CONSTABLES INSTRUCTED.

JUDGE LIVINGSTON TELLS THEM THEIR DU TIES AND NOW TO PERFORM THEM.

The Court Hules That Constables Elected in 1890 Are the Legally Chosen Offolals-109 Cases on the Trial List.

The April court of quarter sessions was opened at 10 o'clock this morning with Judge Livingstons presiding. There are on the list for trial 190 cases, of which 174 were returned and filed in the office of the clerk of the quarter sessions since the January There are 45 prisoners in jail awaiting trial. L. C. Oberlin, West Hempfield, was ap-pointed foreman of the grand jury. Judge Livingston instructed the jury as to a proper discharge of their duties, after which they retired to their room to act upon the indictments sent to them by the district attorney. The constables of the several districts in the constables their upon quarterly rethe county made their usual quarterly re-turns. There were only a few violations of law returned by the constables.

THE CONSTANTS INSTRUCTED. The constables elected in 1990 were as-signed the sents usually occupied by the grand jurors so that they could together receive the instructions of the court.

Judge Livingston in beginning his talk and that owing to some error or mistake in the construction of the law of 1887, as to constables, there were no elections held for constable in a number of the districts of the county." Our construction of the act is hat constables elected in 1889 were chosen for one year only. Where no elections were held in 1800 there are vacancies which will be filled on Saturday, and in filling the vacancies preferences will be given to the constables elected in 1889, if they are proper persons for the office. Constables elected where there were no notices posted for the ion of that officer will have to present their petitions on Saturday." To those ed in 1800 the court said it was proper to say a few words as to their duties, an as they were elected for three years it was proper they should learn the duties of the office. "There are many things that con-" There are many things that constables do not understand, and in many instances they do not do their duty.

"It is necessary at all times for a constable to be a sober man, good tempered, peace-ful and able to coatrol his temper at all times and under all circumstances. All the laws relating to your office should be promptly executed without fear, favor or affection, and when constables do not do their duty, become recreant to their trust, violate their oaths and are not worthy of the confidence imposed on them.

The laws of Pennsylvania make it neces mary for constables to be present at all general elections. Their duties at elections were discussed at length.

The court next referred to the law in ce to wagers on elections and told constables it was their duty to come proceedings against all persons wh wager, so that the penalty prescribed, three times the amount wagered, can be recovered from the offending party. greenman, Governor and Director of the Mint. James Pollock, sz-governor of Pennsyl-vania, who died in Lock Haven en Batur-day, was born in the borough of Milton, Northumberland county. Pennsylvania, September 11, 1810. His father died when the future governor was but seven years old, leaving his widow with four sone and three daughters. James was the youngest son, and his early training was from his mother, who lived to ase her son fameus. He passed his early youth at private schools, is which he was fitted for college. He entered the junior class at Prinosfon and graduated with the highest honors of his class in September, 1831. He immedi-native town, with Samuel Hepburn, and was admitted to the har of Northumber-ind county in November, 1833. In the following April he opcoed a law office in Milton, and entered upon a successful legal carser. He was appointed district attorney of Northumberland county for 1835. Two years afterwards he married Sarah Ann, the daughter of his is preceptor, and had apparently sottled down to a permanent iaw practice.

the daughter of his law preceptor, and had apparently settled down to a permanent law practice. His real career, however, was to be a public one, for which he in some measure prepared himself by an active participation in politics. A Whig, living in a Democratic county and congressional district, there did not seem to be much chance for his po-litical advancement, but so great was his personal popularity that when given the Whig nomination for Congress in 1844 in the Thirteenth congressional district he was elected by a good majority and twice re-elected, serving in the Twenty-eighth, Twenty-ninth and Thirtieth Congresses, He was a member of the committee on claims during his first term and of the committee on territories during the second Stephen A. Douglas being one of his col-leagues. During his last term he was a member of the committee on ways and means, which was compelled to provide for the expenses of the Maxican war which had but just closed. During Al 1948, Mr. Pollock offered a resolution for the appointment of a special committee to inquire into the necessity and expedience of constructing a railroad to the Pacific coast, the United States hav-ing acquired California by the war. As chairman of the committee he made a re-port favoring the building of such a road, the first official recommendation of a pro-ject which was destined to be successfully completed within a period of a little more than 20 years. So thoroughly was Mr. Pollock imbund with the idea that the nead could and would be built that in an address delivered at Lowisburg that year he said :

he said: "At the risk of being considered insane I will venture the prediction that in less than 25 years from this evening a railroad will be completed and in operation be-tween New York and San Francisco, Cal., that a line of steamships will be established between San Francisco, Japan and China, and there are now in my audience ladies who will, before the expiration of the period named, drink tes brought from China and Japan by this route to their own doors."

The many friends of George W. Huff-nagle, night begage master at the Penn-sylvania railroad passenger station, were pained and shocked to learn of his very sudden death which occurred in the station shortly before three o'clock on Sunday morning. The man dropped over and must have died almost instantly. No one saw him fall, as the summons came very oulckly.

He did his usual work at the station and joked with the people around, as was his custom. When the 2:20 train, which was about ten minutes late, came in Mr. Huff-nagle helped F. D. The company carries quite a large lot of baggage, scenery, &c., and the men were about eight minutes loading it. Although Mr. Huffnagle assisted, he did not have anything to do that would cause him to over exert himself. Means. Huffnagle and Steinhauser have for several years been carrying the mail between the Pennaylvanis railroad station and the postoffice When the train pulled out Mr. Steinhause sorted the mail and spoke to Mr. Haffnagle at the door of the ladies' room, into which the latter went to see what time it was. Steinhauser placed the mail on a truck and started to the postoffice, after he had given Mr. Huffnagle a tie sack. The latter went at once to the baggage room where he was seen a few moments afterwards by Leibfried, who went to the room for his lamp and spoke to him. Mr. Steinhauser was not gone much over five minutes, and when he returned to the station he went at once to the baggage room. The door of the partition was open and when Steinhauser entered it he was surprised to see a man lying on the floor on his back in the rear of the room, and almost immediately in front of the desk which the baggagemaster uses. He saw at once that it was Mr. Huffnagle as the letters which he had just taken from the train and his cap were lying beside him on the floor. thought that the man had fainted but a closer examination showed him that some thing much more serious was the trouble He quickly unbuttoned Mr. Huffnagle's collar and rubbed his face. He called in Railroad Officer Roy and also sent for Dr. Albright, who lives near by and was Mr. Huffnagie's family physician. It was too late, however, for any hope, as the man was already dead. When the doctor arrived he pronounced the cause of his death heart disease. For a couple of weeks Huffnagle had been complaining of neural gis caused by two teeth that he had had pulled. The physician said that he was subject to something like heart disease. Coroner Honaman was notified and he summoned a jury consisting of Frank Wiegand, Edward Gaston, Edward Cald-well, Frederick Fisher, John Roy and Harry Young. They rendered a verdict of death from heart disease and the body was then taken to the home of the deceased, on

CHICAGO, April 21.-The trouble in the Illinois conference of the Evangelical asso-ciation, which resulted in the division of the conference last week into two sections, culminated yesterday in the forcible ejec-tion of a minister from the Humboldt Park

The Wisconsin conference had appointed The Wisconsin conference had appointed Rev. John Vetter for this church and the Sheffield Avenue conference licensed Rev. A. Heilman. Rev. Mr. Morelich was to preach his farewell eermon and Rev. Heil-man was assisting in the services when Rev. Mr. Vetter demanded their authority. Immediately a number of the congregation leaped from their seats and seized Mr. Vetter. The confusion and uproar was made worse by the rush of women and made worse by the rush of women and children for the door, Mr. Vetter a friends shricking: "They are killing our preacher," while his opponents yelled "Naus mit ihm !"

At Naperville, Ills., the German and English branches of the Evangelical church were in a dilemma yesterday. The two conferences recently held in Chicago both sent a minister to each church and yesterday oach minister attempted to perform his day each minister attempted to perform his duty. In the German church the minister of the anti-Eaber faction, Rev. Mr. Fry, obtained possession of the pulpit. Rev. Mr. Schmootz, the minister of the Eaber fac-tion, then called out his followers and held service in the basement, while Rev. Fry preached in the church above. In the English church the Eaber faction held pos-session of the church, while the anti-Esber faction held service in a hall.

DESTROYED BY FIRE.

An Old and Well Known Hotel in Dru-more Burned. The old hotel at Spring Grove, Drumore township, about two miles south of Quarryville, was destroyed by fire on Sunday night. It was about 12 o'clock when the fire was discovered, but it is supposed to have been burning for some time before that. There was no way to extinguish or check the fismes, and the hotel and dwelling, which was all together, was totally destroyed, all that was left of it being the walls. The building was of stone, but it was rather dilapidated. In years gone by it was one of the best known and most monitor botch in the county. Manual Manual popular hotels in the county. The men have been receiving $10 per week for their work, and they wanted ber week tor thair work, and they wanted it increased to $12. They called upon Mr. Kelper, the manager of the shops. He finally agreed to pay them $12, pro-vided they would allow a reduction for work which did not come out of the moulds all right. The men would not agree to this, as they said if they would allow such reductions they would not re-ceive as much for their labor as before at $10. It was also impossible to do the work perfectly at all times. The company re-fused to give $12 without any reductions, and the men said they would not work. keepers of the same, seize the apparatus used for gambling and report the same to the court. They were also instructed as to their duties in dealing with bawdy, tippling and disorderly houses. The sections of the Brooks high license law defining the duties of constables were read and commented upon. The court called attention to the severe penalties prescribed for failure of constables to per-form the duties of this act, which are a suspension from office, and upon conviction for negligent or fraudulently making a false return, the penalty is a fine of $1,000, or imprisonment for two years. In commenting on the penalty prescribed the court said there was a reason why the provisions should be enforced. Licensed landlords pay a high price for the privilege of engaging in the liquor business and they have a right to protection, and it is the duty of the constable to protect the licensed landlord by reporting persons who violate the law and the court will expect the constables to do their duty.

In conclusion the tramp law was referred to and the constables told what their duty was as to this class of vagabonds who are tramping over the county living by beg-ging and stealing and willing to do any-thing but work.

of the canal system of the state, a reduction of the debt of the state of about $10,000,000, and the passage of a series of acts that gave Pennsylvania a vigorous and efficient school system. In the fall of 1857 the finan-cial crisis led to the calling of the Legisla-ture in special session to legalize the sus-pension of specie payments for a limited term, thus saving the banks of the state from a ruinous crash. Governor Pollock retired from the governorship with the re-spect of the people regardless of party. In his message to the Legislature while governor, he advocated what afterwards became the platform of the Republican party, holding that, while slavery could not be constitutionally disturbed in the states where it then existed, it should not be ex-tended to the territories. Upon the forma-tion of the Republican party, therefore, it was but natural that Governor Pollock should ally himself with it. He was con-servative, however, and was selected by the friends of peace and reconciliation to repre-sent Pennsylvania in the peace conference which met in Washington during the winter of 1861 and adopted the Crittenden compromise, resolutions which Congress failed to accept, owing to the wide diver-gence between the members from the two sections.

He seems to think that whenever he takes a drink he must become gloriously drunk. When in that condition he act like a madman or flend. Saturday afternoon he was drinking hard and he appeared on North Queen street. He had another bootblack ahine his shoes. He left the Hiester house corner, saying that he intended to go to the house of John Remick, in Kinzler's court, who is married to his sister, and make trouble. He said that he was not treated right by Remick, whom he charged with stealing money from his pocket. He was as good as his word, and went at once to the house of Remick who, with his wife, was at home. Doster threw a belgian block through the window, smashing out several of the panes and then went inside. He grabbed up chairs, tables and other pieces of furniture which he promptly broke to pieces. He ran at his mister with a big stone and threatened to kill her. With a fire shovel he attempted to injure Remick. He was gotten out of the house and like an enraged buil he acted. He took possession of the whole court, and, as he had a brick in one hand and a fire shovel in the other, people became afraid to go near him. Police were finally sent for and Officers Frank Kautz and Ehler went to the place. They took hold of Doster, but he resisted, and began kicking and biting and in other ways acting badly. Kautz at last struck him a blow, which served him right, and brought him to his senses. He was finally landed in the station house, where he continued to act badly for some time. This morning the mayor sent him to jail for 30 days. Before Alderman Deer Remick made complaint, charging Doster with felonious assault, malicious mischief

Emmet, jr. who is also his manager, had him placed in Manhattan hospital on Saturday even ing. The famous actor has another cause for trouble, however, that is worse than his drinking. On Saturday his wife, to whom he was married twenty-seven years ago, had papers for a divorce served upon him. She claims that he has been too intimate with Miss Maude White, his leading lady. At Hammerstein's opera house, in Harlem, where Emmet was last week, there was an excitement Saturday night. Miss White was forcibly put off the stage by young Emmet, who compelled her to go to the hotel. For a time it locked as though father and son would come to blows, but the former finally agreed to go to the hospital. He says he will appear to-night and Miss White will be with him. Both deny the charges against them. The woman says she remained close to Emmet last

John Rhodes, a well known farmer liv-ing near Greencastle, Pa., shot and in-stantly killed his nephew, William W. Rhodes, Saturday evening, during a quarrel on the farm of the former. The uncle taunted the nephew about the latter's crip-pled son, and the young man threatened to shoot him. Rhodes then stepped into the house, got his gun and fired at his nephew, who was standing only six feet away. The load struck the young man fair in the fore-head and blew the whole top of his head off. The uncle gave himself up, and is now in jail in Chambersburg. The terribly mangled body of a young man was found on a railroad near Pitts-burg. It was taken to the morgue, and Dr. J. L. Evans, of Johnstown, identified it as his son's. After giving directions for the shipment of the body, Dr. Evans went to visit a friend in the South Side. He had scarcely seated himself in his friend's house when in walked his missing son, whom, leas than a half hour previously, he had so positively identified in the morgue. Exclamations, explanations and embraces followed quickly. Dr. Evans and his son hastily went to the morgue and explained that the dead man was not known to them, but offered to see that the body of the un-fortunate unknown was decently interred. but offered to see that the body of the un fortunate unknown was decently interred

There is no doubt that the fire was the work of an incendiary, as no fire of any kind was used about the building. It was owned by Mrs. Maria Metsger, of Quarry ville, and the insurance was $900, in the Southern Mutual company.

BAD TOWN BOYS.

They Run on the Farmers' Land an Do Great Damage. John Landis is a farmer who lives nea

Oreville, and he complains greatly of the manner in which he is annoyed by mer and boys from this city, who run over his farm, break down his fences and do other damage. On Friday a number of them with guns, went to Mr. Landis' barn and shot his pigeons from the roof, carrying them off. Mr. Landis belongs to a religious sect that does not care to go to law, an the offenders seem to know this. The o gentleman has now decided to punish the offenders if possible. He sent for Constable Kline on Saturday and that officer is look-ing for the boys. Mr. Landis has secured another constable to stay on his farm for a week. A number of other farmers in different parts of the county complain of the conduct of this class of men, and it is th principal reason why respectable gunners who desire to go out for a little sport are refused permission to go upon farn s,
