LANCASTER, PA., April 11, 1890.

Doylestown has furnished a remark. able type of the confidence man. Law-yer Shellenberger was a leading citizen, with a lucrative law practice, and a disposition to borrow money from any one who wanted to lend, and to spend it as though it was his own. Shellenberger bought everything that was best, and lived in the most elegant mansion in the town. Everything was first class about Mr. Shellenberger, including his reputation and credit. He was a member of many boards, including the board of public charities; to whose care some of those he left behind him are likely to fall.

For Mr. Shellenberger has gone. His glory has departed. He came to the end of his financial string and has sought other scenes. The process of borrowing from Peter to pay Paul was exemplified in its fullest extent by his practice, but the time came, as usual, when the Peters turned up too slowly for the Pauls, and the game stopped. Doylestown was not a big enough field for its perpetual practice. Its population and cash failed to meet the needs of its enterprising financier.

Mr. Shellenberger's career teaches a lesson which is often taught and which will forever fail to impress itself upon the confiding. We once heard a bishop declaim against the opinion that the wise man could not trust his fellows' word; but the merciless way in which those who incline to such confidence are shorn by the world's Shellenberger's is a sufficient caution to the most plous of men to have something besides faith as the guardian of their treasure. Cash is a very slippery commodity and needs to be securely anchored to be found when wanted. There is nothing so wholesome as a mortgage or Judgment to secure the promise of a borrower; and it is putting a great strain upon the integrity of a man to place him in a position where his plain note will command all the cash he wants. Our good Mennonite farmers, it is true, have long had this practice among themselves; and it has worked very well indeed in their community. The bonds of the society association have proved as good as mortgage bonds. But when borrowers are not held under such surveillance and restraint they need a large endowment of integrity to make them trusty borrowers. It it not good for them to be trusted too much. It is better for them as well as for the lender, to make no severe draft upon their integrity but to buttress their notes with things of material value.

All of which experience teaches, if the churches do not. hawyer Shellenberger would doubtless still have been a respected citizen of Doylestown, if such breaks had been put upon his boreans. Doubtless he did not originally intend to defraud anyone. He simply had use for more money than he had, and borrowed it as he could borrow it easily. He was a victim of the confidence of his fellowcitizens, as they were victims of the same generally happy thing. There was too much happiness then in the Shellenberger situation then and too little now. It would have been better If it had been more spread out.

Bribing Farmers.

Inspired by an article in the New York Tribune our contemporary the New Era editorially commends the Mc-Kinley tariff bill to the farmers and urges them to write to the chairman of the ways and means committee and adplayed the passage of the bill. Every and base. Got pathetically to send a letter catcher from Reentative in Congress to give on with Lebaro the proposed schedule."Do Everybody butan, let no one neglect this, that the Athletic aut !" shouts the New Era it will keep they of fear that a Republican series from the may refuse to sanction a tion. The e for the taxation of potatoes and ally, and r necessaries of life. It reprints the them fribune list of agricultural articles affected by the bill giving the present and proposed duties and seeming to make a very liberal bid for the support of the farmers. But as the Philadelphia Telegraph points out in an article which we republish, this tax is a two-edged sword and by thus increasing the cost of food they add to the price of the things they buy. If the value of farm products imported in a year is seventy-five mil-lions, as claimed, that figure ought not to excite alarm, as its effect depends upon its proportion to the whole value of farm products throughout the United States, and this is simply so vast as to be beyond estimate. And, further, the importation must chiefly find sale in the great cities of the scaboard, where thousands toil in the most abject poverty who would severely feel the proposed tax. The effect might be to encourage truck patches in the waste lands of Jersey, but the great staple crops from which the average farmer makes his living can not be protected because they are not imported but exported. And surely agriculture is not an infant industry that it needs any pap of this kind. At fairs and grangers' meetings we hear that it is as old as the human race and the sturdy foundation pillar of every thriving state. In it all national prosperity must have its source, and from it the fresh and vigorous blood of national life is drawn. It languishes because of the narrow policy that chains down our commercial development to the home market and will not permit us to send abroad the surplus products of our factories as well as our surplus corn and wheat.

Tae Prothonotary's Office.

We print elsewhere a communication from Prothonotary Mentzer concerning the use of his office by a Washington pension agency. We understand that the fact is not disputed that the prothonotary's office is used, as we stated, by this agency, which advertised in the news-papers that it would meet there at a certain date those desiring its services. Mr. Mentzer states that this party has a partner resident and doing business in Lancaster, and that he made no charge for their use of the prothono-

We assumed that the prothor was paid for the use of the room b was paid for the use of the room because we did not suppose that he would allow a business firm to advertise and use his office as theirs without compensation. We understand now that no compensation is received by the prothonotary save his fees for taking the affidavits. But we do not withdraw our avenution to the do not withdraw our exception to the propriety of permitting a public office to be advertised as the office at which a pension atterney will meet his clients; and the fact that the Washington atorney has a Lancaster associate only makes it the more unnecessary that the prothonotary's office, rather than the associate's office, should be made his place for doing his business. The only legitimate use he had for the prothono-tary's office was to go there to have his Midavita taken

A BERLIN dispatch of very sensational appearance represents the young emperor of Germany traveling around with a ping in his right ear, made necessary by the ravages of the scrofulous affection from which he suffers. It is said that high medical authorities give him only ten years of ical authorities give him only ten years of life or sanity at the most. Well, a good deal can happen in ten years, and it has often been shown that medical authorities make mistakes. Meanwhile notice that this supposed sick man is pushing a demand for a military credit of more than ten million dollars, that he is shaking up the English in Africa and agitating all Europe over the labor question, while, in spite of the socialist successes in the elec-tions and the retirement of Prince Bis-marck, his empire seems to be firmly if not

In a volume of consular reports, just issued, there is an exhaustive article on the sugar beet industry of Bohemia, and which is avowedly written with the purpose of showing that a similar industry can be profitably established in this country, and on the Atlantic as well as the Pacific slope, although the sea coast is not warm and sunny enough for it. The cultivation of the beet, the best soil and climate, and the method of sugar-making, are all practically and clearly described; it looks easy enough on paper.

Consul WEBS, of Manila, Phillipine Islands, reports that there is now in procountry an earthquake proof church. The danger that a lofty building might any day be shaken down has not encouraged ambitious architecture in that thrifty colony of Spain, and the churches are all modest one-story houses, but an engineer, rejoicing in the name of Don Genero Palacios y Guerra, conceived the ides of making a church of wrought and cast iron, securely bolted together, and no more to be shaken apart by a subterranean disturbance than a solid block of granite. The design provides for two tall steeples and a number of shorter spires, and over the transept there is a tower a hundred and fourteen feet high. The inside measurement of this fron church is one hundred and sixty-two by seventy feet, and the height to the top of the gothic-arched ceiling is fifty-two feet. The walls are of double plate iron with a space of thirty inches between the plates, and the decorative work is very elaborate in cast iron. There are sixteen hundred tons of iron in the building, all of which was shipped to this far away land on the eastern edge of the China sea from Brussels, Belgium. It will cost about three hundred and fifty thousand dollars, and a Catholic brother-bood is building it. Although the man with the Spanish name is credited with the idea, an English architect, known as Frederico H. Sawyer, esq., has actual charge of the work, which is nearly finished. It will be painted to resemble stone.

THE case of Private Wild, made much rowing propensities as would have suf-ficed to induce him to live within his papers, has come to an end after an open of by several Western and Eastern newsand fair trial by court-martial, in which it was shown that that the private was a worthless fellow who was noted for time passed in the guard house, boasted that e made trouble wherever he went and reloiced in his newspaper notoriety. He even declared that he would make money by exhibiting himself in a dime museum after the trial. Lieutenant Steele, on the other hand, who was court-martialed for knocking him down when he insolently refused to obey orders, was shown to have earned the respect of officers, and men as a kind, considerate and exemplary officer. His counsel offered to call the whole regiment to testify for him. His breach of discipline in a moment of natural anger could not, however, be overlooked, and he was sentenced to be reprimanded, and to be confined within the limits of his post for three months. It had been shown that in acting as judge advocate of the court that tried Wild for disobedience he was not to blame, as he had endeavored to have the man tried by another court. In this connection it may be observed that the findings of courts-martial are so often set aside by the president that the officers of the army are in some measure relieved of responsibility for any laxity of discipline.

CODDLING THE FARMERS. The Mockery of Proposed Protection to

The Mockery of Proposed Protection to Farmers Exposed.

From the Philadelphia Telegraph, Ind. Rep. So the McKinley bill is to be known as the "farmers' tariff." The credit for this is broadly taken by the New York Tribane on Wednesday, which proudly calls attention to the fact that the agricultural part of this bill was prepared as the result of its special investigation of alleged agricultural depression. The manner of bringing this about was peculiar, yet quite characteristic. Thousands of letters were received by that paper in response to its inquiries, then depression. The manner of bringing this about was peculiar, yet quite characteristic. Thousands of letters were received by that paper in response to its inquiries, then "submitted to a committee," who, after a year's work of examination and compilation, recommended united effort for an advance in duties on various articles, nearly all of which appear in the present tariff bill. Our contemporary now proceeds to publish, under the suggestive heading, "What Republicans Propose," the list of agricultural articles referred to, with present daties and the proposed increase. The country is already familiar in a general way with the nature of this proposition. The leading articles in the list are barley, potatoes, onions, cabbages, hay, hops, beans, peas, poultry, sugar, tobacco, wool, flax and cattle. On most of these articles the proposed increase of duties runs from 25 to 200 per cent.—barley, for instance, being increased from 10 cents a bushel to 30 cents; potatoes, from 15 cents to 25 cents; hay, from $2 to $4 per ton; hops, 8 cents to 15 cents; tobacco, $1 to $2.75. This looks like a tremendous bid, to be sure, yet what will it amount to?

It is stated that during the last fiscal year the value of farm products imported was upwards of $75,000,000. That seems to be a considerable sum, yet it is a very small amount compared with the gross output of the farms of America. And now suppose that under the new tariff all that $75,000,000 is saved to the farmers, out of whose pocket will it come? With potatoes, beans, barley, onions and cabbage, for instance, all increased in price in every great Eastern city and town, who will feel the burden of this change? Manifestly those least able to bear it—the very poorest classes, those who are to-day scarcely able to keep body and soul together on the miscrable wages they receive. But will the farmers be benefited? While they may get a firiff more for their potatoes, hay, onions, etc., they will have to pay more for every pound of iron in their machinery. The price of their ca community. In fact, they will not be one whit better off at the end of the year. They may have this $75,000,000 distributed among them, but they will have paid out more than that in the increased cost of their living and sperating expenses.

That's just the way this new scheme for coddling the farmers will work. And in the meantime millions of workingmen throughout the country will have been taxed on their wearing apparel and essential articles of daily food. It is greatly to be feared that this farmers' tariff racket won't work. It may deceive the agriculturists for a time, but not for a great while. As a class they may be fooled once; as Lincoln said, some of them may be fooled all the time, but all of them cannot be fooled all the time, but all of them cannot be fooled all the time. And when they awake to a realization of the facts the heavy hand of their displeasure will fall at the ballot-box on those responsible for the needless deception. The more the McKinley bill is examined the more clearly it is seen to be the work of political tricksters; the more certain it is to be shown as not based upon wise and enduring principles of national prosperity. It is a one-sided, narrow-minded, partiasn, vote-estehing, double-ended affair, that may for a time catch voters at both ends, but in a little while it will lose more than is gained thereby. The Republican party naver yet succeeded in that sort of business. It does not deserve to and it never will.

A DUEL WITH A BURGLAR. A Grocer Pinds a Burglar in His House.

A Grocer Finds a Burgiar in His House.

Both Mortally Wounded.

An attempt to rob the residence of George B. Grimes, a prominent Des Moines, Ia., grocer, at an early hour on Wednesday morning, resulted in the mortal wounding of the burgiar, the loss of an eye by Mr. Grimes, and injuries which may cost him his life. Entrance to the house was made by cutting glass in the front window and turning the catch. Going up to the servant's room he asked the girl if she was awake. Receiving a reply he warned her to remain quiet, under penalty of death. He made so much noise searching bureau drawers and trunks that Mr. Grimes, who was sleeping on the floor below, awoke and started up stairs, revolver in hand. He soon discovered the burgiar, and six shots were exchanged at short range in the dark. Two hit the burgiar. Grimes was shot at four times, and one of the bullets struck him in the right side of the face, tearing out his eye and lodging in the brain. The burglar escaped, but was found in the cellarway of a house a block north of the shooting, with a bullet in his breast and very weak from loss of blood. He gave his name as James Queen, and his home at Minneapolis, but it is known that about five weeks ago he was released from Fort Madison penitentiary, where he had been sent for a similar offense.
