PITY THE BIRDS.

ER BLECOTIONER READY IN THE REAPE OF A LIVE COPPER WIRE.

Furthered Beauties and Ugiles Who crok Upon the Electric Hallway Ca-ble Will Meet Ignominous Death.

That wire," mid a street car driver toy, who aimed his forefinger towards the me have copper cable suspended in the sale of East King street, "will slaughter arrows. The bird that al'ghts upon it it be rouste L."
This comment of the driver on the rival stive power that is soon to release the from street car service is worth matten. The electric light wires are street only in night time and are all infully insulated by a wrapping of cotton, it the street car wires cannot be insulated mes they must furnish power throughit their length and they are charged with e deadly current in day time, when the res may be tempted to light upon them.
The English sparrows will suffer first, it in spite of the unpopularity of these the soundstern, there will be a great deal rety excited by their wholesale electrotion if that should be a feature of electe street car travel. Robins are not given lighting upon wires as frequently as the maller birds, but they may suffer in proortion.

A dispatch from Cedar Rapids. Iowa.

A dispatch from Cedar Rapida, Iowa, belie of the slaughter of over a thousand migratory birds, which were driven by a storm, and stracted by the lights into the streets of that city at night, where they encountered electric light wires and fell dead. Perhaps the birds will quickly learn to avoid the wires in the centre of the streets, but the first effect upon them will be watched with interest, and sparrow ple may be cheap.
