LANCASTER, PA., May 12, 1890.

Cleveland, Lands and Farmers.

Ex-President Cleveland recently received from the secretary of an Ohio lodge of the Farmers' Alliance a copy of the declaration of purposes of the alliance and an inquiry as to his views thereon. The purposes are expressed with sentimental verbosity, but amount to a statement that the members of the alliance intend to look out for themselves and their children, and favor purity in elections, the suppression of sectional and local prejudices and "education of the agricultural classes in the science of government in a strictly non-partisan spirit."

Mr. Cleveland replied, heartily endorsing the declaration and seized the opportunity to talk to the farmers about the equitable adjustment of the tariff system for their benefit. He pointed out that there is no escape from the conditions which fix the price of what the farmer sells according to the rates of foreign markets. There is enough sterling common sense in the farmers to enable them to appreciate the force of this, supported as it is by the monthly government reports of exports of agricultural products. Even "Statesman" Landis, of this county, has not repeated his awful blunder of a year ago, when he gravely attempted to show how many thousand dollars each farmer of Lancaster had received from the government in the protection afforded by the tariff on grain which is exported and can not be protected.

Mr. Landis and his friends are now prancing around the county talking tariff, and should be questioned further by the farmers on this point. Dispatches to metropolitan papers give the impression that the farmers of this county are rising en masse under the leadership of Messrs. Landis and Reist and shouting hard for the McKinley bill and protection for cabbages and onions. The facts, as seen from this county seat, are not, however, quite so startling. The farmers are busy with their spring work and many of them wonder, as they follow the plow, why they should pay more for things they buy when Uncle Sam cannot help them to get more for what they sell, and when he collects more revenue than can be well spent.

A Fair Field. Kentucky has always been noted for the number of her statesmen. Her blue grass grows to their culture as it does to that of her race horses. That or something else must be the cause of the superiority in the number and quality of her product of statesmen. There are half a dozen candidates for the seat in the Senate vacated by Mr. Beck, all with national reputations and any one of them much better in quality than the average senator. Carlisle, McCreary, Knott, Breckenridge, Buckner and others of state fame, contend for the seat, which, once awarded, is given for life and good behavior.

Look at Pennsylvania in contrast. Where would the dominant party pick up a half-dozen names of national repute for a senatorial race? Our population is so much greater that we ought to be able to supply a score of good men as readily as Kentucky can furnish a brace. But when our senatorial vacancies occur there is hardly even mention of a name of decent character and weight. Such admirable trash as sit in the senatorial seats of Pennsylvania would not be above the grade of door-keeper by the Kentucky standard of senatorial eligibility.

And Pennsylvania is not much worse than many other states, especially in the North and West. The standard is low north of the old Mason and Dixon line. There is something in the conditions which forbid the best senatorial talent from coming to Pennsylvania. The place is held everywhere as a reward for political skill, but the sort of skill rewarded in this section of the country is not the old-fashioned, perdition sort that still commands the permission in Kentucky. It is the Quay-Wanamaker play with the bag that makes the game here. The purse commands politics and the liveliest collector and the heaviest spender seeks the Senate as the object of his ambition and the equivalent of his cash. So that it is refreshing to see this old-time contest in the Kentucky Legislature between so many distinguished, honorable and capable candidates, no one of whom is floated by the all-wise, all-wise upon their works or services and their friends with the prize. We would that the conditions were such in Pennsylvania that its ablest men could seek the Senate as such a field.

Bury Beaver. It is said that Governor Beaver has not filled the major generalship vacated by the death of Hartranft by the promotion of Brigadier General Snowden to the place, but that he has simply made a temporary appointment, hoping to keep the place open for himself. We are not able to entertain an exalted opinion of Governor Beaver, who is undoubtedly the very smallest pattern of a governor that the state has ever had; and it has had some very small ones; still we are loth to believe that he could be so exceedingly small as to fill this vacant military place for such a long time. But why else is it that he does not make permanent appointments of General Snowden and Colonel Deebert? Does he want to see whether they are fit? or is it simply that he cannot persuade himself to commission them without recall because they are Democrats? He evidently wants to leave the matter open for his successor, but it is very unlikely that any future governor of Pennsylvania will care to decorate Beaver. The peace of the state requires that when his term is over he be buried in Bellefonte or elsewhere, and sealed up.

Well Done. So Richard Vaux, who has been a Democrat of the wood-dyed sort since the memory of man runneth not to the contrary, is to take Mr. Randall's seat in Congress. It is well. He is about the liveliest man that could be had for that job, notwithstanding his years. Mr. Vaux will make an interesting representative. He has a habit of being interesting. He has a great deal of individuality and a great deal of sense, and Democratic councils in Washington will profit by his association. We note that one Republican journal puts him down as a free trader and another as a protectionist, but it may be safely assumed that he is a Democrat all the time and favors the proper tariff for the country's prosperity.

The Democracy of the Third district, as well as that of the city and the state, is to be congratulated upon this safe deliverance. It is so seldom that the Philadelphia Democracy gives us a chance to praise their sense that we seize the occasion early and eagerly, and not without some fear that before nightfall the occasion for it may have been taken away by some act of folly.

A DISPATCH from San Francisco gives the latest advice from Samoa by a steamer just in. The formal signing of the treaty by King Mitaotea was witnessed with interest by a great crowd of natives and foreigners. The next thing to be done is to sign a joint declaration in a letter to the king, declaring that the treaty allowed the Samoans a government under their own king strong enough to prevent further civil war and to afford every security for the welfare of the people. The heaviest cost of this would fall on the order should be a business boom in those noisy little islands, but it may take a little while to prove whether the new government is not too costly and clumsy for use.

These pleasant days bring a distinctly audible howl from residents of the squares paved with asphalt blocks. They say they are dusty and hard to keep clean, but that would be a fault of any smooth pavement.

In his speech in support of his tariff bill on Wednesday Mr. McKinley said that the increase of importations in agricultural products has risen from forty millions in 1850 to two hundred and fifty-eight millions in 1889. This sounds very terrible and encourages the hasty conclusion that the farmer might easily be protected by taxing this huge importation but the total of agricultural imports is chiefly made up of coffee, tea, ivory, sugar and other things not producible by the American farmer, besides sugar, to which little tariff has been shown by the McKinley tariff. Nearly seventy-five million dollars worth of coffee was imported in 1889, more than twelve and a half millions of tea and nearly thirteen millions of foreign fruits.

The charge that McKinley put a duty on eggs to satisfy neighbor Hayes is indignantly denied. Mrs. Kelly, who frequently hangs banners, of her own handwork, upon the soldiers' monument in Centre Square and upon the outer walls of the INTELLIGENCER office, has a rival. Tacked upon the vari-colored and curiously shaped banners are compositions on various subjects, some containing a thousand words. The epics do not differ much in sentiment, and the sentences are on a par with those printed as part of the address made on Sunday by Postmaster General Wanamaker, at the dedication of a Sunday school at the Falls of Schuylkill: "For twenty years, while coming down the old turnpike, near the old gate, an old girl mill has been preaching a sermon to me in its walls are four iron stays shaped like the letter S, and the four S's stand to me for Sabbath, Sanctuary, Scripture and the Saviour."

Geo. Francis Train is much a better traveler than Nolle Bly. George Francis thinks Phineas Fogg a snail in comparison with himself. In "news notes" we publish an account of the furious attack of a cat upon a man, who died from the effects of the biting he received. The incident resembles Dr. Knight's cat fight in St. James' paragon, when the present bishop of Milwaukee nearly lost his life in a desperate struggle with a cat, which he had attempted to eject from his bedroom.

On Saturday the Senate passed one hundred and eighty-five private pension bills in an hour and a half, and the Philadelphia Ledger observes that if Cleveland were still president he would probably find it necessary after examination to veto about one hundred and eighty-four of them. The comment is forcible. Of course President Harrison will rapidly approve them all, the action of both Senate and president being a mere formality when the bills are all stamped with the party approval beforehand.

The Morning News, the proprietors of which are E. G. Smith, B. J. McGrann, Herbert Johnson, E. K. Martin, et al., has been clothed in a new suit of type. The News is improved, and the INTELLIGENCER wishes its young contemporary all the success it is possible to attain.

CLEVELAND TO THE FARMERS. He Writes a Forceful Letter to the Ohio Farmers' Alliance. A few weeks ago J. A. Hill, corresponding secretary of Oak Grove Lodge No. 2, Farmers' Alliance, near Steubenville, O., wrote to ex-President Cleveland, inclosing a copy of the declaration of purposes of the Alliance, and asking for Mr. Cleveland's views thereon. Following was Mr. Cleveland's reply: New York, March 24, 1890—J. A. Hill, Corresponding Secretary, etc.—Dear Sir: I have received your letter accompanied by a copy of the declaration of principles of the Farmers' Alliance. I see nothing in this declaration that cannot be fully indorsed by any man who loves his country, who believes that the object of government should be the freedom, prosperity and happiness of all our people, and who believes that justice and fairness to all are necessary conditions to its useful administration. It has always seemed to me that the farmers of the country were especially interested in the equitable adjustment of our tariff system. Inference they have shown to that question, and the case with which they have been led away from a sober consideration of their needs and their rights, as related to this subject, have excited my surprise. Struggle as they may, our farmers must continue to be purchasers and consumers of numerous things enhanced in cost by tariff regulations which they have the right to say that this cost shall not be increased for the purpose of collecting unnecessary revenue, or to give undue advantage to domestic manufacturers. The plea that our infant industries need the protection which this impoverishes the farmer and consumer is, in view of our natural advantages, a skin and indignity of our people, a hollow pretext. Struggle as they may our farmers cannot escape the conditions which fix the price of what they produce and sell according to the rates which prevail in foreign markets flooded with the competition of countries enjoying freer exchange than we. The presentation of the Alliance's plea of a home market should not deceive our depressed and impoverished agriculturists. There is no home market for them from the seaboard, and the seaboard transmits the word of the foreign markets. Because of our geographical position, a modification of our tariff laws should be principally from an appreciation of the wants of the vast array of consumers, comprising our farmers and our workmen, and because their condition has led me to protect against the present imposition, I am glad to see these sections of my fellow-countrymen turning themselves to the importance of tariff reform.

Ask for VAN HOUTEN'S COCOA—Take no other.

Van Houten's Cocoa is a word which should have no place in any vocabulary. A man must have ability to succeed, and a medical preparation, merit. There is no luck about SOZODONT. It was sure to succeed from the first, because it was good, and did all that was claimed for it.

What We Want. Give Homoeopathic pellets, Allopath in pills; but for rheumatism, for aches, for pains and sprains, Thomas' Electric Oil is infinitely superior to either. It has benefited so many people as it has had purchasers. All druggists sell it. Sold in Lancaster by W. T. Hoeh, 117 and 119 North Queen street.

A Young Girl's Grief at seeing her charms of face and form departing, and her health imperiled by functional irregularities, at her critical period of life, was cured to joy and gratitude after a brief self-treatment with Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It purified and enriched her blood, gave a healthy activity to the kidneys, stomach, bowels and other organs, and her return to robust health speedily followed. It is the only medicine for women, sold by druggists, under a positive guarantee from the manufacturer, that it will give satisfaction in every case, or money will be refunded; This guarantee has been printed on the bottle wrapper, and faithfully carried out for many years. Philadelphia, Monday, May 12, 1890. Ready-made Clothing is on trial here, especially in Men's suits with Prince Albert frock coats, cutaways, and sacks of worsteds, neat ribbed stuffs and Clay weaves, and cloth-faced goods. The prices range from $18 to $30 the suit. There are Trousers here at $5 of fine fancy cassimeres which you can have in lieu of those to match the coats. You make $1.50 on each pair you buy.

Near Thirteenth and Market streets corner. Eighteen big tables heaped with nothing but Untrimmed Hats and Bonnets. That's a fair measure for all our Millinery doings. More kinds, more of a kind than ever before. And the thickest places are not of the styles that nobody wants. For women there are little mountains of the big, straight-rim Leghorns, Milans, and Neapolitan Stripes. For children a dozen shapes that go as "Sailors," and for everybody a myriad of styles with every bulge or brim or dent or twist that the season has suggested.

Made Flowers for trimming by hand or armful. Heliotrope Handkerchiefs have plenty of likers; they chime in so perfectly with some of the favorite dress goods. Four patterns, heliotrope border and centre, 20c.

Another Handkerchief newness is of sheer linen with hem-stitched and tape borders, 6 styles, 12 1/2c.

Only the finest cotton carefully worked gets into the lovely Brandenburgs. Lumpy, knotty thread might do in Oriental imitations (it is apt to be the Oriental way to have them) but a smooth, perfect surface is one of the chiefest Brandenburg graces. On such a cotton the art printer can do his daintiest work. Not even the rarest Sateens outdo the Brandenburgs in beauty of printing. Hardly the stuff you expect to get at 20c a yard!

A large number of exquisite new patterns and colorings have been recently added; among them black figures on white grounds for the first time.

A new Lawn Mower—the Wanamaker. We wouldn't have that name on them if there were any guesswork about the machines. Note the modest prices:

10 inches $5.00

12 inches $5.50

14 inches $6.00

16 inches $6.50

18 inches $7.00

Nothing slighted. As good a Mower as we know of.
