look at himself he would agree that the artistic effect would be better without him. As it appears to be necessary to introduce the man as an excuse for the statue it might be better to have him stand near the head of his impatient steed as a kind of animated hitching post.

A Court Martial.

The naval court-martial upon Commander McCalla, which is about assembling, seems to be a very unnecessary performance after the full investigation made into the accusations against him by the court of inquiry recently held.

The pole planting corporations must be surprised to find that their own earth without paying taxes. Their tax is a pole tax, not a poll tax.

The Vegetarian Society, of America, seems to be a very interesting organization for its monthly organ, "Food," are published acknowledgments of over a thousand dollars, received as donations, membership fees, &c., during the month.

The army and the navy, officers and men are suffering from having nothing to do in the proper line of their profession. The officers are rusting from it.

The New York World editorially states that after a thorough investigation it is satisfied that Mr. Cleveland did not say about Mr. Dana, and his name, what is published, but that he said only "the first fourteen lines of the remarks attributed to him."

Half-breeders May Strike on Tuesday. The railroad difficulties in Pittsburgh are still unsettled. It has been decided to order a strike of 6 o'clock next Tuesday evening.

Statues, Horses and Plug Hats. This is a monumental Congress. Schemes for monuments of all sorts are making in for Uncle Sam's spare cash.

The Pittsburg Dispatch publishes a four column story of the effect that Wilkes Booth, the assassin, was not shot and may still be alive, and the sensation is based on an interview at Birmingham, Alabama, with Louise Forester, his confidential friend.

The magazine vigorously advocates the total abandonment of flesh food. Dr. Tanner, the forty day faster, is one of their big guns and is taking to lecturing on vegetarianism.

Wanamaker's.

PHILADELPHIA, Monday, April 21, 1890. Hundreds of Thousands, possibly Millions, of Rugs—Smyrna Rugs in the trade—have been made in Philadelphia, but the first real Turkish Rug ever made in this city is just begun by Muggerditch Pushmanian, an Armenian from the village of Diarbekir, in Turkey.

The news of the great Bargains in new French Wool Dress Goods spreads rapidly, and the sale broadens and deepens daily. The price-pull is powerful—never equalled. Let us repeat some of the points:

Quantity—Began with 120,000 yards; less now. Five Prices—25, 30, 35, 40, and 50 cents.

Imported—Every piece fresh from France, mostly from Roubaix. Value—Double the prices asked.

Variety—Many fabrics in various wool patterns. Our country friends can make this chance for Bargains pay the cost of a trip to the city.

"Seven stores visited, and the only complete assortment of Ribbons at Wanamaker's." That's what a very wide-awake lady writes. Just as true of Millinery, trimmed and untrimmed and of all the flood of flowery fixings.

If these Women's Convent-Hem stitched Handkerchiefs were laundered they'd equal any we know of at twice the prices:

12 1/2 doz each, $1.50 a dozen. 12 doz each, $1.50 a dozen. 12 doz each, $1.50 a dozen.

Three other items: English Highborn Handkerchiefs, Dinner Forks, $3 a dozen.
