomew had been pronounced dead, the body was attired in a black suit, placed in a coffin and sent to the home of his family at Weaversville, where the funeral will take place next Sunday. Bartholo mew behaved well during the morning, but refused to dress or to eat or to join the ministers in prayer. Their Crimes. Their Crimes.

The crime for which William H. Barthelomew was hanged was a most cruel one. He led astray Aaron W. Dilliard's wife and finally plotted with her for the killing of the man who stood between them. Dilliard was enticed from his house near Beersville and shot by Barthelomew. Mrs. Dilliard is confined for life in the Eastern resultentiary.

Eastern penitentiary.

Alfred Andrews killed Clara Price near Karthaus, Centre county, last November. He was a native of England and when aged districts of Pennsylvania, and mandered up his abode in Brisbin, Clearfield county. On November 25 Andrews left his wife and little child at Brisbin and started on a tour, according to his published confession, with the sole object of robbing and plundering as opportunity would offer. On Wednesday morning he caught sight of a comely young girl with a basket on her arm, wending her way homeward in the direction of Karthaus. He overtook her and spoke to her and then hurried on until he came to a curve in the road. Thence he retraced his steps, met her and attempted familiarities with her, which caused her to scream. Fearing that he might get himself into serious difficulty by so arousing the neighborhood, he pulled out his revolver and shot five times at Clara as he retreated, killing her.

Zachariah Taylor's crime was participation in the murder of William McCausland, an Allegheny City live stock@dealer. On the morning of September 10, 1887, McCausland's body was found lying by the roadside in Greene county.

George W. Clark, Frank Clark, John T. Clark, Frank Clark, sr., James Neff and Zachariah Taylor were arrested and jointly indicted for the murder. The men were said to belong to a gang that had been terrorizing Greene county for years, of which George Clark was the ringlesder. George Clark was first tried and convicted, and on February 28th he was hanged. The trial of the others implicated followed the conviction of Clark, and three more were held responsible for the crime, Benjamin Clark, whose partial confession was used against the term. The remainder of those arrested were released from custody as the evidence against these was red strong enough to secure conleased from custody as the evidence against them was not strong enough to secure conviction. James Neff secured a new trial, and a change of venue to Washington county. This resulted in his being acquitted. Ben Clark will be tried in June. Mary Clark, a 16-year-old-girl, who was arrested for complicity in the murder, was released in order that she might be used as a times. Zach and George Clark were a witness. Zach and George Clark were brother-in-laws. Charles Carter was the murderer of John Matthews, also colored. The crime was committed on November 6th last, in Johns committed on November 6th last, in Johnstown. Carter was a frequenter of places of low character, and while in the house of Mrs. Ann Roberts he became involved in a fight with Matthews over Emma Dunn, a white girl. Carter drew his revolver and shot Matthews twice, wounding him so hadly that he died next day. Carter escaped but was arrested in Harrisburg a week later.

Bartholomew's Actions on Tuesday. Staring death in the face without a tremor, and bidding it, in language befouled with oaths, to come if it dared, William H. Bartholomew, who was hanged in Easton for the murder of Aaron Washington Dilliard, acted, outstreaments on These on Dilliard, acted outrageously on Tue day.

There was an opinion expressed by the prison officials that the man would make a confession. This idea, caused by the restless condition of the dastardly assassin on Monday night, was very soon dispelled.

As the morning light, darkened by the rainy weather, shone through the two As the morning light, an account rainy weather, shone through the two small round windows into his cell Bartholomew moaned and cursed the world. He told his guard that he had seen Mrs. Dilliard, his paramour, in a vision, and that she had again declared she would that she had again declared she would be seen to be seen to be seen the same after his neck had been that she had again declared she would leave the prison after his neck had been broken.

Flying into a passion, Bartholomew made the walls of the prison ring with horrible eaths in Pennsylvania Dutch, blaspheming his creator and heaping the most pheming his creator and heaping the most vindictive language on the prison officials. In spite of the fact that he was peremp-torily rejected by the murderer from the cell a short time ago Rev. O. D. Bartholo-mew called on his villainous namesake in the afternoon to make a last and despe-rate attempt to save the man's soul. rate attempt to save the man's soul.

words, to wring a confession from the murderer, but failed utterly.

Late in the afternoon his two daughters, his son-in-law and graudchildren visited Bartholomew. When the time arrived for the departure of the visitors, after be had laughed and chatted with them, he kissed each of them seven times. As Bartholomew socompanied them to his cell door he yelied with an cath: "I will fight them to the last minute, and they can't get me out without crippling me. I shall be killed before I shall be hanged."
