The New York Market.

From the U.S. Tobacco Journal.

Unprecedented is the activity which is prevailing in our market at present. Not since New York became the ruling market in cigar leaf has there been witnessed such a ruah of business, have such enormous transactions involving fortunes taken place as has been done since Lay Follette's Folly has been isunched upou Congresa. There is hardly talk or thought of anything else in our market than of Sumatra. Goods that went begging ony two months ago at a sacrifice have in the meantime been bought up at a glance and at any price asked. The month of February started in with a stock of at least 22,000 bales of old Sumatra in the hands of our importers and of this immense stock there are hardly 2,000 bales left to-day. Only during the past week the transactions amounted to very near 2,000 bales and the market is to day crowded with buyers from Binghamton and Philadelphia ready to take anything they can get and to buy as much as their credit will warrant. A considerable slice of the new Sumatra has also been secured already by the eager buyers and we know of several instances where goods which are still swimming on the ocean have been disposed of already. And this rush will continue and even grow stronger yet up to the date when the new tariff bill will go into effect. And even if the bill is rushed through the Senate as it is being whipped through the House, it is not likely that it will go into effect. And even if the Sumatra boom in the market reacts of course, on the inscriptions at Amsterdam.

The Sumatra boom in the market reacts At the inscription on the 14 inst, every sprig of Sumatra available for this market was in eager demand by the American buyers and also at unprecedented prices. Some lots sold as high as 400c., Dutch currency and one American house alone secured at this single inscription 1,200 balos.

Our rural contemporaries affect to notice also a boom in domestic leaf in their country markets. We hope they state the facts. In our markets the reverse almost is the truth. There is very little inquiry for and still fewer buyers of domestic leaf at present. Even such a staple article as Havana is for the moment suffering under the general scramble for the Sumatra. And yet the $2 rate will be a worse blow for the Business is commencing to assume considerable activity, and a good sized bulk of all kinds of domestic leaf was disposed of during the week. The market is very bare of B and C tobacco, and what still remains will find ready purchasers. Buying of the new crop still continues in all sections.

From the Tobacco Leaf.

It is moving. Whatever dealer is fortunate enough to have the stock needed by manufacturers of cigars finds ready buyers, therefore it can be claimed that the buyers, therefore it can be claimed that the leaf business is very fair so far as sales are concerned. The unfortunate part of the business is the exceedingly small margins obtained by handlers.

Sumatra is just booming—in fact, other kinds of leaf stock are neglected in the rush for Sumatra.

Eleven residents of North Main street, in Wilkesbarre, Pa., have secured a preliminary injunction against the Wilkesbarre and West Side Electric Street Railway company, restraining them from laying their tracks on that thoroughfare. of the hill, three blocks, at a terrific rate of speed.

The tracks curve into Front street at the foot of the hill, and the driver, who stuck to his post, had presence of mind enough to turn his horse so that the car jumped the track and kept on for half a block on the pavement until the momentum was exhausted, otherwise it would have been capsized at the curve. After it left the track it struck a horse, which stood in the middle of the street. The animal's neck was broken and jawbone fractured, and he died in ten minutes. The car horses, which had been on a gallop all the way down the hill, to keep from being run down, were uninjured. The driver was also unhurt. Fortunately, there were but two passengers in the car, both ladies, who stepped out after it had stopped, much terrified and shaken up, but unhurt. Wet rails for two blocks, caused by water running down the track from the washing of sidewalks and streets with hose started the car alipping, and although the brakes held the wheels the car kept on.

It is Rudy's last chance. If the board of pardons refuse the commutation, the sentence of the law, to be hanged by the neck until dead, will be carried into effect on Thursday, June 26.

The only other Lancaster case before the board of pardons to-day is the application of Abe Buzzard, which will be presented by 'A. B. Hassier. The principal reason urged for which he is now under sentence in the Eastern penitentiary he was not guilty of. It is proposed to prove by the dying declaration of the principal witness against him that she swore falsely on the trial of the cases against him.

THE BASE BALL WORLD. The Actives Beaten For the Third Time

By the Yorks.

It was the same old story at McGrann's park yesterday, when the Actives played the colored men from York. The Lome team showed that they were not in it at all with their dusky opponents, and they went down like flies before them. Although there was not so much difference in the bitting of the two teams, the Active again gave a miserable exhibition of fielding, which lost them the game. Rigby, who was in last year's Lancaster club and ran away when he was needed most, caught for the Actives and did well. The full score was as follows:

The York ball players all wear very pretty traveling suits and they are the best dressed team in the League by far. They are colored men, but act in the most gentlemanly manner at all times.

The games of ball played yesterday resulted as follows:

A dispatch from Shamokin says that burning timbers having fallen down the shaft of the Neilson mine from the breaker fire an explosion was expected on Sunday night and the population of that part of the city stampeded.

No explosion having occurred up to 10 o'clock Monday morning, a party of five men tried to enter the workings to make an exploration. They had been gone but twenty minutes when a feeble cry for help came up through the speaking-tube. Another party of five, headed by Superintendent Gray, started in after them, and in a few moments it was assertained that they too had succumbed to the deadly gas. Another party provided with a long rope finally went in under the leadership of James Noil, and rescued all the men but Thomas Quinn, who had gone beyond any of the rest.

M'KINLEY'S AMENDMENTS. The Bond Of Cigar Manufacturers Re

LANCASTER, PA., TUESDAY, MAY 20, 1890.

The amendments offered on Saturday by Mr. McKinley to the internal revenue classes of the bill were adopted by the House on Monday. They provide that upon sample boxes of cigars containing 12 or 13 cigars the tax shall be four cents; amend the administrative features of the law, and provide that wholesale dealers in oleomargarine shall keep such books and render such returns as the commissioner of internal revenue may require.

The following amendments were also agreed to on motion of Mr. McKinley:

Providing that the internal taxes on smoking and manufactured tobacco, and on sauft, shall be 4 cents a pound after the lat of October, 1830, or within 60 days of the approval of this set (instead of 1st of January, 1891, as proposed by the bill).

Making an indefinite appropriations for the payment of drawbacka.

Reducing the bond of cigar manufacturers from $500 to $100.

Limiting to a minimum of $5 the amount of drawback claims on tobacco in original packages, when the law takes effect.

Mr. Turner, of Georgia, made a speech in general denunciation of the bill. The supplement to this measure would be an election bill. Nothing but returning boards and agencies by which public officials could, like the spoaker when he wanted a quorum, count the entire population whether they voted or not, would enable the Republican party to come back to the House with a majority.

Mr. McClammy, of North Carolina, designated the bill as a notorious, conspicuous outrage, and then in a humorous, ten minute speech, riddled the measure with a natire and a ridicule which were enjoyed by both sides of the chamber.

Mr. Henderson, of North Carolina, advocated the entire abolition of the internal revenue tax on tobacco.

Mr. Cowles, of North Carolina, argued in favor of the abolition of the tax on tobacco, and in general opposition to the bill.

Mr. Kerr, of Iowa, favored the repeal of the tobacco tax. The tax on tobacco and whisky (and he used neither) was paid by poor people. Under the system of monopoly in the production of whisky and tobacco, the tax on these articles had been more demoralizing to the people than any other tax imposed.

Mr. McKinley, in opposing Mr. Tucker's amendment, said that the committee on ways and means had not entirely abolished the tax on tobacco; first, because the country needed the money; and second, because it was not necessary to abolish it in order to preserve intact the great protective system of the Republican party. "McGinty" Conlin In Trouble.

This morning the mayor had two cases before him and both men were colored. Richard Boddy, a bootblack, had been locked up at the instance of his wife, by Officer Burns. She said that he had been throwing stones at her. Richard claims that his wife is continually fighting with him and seems anxious to have him locked up in order that she can do as she pleases. The evidence did not show that Richard was intoxicated or that he had been guilty of a very great wrong. He was discharged by the mayor but was at once rearrested by Constable Nehr on a warrant from Alderman Dellet, charging him with assault and battery. The alderman committed him, but the case is likely to be settled.

The other man was William Jackson, a very black darkey, who was brought north to do railroad work. He comes from Albermarle county, Virginia, and has been at work on the New Holland road, at the Hummelstown quarries and other places. He is now on his way to Phenixville in search of work, and the storm drove him to the station house last night. He was discharged and went away with a smile a foot long.

One of the heaviest storms of the season took place last evening. It began to rain early in the evening, but it was between 8 and 10 o'clock that the thunder storm took place. The lightning was very sharp and the thunder heavy. For an hour or more the rain fell in torrents and the gutters were filled, while the water ran in great streams through the streets. A GIRL ENDS HER LIFE.

BECAURE HER MOTHER SCOLDED HER SUSAN BENEDICT TAKES LAUDANUM.

She Is Found . Unconscious In Bed and Dies About 7 O'clock-The Testimony Before the Coroner's Jury.

There seems to be a mania for suicide among the young people of this city, and within a short time two have taken their lives for very trivial causes. This morning Suam Benedict, a sixteen-year-old daughter, of ox-Deputy Sheriff George W. Benedict, of No. 28 Church street, died from the effects of a dose of landanum which she took for the purpose of suicide. This morning at 5 o'clock Mrs. Benedict was awakened by the heavy breathing and groaning of her daughter. She called to her but received no answer, and she then saw that froth was coming from her mouth and nose. She summoned her husband, who went for Drs. Shirk and H. E. Muhlenberg. They reached the house about haif past five o'clock. The girl was breathing very hard and frothing at the mouth. There was every indication of opium poisoning and the girl ded about 7 o'clock. She never recovered consciousness from the time that her mother discovered her. An empty bottle, which had contained laudanum, was found under the girl's pillow and that told the tale of her death. The cause for her taking her own life was that her mother soolded her. The truth was that the girl was in the habit of running about the streets and because her mother chided her about it she took her life. On Sunday she and two other girls went out to the creek and Mrs. Benedict scolded her daughter when she returned. The girl then became very angry.

Coroner Honaman impannelled a jury composed of Charles Shultz, Henry Missel, Adam Kline, Charles I. Young, H. C. Keller and John W. Keller to hold an inquest at 9 o'clock his morning.

The first witness called was George W. Benedict, who testified to have been summoned home. When he found his daughter's condition he went for the doctor. Dr. H. E. Muhlenberg testified to how he found the girl. He thought that she must have taken the poison before retiring last evening. The testimony of the other witnesses throw much more light upon the cause of the girl's suicide. Mrs. Benedict, in her evidence, told how she had been awakoned by the girl suicide. M

DEATH OF MRS. WHARTON. Remarkable Career of a Woman Acquitted of Monstrous Crimes |

quitted of Monstrous Crimes I

The death of Mrs. Ellen G. Wharton, aged seventy, at the country residence of her son-in-law, Moore Wharton, near Philadelphia, recalls one of the most interesting trials on record. Mrs. Wharton was Ellen G. Nugent, a daughter of George Nugent, a wealthy Philadelphia importer of fine dry goods. She was very handsome and fond of dress, and in spite of her father's liberality was continually running into debt. She moved in the best society and had a wide circle of friends in this state. Her first startling performance was an announcement of her approaching marriage to a Mr. Williamson. Invitations were sent out and the guests came, but the groom did not, and declared that he knew nothing about the wedding, and was not engaged. Mr. Nugent then arranged to send his daughter to an insane asylum, but she eloped and was married to Lieutenant Harry M. Wharton. Her father forgave her and continued to pay her debts. The next sensation was in 1867, when Colonel Wharton, her husband, and General Kotchum, a friend, both died, and she was tried at Annapolis and acquitted of the charge of having poisoned the general in order to rob him. Two years later she was again tried on the charge of poisoning Eugene Van Ness, a bank clerk, who was taken ill on drinking a glass of beer at her house, and died. Mrs. Wharton was next accused of poisoning her husband, her husband's cousin, Colonel Edward Wharton, and her own son, Captain Henry C. Wharton, but these charges never came into court.

In the trial for Van Ness' murder the jury failed to agree and were discharged. After the failure of the jury to agree in the second case Mrs. Wharton was called in the sum of $10,000 for her future appearance if required. She paid this sum and with her daughter, Miss Nellie, who was her constant companion, left for Philadelphia. Nellie was married to Mr. Moore Wharton and her mother made her home with them, leading a secluded life.

A FINE ELEVATOR

That Will Carry Passengers in the New Trust Building.

The new passenger elevator which has been put in the Trust company's building, on North Queen street, by A. C. Welchans, was run for the first time yesterday. There is no doubt that it is the finest elevator in the city and it will prove a great convenience in a building of that size. The the first floor is in the landing on the first floor is in the salway some distance from the front entrance. The elevator is run by a hydraulic engine in the celler, which is worked by water pressure in the easiest possible manner. The car or cage of the elevator is made of ash and cherry with a seat upholistored in leather. On the side hangs a large French plate glass mirror with beveled edges. In the top of the cage there is a gas burner with a pretty globe, and to this gas is carried by a rubber tube. In the top of the elevator there is an embossed pattern of obscured glass and around the edge is a railing. The elevator has a safety appliance in large plate springs, attached to two large safety dogs, which work in a ratchet in the side of the guidos. In case both of the iron cables, which are guaranteed to carry five tons each, should break there can be no accident. The elevator stops automatically at both the bottom and top and it runs so smoothly that it can scarcely be heard except when it is started or stopped. On each floor are pneumatic call belis, which lead to an indicator in the elevator so that the persons in charge can tell at once on what floor they are That Will Carry Passengers in the New Trust Building. in the elevator so that the persons in charge can tell at once on what floor they are wanted when called. The doors are all locked from the inside of the elevator, and can only be unlocked from the outside by person having keys.

The main ques-tion at issue this year will be an advance of 50 cents asked by the puddlers, which is to come from the firm, and a change asked by the roughers on guide roll in their wages will advance them about 5 per cent., which is to be paid by the rollers. The puddlers claim if the finishers will not ask for an advance the firms will concede them their wages, which is to raise boiling to $6 per ton on a two cent card. Some of the finishers are willing to concede the puddlers' demands irrespective of their own
