ADDRESS, THE INTELLIGENCER,

LANCASTER, PA., May 17, 1890.

They Are Mad.

Another Republican congressman has arisen in protest against the McKinley tariff bill dose. Mr. Henderson, of lows, who was a competitor of Reed for the speakership nomination, declares his willingness to vote all needful protection to home industries, but he wants to have the facts before him to show that it is needful. Mr. Kinley had no facts to give him about glass lamp chim-neys except that the glass manufacturers assured him they could not make glass chimneys with sufficient profit under the present tariff rate of forty-five per cent. Mr. Henderson wanted to know whether they were making them anyway and how many they were making and how many were imported. Mr. McKinley had no pre-cise figures on the subject; and presumptively he had no figures at all, for he did not produce any. Mr. Henderson objected to a blind raising of the duty, the present rate of nearly half the value of the articles imported seeming to offer a very respectable amount of protection and imposing a very large tax upon the consumer ; but the Republican members generally stuck to their leaders and his bill, with the consequent vote of 107 to 104 in favor of raising the duty.

It may be fairly assumed that these chimney lamps will afford a very bright light in the coming political campaign, under which the Republican undertak-ing to unduly burthen the consumers of the country will be very thor-oughly exposed. Mr. Henderson's objection to the tax was applauded by the Democratic members, to his great disgust. He declared that he did not want to hear their howls. Which was very natural ; the Democratic howl which will be heard all over the land against this tariff bill, if it becomes a law, will be very disturbing to the the Republican constitution, and is likely to damage it beyond re-pair. It will be very hard in-deed to justify to the buyers of lamp chimneys an increase of the present heavy duty. They will understand that they will have to pay it. The object of course of the manufacturers who ask this increase is to get a larger price for their goods than they can get in the face of foreign competition; and the Republican party will have an interesting time in asking the voters to pay more for their lamp chimneys for the benefit of the home manufacturers of chimneys, who are men of wealth and capital. The particularly heavy on the poor man, who buys many more chimneys in proportion to his means than the rich man does. Taxes on food, clothing and articles of household use are taxes laid upon men and not money, upon the family and not upon property. Mr. Heuderson sought to save party from such folly; but the party does not seem to care to be saved. Its persistence in raising tariff taxes in the face of the warning of the times and the expostulations of some sensible leaders, recalls very strongly the gestion that they are made mad for their destruction.

Fixing It For Us. It is very remarkable indeed that Senator Quay cannot be smoked out on any question save the nominations for governor of Pennsylvania, particularly on the Democratic side. He has nothing that he desires to say upon the many matters personal to himself upon which the pub-lic are waiting to hear from and upon which it demands that he shall speak or be held to be proven to have been an unfaithful official and debased man-But he hastens to say that Delamater will be the Republican and Pattison the Democratic caudidate for governor and that Delamater will easily defeat Pattison mel would more easily defeat any other man. Pattison, he declares to be, in his opinion, the strongest Democratic candidate ; and we must assume that he holds the same opinion as to Delamater's Republican candidacy; who is nevertheless, in the opinion of people generally, much the weakest of any of the Republican candidates named. It would hardly be just to ex-Governor Pattison to consider that Quay's judgment of his strength before the people is no better than his opinion of Delamater's, it being generally understood that he wants Delamater nominated for other reasons than his popular strength. But, undoubtedly, the candidacy of ex-Governor Pattison cannot be helped by the approval of Quay, who likewise approves Delamater. Some folks think that he declares for Pattison to hurt his chances; which, however, would be a clumsy performance for Quay's genius. The Democratic party is not likely to be moved in any way by Quay's declarations as to their party nominations. It has no confidence in their sincerity or regard for their value. With whatever object they are made they will fail of effect; and doubtless they have an object, since they are so persistently made. The party feels quite able to make up its own opinion as to the strength of its candidates.

A Groan From Wool.

The American Wool Reporter discuses tariff reform from a non-partisan standpoint, and says "if an act could be passed remedying the inequality of worsted yarn duties the present silent distrust of the McKinley bill by so many of our manufacturers would become open and outspoken." The Reporter finds that nearly all coners will use whatever goods of ual quality can be bought most favorably whether domestic or foreign, and that if domestic manufacturers cannot hold the home market now and are poing to be able to hold it with higher uties on their raw material under the McKinley, bill it must be because the McKinley, bill it must be because the bill will at first make the consumers of weoken goods pay more for them. If the prediction is true that domestic competition will speedily reduce values to their old level or lower, the Reporter argues that "it means that manufacturers will pay for a soft-hearted baggageman."

Immigrant Shivers Swims to Us. From the N. Y. Sun.

A shy, soft-eyed immigrant of German ancestry has been enjoying the hospitality of Gen. O'Beirne's room at the barge office since Saturday. He didn't land in the usual way, giving his name and occupation to one of the registry clerks. He was discovered by a soft-hearted baggageman year of fictitious prosperity after the pas-sage of the McKinley bill, by another period of overproduction, ruinous prices, and failure of weaker mills." This is interesting to citizens who wear woolens and find themselves taxed for the benefit of the manufacturer, and doing him nothing but harm after all. The Reporter goes on to argue for lower duties on wool rather than higher duties on goods and then protests that politics is the bane of the industry. It is evident that there are some manufacturers who were fried in 1888 who will not be so easily fricasseed in 1892, but the groan of this trade journal gives force to that cardinal principal of Democratic doctrine that protection should not be the end but the means of taxation, that it is not only unjust but inexpedient to levy more taxes than are needed. The effect of a defiance of this principle has been seen in the efforts to control politi-cal matters for business purposes, in the open application of vast money power to politics and in the weary cry of the bewildered business man that the bane of his trade is polities. How can men be patriots when they find self-interest the ruling motive in all debates of publie policy and at every crisis of national CHANCELLOR CAPRIVI said in the Reichstag on Friday that Germany had no desire to extend her territories on the Eastern frontier. Emperor William at about the same moment made a fiery speech at a banquet, concluding with the declaration that whoever attempted to attack the security of the country would find him a man of rock and iron, who had an army at his back and could force peace The St. Petersburg papers express surprise at the warlike tenor of a speech of the young emperor several days ago, and as he s soon to attend the manoeuvres of the Russian army this talk about forcing peace with an army hardly seems reassuring, particularly in connection with Caprivi's reference to the Russian frontier. It will sound to the French very like a menace, and to the rest of the world like the crow of a very excitable game rooster.

In weather like we have had of late Lancaster badly needs a park, and the steep banks of the Conestoga would fill the want exactly. Walk out on Sunday and try to imagine how beautiful they would be if trees were plenty.

In the balloting for a state flower in the New York schools it was clear enough that dusty highways were unfamiliar to most of the voters, for the dandelion only received 273 votes and apple blossoms, although in full bloom when the vote was cast, had only 138. The state vote will differ widely from that of the city, but the golden-rod seems sure of victory there.

At the national conference of charities and corrections in session in Baltimore an essay prepared by J. H. Antwerp, of the New York board of charities, handled the question of control of immigration and criticised the law for leaving the matter in the hands of local officers and boards who can not act together. He urged that the other great ports as well as New York should be under Federal control as to immigration and found the matter particularly urgent because of "the growing numbers of immigrants of late from the South and interior of Europe, whose language is almost beyond our ability to acquire, and who have no ability or inclination to acquire ours, and whose vague and indefinite conceptions of citizenship are not in keeping with the American standard. The congregation of these ignorant and alien classes in our cities by themselves, creating in them what are significantly called "foreign quarters," as fully as menacing to the country and its institutions, both social and political, as if they were Chinese." The "padrone" system increases the evil. But in spite of his urgency for federal control of the inspection at landing Mr. Van Antwerp evidently places little value upon it without some transatlantic system of sorting, for he says that it is only through consular inspection of intended immigrants abroad that we can hope to exclude undesirable classes and maintain our social institutions and standard of citizenship. Contemplating an incident of the Wilkes barre mine horror, he might have added that people who refuse to care for their dead can not be expected to catch up with our standard of civilization within a reasonable time.

Under his sentence of three years suspension Commander McCalla will lose wenty-one hundred dollars. He will reeive the pay of a commander waiting or ders, which is twenty-three hundred dollars a year, and will lose the difference between that and "shore pay," which he would otherwise have received. He also loves his promotion during his suspen

LIKE THE "OLD HOSS SHAY." W Ocean Racer so Bullt "That She Couldn't Break Down." A new competitor in the Atlantic service, the Normannia (Hamburg-American line,) was tried on the Clyde last week with remarkable results. It is only twelve months since the first proposals to build the vessel were made, and it is difficult to imagine how so enormous a structure, 500 feet in length, a 57 feet 9-inch beam, and measuring 8,500 tons could be put together, with two sets of engines, and furnished with all the innumerable fittings necessary for an occan-going ship, in so short a space of time. No steamer of the same size has ever been produced with such expedition, and few have been delivered, as the Normannia was, the very day she was due.

Another feature of this vessel, as regards workmanship, consists in the fact that within three days of her leaving the dock she achieved a speed of over 21 knots on the measured mile and of 20] in a run ou Saturday from the Cloch light to the Cumbers. The Norman is the same and the contract of brae. The Normannia has realized a greater speed on the measured mile than any other Atlantic liner on her trials, and with distincily less effort.

She has nine double-ended boilers, with eight furnaces in each, and three funnels. eight furnaces in each, and three funnels, but no forced draught. She is, however, provided with open fans to ventilate the stokeholes. This is eminently satisfactory, and may lead to engineers abandoning the policy of forcing air through the furnaces to the destruction of the boiler plates and furnace bars, straining the boilers by excessive contraction on cooling.

The engines are two sets of triple-expansion cylinders. The diameters of the cylinders are 40 inches in the high pressure, 67 inches in the intermediate and 106 inches in the low pressure.

of inches in the intermediate and 106 inches in the low pressure.

The screws are only 18 feet in diameter, the smallest of any blades yet put upon a twin screw Atlantic steamer. The horse power contracted for was 14,000, with a speed of 19 knots, but over 16,000 horse power have been indicated, and the coal consumption is not much over a pound and a half per horse power per hour.

There are 17 water-tight compartments, and there are dcorways through only five of the transverse bulkheads. Throughout the whole length of the ship the floor of the vessel has a double skin, and the inner floor is throughout 4 luches above the lower or outer bottom, except in the part under the engines, where the intervening space is 7 feet deep. There are no fewer than nineteen of these spaces, so that the hull is subdivided into as many as thirty-six water tight compartments.

hull is subdivided into as many as thirty-six water tight compartments.

To put out the fires and stop the engines of the Normannia it would be necessary to make havoc of five compartments. The nine boilers are placed three abreast, and each triplet is contained in the centre of three water-tight compartments.

weakly struggling in the water on the south aide of the barge office pier and yelping feebly for help. The baggageman pulled him by the ears, pronounced him a fine specimen of a German shepherd dog, and took him into Gen. O'Beirne's office. His prolonged bath and his struggle against the turbulent tides off the battery kept him shivering fer several hours. The baggageman christened him "Shivers" and that is what the general calls him. He is a tawny-haired, sensitive creature, probably less than a year old. He will sit on his haunches at command and will extend a forepaw to friendly looking folks who want to make his acquaintance. He probably fell from the steamship Aller while ahe was coming up the bay on Saturday or from one of the immigrant barges that brought the Aller's passengers to the barge office.

ANOTHER LAURA BRIDGEMAN. Little Helen Keller, Though Blind and Deaf, Learning to Speak.

About two years ago an account was published of a remarkable child. Helen Keller, who came from Alabama and was placed in the Boston Blind asylum. She is blind, who came from Alabama and was placed in the Boston Blind asylum. She is blind, deaf and dumb, presenting the same obstacles to teaching that Laura Bridgeman did. This child showed a remarkable desire to learn, and in the first year she had gained a vocabulary of 1.800 words. Two years before that she knew absolutely nothing of language. Her efforts to learn showed that she had within her a tremendous intellectual force that must either find an outlet or make a wreck of the child. The child was well formed, physically, pretty and pleasing in her manners to an unusual degree, and she roused an unusual interest among philanthropists. At the end of the second year in school her vocabulary had increased to 3,900 words. Now comes a still more remarkable development. About four weeks ago the child was placed in the care of Miss Fuller, of the Horace Mann school, and since then she has acquired power to express herself in spoken words which are perfectly intelligent to every one. The wonderful progress, unde by the child within 2 express herself in spoken words which are perfectly intelligent to every one. The wonderful progress made by the child within 2 years after she had first been placed in the South Boston asylum is illustrated by her ability to write. After the words became familiar to her she began to use them in her writing, as shown in this little composition, which she wrote during her visit to Boston.

"This morning teacher and I sat by the "This morning teacher and I sat by the window and we saw a little boy walking on the sidewalk. It was raining very hard and he had a very large umbrella to keep off the rain drops. I do not know how old he was, but think he may have been six years old. Perhaps his name was Joe. I do not know where he was going, because he was a strange little boy. But perhaps his mother sent him to a store to buy something for dinner. He had a bag in one hand. I suppose he was going to take it to his mother."

He is now six years of age, and, until a short time ago, has ever since birth been a terrible aufferer from scrofulous been a terrible sufferer from scrottudes humor. Bores would appear on him and spread until they were as large as a dollar, and then discharge, only to be followed by others, so that the larger part of his body was one mass of sores all the time. The scrofula was especially severe on his legs and back of his cars and on his head. His hair was so matted that combing was sometimes impossible. His ears became so thin that we could see through them, and were actually

AFRAID THEY WOULD DROP OFF. His legs were so bad that sometimes he could not alt down, and it was impossible for him to run about and play like other children. Frequently when he tried to walk, his leg would erack open and the blood start from different places. The humor had a very offensive odor, and caused intense itching, so that at night we had to tie his hands in mittens or stockings to prevent his scratching and tearing himself. for nearly five years, nor how his terrible con-dition distressed us. We did all we could to relieve him. Two or three physicians agreed in calling it scrofulous humor, but did not effect a cure. We tried salves and ointments and other things but without benefit. At last 1

Mr. Ruby, who makes the following statement, is a well known railroad man, running on the Pennsylvania Railroad between Columbia, Penn., and Philadelphia:

"I feel that I wish to tell what has been done for us and our little boy by Hood's Sarsaparilla. He is now six years of age, and, gradually disappearing. The little fellow was "One year ago I was inid up sick with pneumonia for 14 weeks. When I got over that, my feet and legs swelled, were very much inflamed, and caused me much suffering. The doctor said I had gout, which I did not believe. I tried a number of cures, of no avail. Then some one asked me to try Hood's Sarasparilla. I did so. I took it three times a day, before meats. Before I had taken one bottle I began to improve. I took in all five bottles, which cured me and made me feel well otherwise. I have had no return of the affection. Jonn Hines, 40 North 30th Street, Philadelphia, Penn.

Cancerous Sore.

"About 7 years ago I had a cancerous sore on my nose, which grew to be very trouble-some and offensive. I concluded to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, and after using two bottles the Barsaparilla, and after using two bottles the sore disappeared and healed up entirely. It has been cured for two years with no appearance of its returning. I am now in my eightleth year and enjoying good health. I feel it my duty to recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla to all persons suffering from similar troubles. Be sure to get Hood's." JOSIAH HARVEY, Delmont, Westmorreland Co., Penu.

Ladies' Fine Oxfords!

Oxfords are cool, easy and graceful shapes in Footwear for warm days. By and by ladies' thoughts will lean more strongly toward Oxfords than they do to-day. We take time by the forelock, however, to tell of the many handsome and stylish makes here ready for examination during leisure shopping moments. We have them in all kinds of leathers, bright and black, medium, fine, and very fine grades. Our Oxfords embrace all the newest, prettlest and most winning styles; there's not an antedituvian shape amon-fithem that will go begging buyers at reduced prices—we're careful not to have them that way.

The finest Oxfords we have come in genuine French Kid leather, shaped, fitted and made over latest improved lasts; do not gap at sides, do not slip at heels. Models of fine shoemaking—rarely everbetter. Hand-sewed and very flexible. Admirable shaped toes and heels. The price of these is $3. In the fine shoe stores of Philadelphia no such price will buy them. Yet the same maker makes them. This we know. No trouble in fitting—we have them in 5 widths, A to E.

fitting—we have them in 5 widths, A to E.
