LANCASTER, PA., May 13, 1890.

A Sanitary Certificate. ichard Croker, who is chief of Tam-ny Hall and a very excellent succes-John Kelly who wore himself out that service, was in danger of a like when he took counsel of his friend, Villiam Steinway, and went away to ope to put himself under the care of he celebrated "sanitary counsellor" Wilhelmi. As soon as he had gone away pertain alert enemies of Tammany Hall, bended by an arch scamp known as Villiam H. Grace, who has been ayor of New York city, conspired get the Republican Senate of the the city; which committee appointed one Ives, who is Grace's right hand m, to conduct its inquiry; with the ensequence of a great commotion mong the Tammany people, who held he county offices. The sheriff's office, hich has ever been a rich plum to the party and the faithful henchman who held it, and which was lately held by Mayor Grant, was turned upside down, and finally handed over to General Sickles; after which a savage assault was ade on Grant in his office of mayor. The aring seems to have been all with powder, no evidence of wrong-doing be-ing presented against the mayor, who was Richard Croker's protege and selecn. A brother-in-law of Croker was inally turned up, who has just lost a layern stand in the park, and who in his anger has been ready to swear engeance against the mayor. Worthhas made a sensation ; and cablegrams and letters and newspaper reporters have been seeking out Croker in his re-tirement at Wiesbaden until his health suncillor has been obliged to issue the wing bulletin through the New

Mr. Crocker came here for medical treatment, suffering from pleuritic excudation and a high degree of cerebral neurasthenia, which latter has resulted from long continued and excessive mental exertion. Although under proper treatment the curitic excudation has disappeared, the curathenia absolutely demands that the stient for a long time abstain from every scatal exertion and excitement, otherwise complete cure of the same is impossible.

Dr. WILHELMI, Sanitary Councillor, Wiesbaden, April 28, 1800. We print this statement as interesttimony of the way in which a testimony of the way in the string the string that the string the to illness by his severo mental exerand may then be worried to death the conspiracy of rescally foes and buzzing of newspaper reporters; ad with the further purpose of calling tention to the unfailing habit of the arned—and unlearned—physician, of using his simple commands in amplex words.

This expression of Dr. Wilhelmi is a aratively mild manifestation of the bronic habit, as we can come pretty ar to guessing what he means to say. says directly that Mr. Croker is sufsring from long continued and exces-ively mental exertion. This has procerebral neurasthenia and ritic excudation; and though we do ot know what these diseases are, it is not ential that we shall know, their cause poing quite sufficient to indicate the ne-months of absolute rest to Mr. Croker's sental faculties, which is what the octor enjoins. And he might just well have omitted their mighty ms from his direction; if he did not ant to gratify our curiosity as to the e effort on Mr. Croker's constituon of his excessive mental worry, he ed not have told us what had haped to him; but when he did under te to tell us he might have done it in ords that we can understand without urse to a medical dictionary. The doctor goes to Latin as the sparks y upward. It was so he gathered in his ree, which is in Latin. No earthly challenge ap Latin. If he pre-necessity or any result is a great impression of his ning upon the ignorant patient; but this is a sufficient offset the suspicion that he is a caused his intelligent patient, a question. Certainly it is plain that

English language should be suffi-ent for the doctor's needs, and that its would tend to the simplification of unication and the correction of istakes all around between doctor, which is the lesson we draw from

. Wilhelmi's letter; the other ing the duty imposed upon the ople to be merciful to overorked servants; to give them a d still live. Mr. Croker is well recogdas a man of strict integrity, who taken charge of the Tammany staty with an eye single to its honorable auccessful direction. It is this ew York city and which is potential naming the officers and policy of state national government. The responsity of its direction is great. Its power good or evil is immense. When then it known to be directed by honest hands, se hands should be strengthened by public and the newspapers; and ton they fall in physical weakness, it a command of the most ordinary hualty, to give them peace; and pend-their disability to call off the dogs of and dogs of the press.

Ingalls in Trouble.

ator Ingalls has been caught in glarism and makes an eminently ristic defense by practically ading the charge and making a securation of blackmail. A City journal stated that the striking part of a eulogy delivered s was taken almost bodily from a on by Massillon. Ingalls says that suld have suppressed his accuser five hundred dollars, and explains the phrases referred to were in part ed from an old French exercise in he copied years ago when learning such, and which he for the first time was a part of a sermon of Massillon. mys that he used the same line of ght and language a hundred times, will continue to do so whenever oceasion serves ; that the language is his casion serves; that the language is his own while the ideas are the priceless heritage of the race. He then picturesquely denounces his assailants for resorting to the green grave of the congressman and contemptously leaves them to the judgment of the living and contempt of the dead. This bold attempt to justify plagiarism after admitting and denying it in the same sentence is very interesting. He first admits that the phrases he used were, in part at least, copied, and it makes no difference whether they were stolen from Massillon or any one else, the fact remains that he gave them as his own when he knew they were an-others. He says he has used the same line of thought and language a hundred times, and then calmly adds that the language is his own, the ideas the heritage of the race. This statement does not agree with the admission of phrases copied. The public will await with interest the application of the deadly paralell to Mr. Ingalis' case. He says that he was impressed with the stately and sombre eloquence of the passage, and believed that the man who repeats and preserves such thoughts and rescues them from the dusty oblivion of forgotten centuries confers an inestimable benefit upon mankind. So he does ; but when he incidentally takes credit for them to his own little poll-parrot mind he deserves contempt. Mr. Ingalls has often admitted that he was proud of this eulogy: "Jackdaw's strut in peacock's feathers."

MR. GLADSTONE talked gloomily to the Cobden club on Monday of the ground lost by free traders, particularly in America, but he was hopeful of their eventual triumph; and no wonder, when he sees the party now in power here abusing protec-tion to such great extremes. A rush to one extreme provokes recoil to the other, and the worst enemies of protection are those rabid high tariff men who make it the end rather than the means of taxation.

THE Oriflamme, published by the class of '91 of Franklin and Marshall college, is as bright as a spring blue bird in its brilliant coat lettered with silver and tied with satin cord. The frontispiece is a lifelike portrait of Proffessor Jefferson E. Kershner, Ph. D., after a photograph by Gutekunst. It is a neatly and artistically printed silver-edged book, fully up to the high standard of former publications and surpassing in several ways all previous efforts. As this is the eighth volume and each class has striven to improve on all that went before, the Oriflamme has grown to be an imposing memento of college days and in the eyes of the college men even its few faults must seem virtues. Some of the pen and ink sketches, for example, may lack the delicate finish and refinement of modern schools of art, but they have the spirit and power of old masters, of their kind. The sketch of a monument commemorating the football victories of 1889 is particularly fine, and the engraving representing the catastrophe to the college gymnasium is a powerful and thrilling work of art. The literary work seems to be well done. A sketch entitled "Looking Backward" refers to the founding of a gymnasium in 1889, but, as sarcasm of the kind was poked at the Scholl observatory by the students a few months before it was built, the gymnasium project may thrive in a similar way. The class histories and club pages and the engravings of fraternity emblems and of the halls of the literary societies unite to make this Oriflamme a success. The book is of the finest productions of the INTELLIGENCER job room. The binding work, which is faultless, was done by Wm. H. Roy.

OUR imports from Brazil in 1889 were valued at $60,403,804; our domestic exports to Brazil in the same year were worth $9,276,511. It is high time that some effort was made to even up these figures. A recent traveler says that most of the railway cars, engines, machinery and carriages in Brazil are of English make.

THE physicians of the Franklin Reformatory Home for Incbriates report that during the past year two hundred patients have been treated in the infirmaries; many of these were dangerously sick, but there were no deaths and but one was discharged. Since the foundation of the home more than ninety-five per cent. of all admitted have been discharged, in a medical sense, cared, but the statistics show a large pro-portion of relapses, which the physicians attribute to the lack of restraining influences in the home. They say: "A great deal is said at the present day of the influ-ence of heredity, but much more potent is the influence of the mother over he This Franklin Home, of Philadelphia, is managed as a benevolent institu-tion, and the management declare that it will never be allowed to be a place where a man may straighten up with an gir of respectability after a debauen, but those who give evidence of sincere efforts to reform are helped as much as possible. Of the whole number received since 1872 forty per cent, became permanently sober men. Of the two hundred and ninety-seven inmates in the past year one hundred and thirtyfour were free, sixty three paying and a hundred part paying. One hundred and forty-six were married and only nine divorced or separated, which seems to show that women stand by their drunken husbands with wonderful persistence. Eighty-five were single and twenty-five widowers and one hundred and six were between thirty and forty years of age. Of the two hundred and sixty-five discharged during the year only fifty are classed as failures or doubtful. It cost twelve thousand five hundred dollars for the year, an average of sixty dollars for each man cured or benefitted. Very cheap.

A DISPATCH from Australia says that owing to floods on the River Darling the town of Bourke is in the midst of an inland sea forty miles wide. Proportion is every-thing in these matters and that inland ser of Australia would be a trifle in another country. We talk of the lordly Hudson and some maintain that the Susquehanna is a grander stream, but the Amezon is four teen miles wider at its mouth than the navigable length of the Hudson.

MR. B. J. McGRANN says that he is not an owner of the Morning News. THE tariff collected in 1889 amounted to $220,576,989. The total tariff revenue for the three war years '62, '63 and '64 was only $206,704,374. The figures for 1889 show a larger tariff revenue than ever before collected and the figures have been climbing steadily since 1885. This enormous volume of money taken from the people is not only a drain upon them but a stimulus, to reckless extravagance like the pension legislation of this Congress.

PHILADELPHIA, Tuesday, May 13, 1800. There they lie—in a double sense-three Huck Towels, all in a row, one each from three different houses, each one sold under a positive assurance that it was "all linen." What is the fact? Each one is cotton warp. It would surprise you to know who sold them--it would surprise the sellers just as much. They were honestly but ignorantly sold.

Such things don't happen here. Our Linen experts cannot be blinded with cotton. Our old saw, "Linen is Linen here," still saws its truthful way through shams and frauds and keeps our Linen true to flax. ATBURSE'S. It's a tough pull.
