"But wind an' rain has done their work.
The old vane awings no more,
les' sways and trembles in the gate,
instead of veeria', as of yore,
Bow east'r west, now north'r south,
A warnin' us of rain'r drought,
Jos' as it happened so."

"An' like that poor, old, worn-out vane,
Has Jim on' me played out,
We've braved life's changes, time again,
An' stood tempest an' the rain,
But now we're simply wattin' here,
Until the breath of life shall veer,
An' send us heavenward."

—W. E. Schofield, Ogonta, Pa., April, 1890.

Tapping a Shell. Prom the Dstroit Free Press.

One day when I was at Glendale, Va., a couple of negro boys drove up with a mule and cart and began to dump out at the blacksmith shop a lot of stuff picked up on the battlefield of Malvern Hill. There were bullets, buckles, stirrups, belt plates, musket barrels, rusty swords and bayonets, and in the lot was a loaded shell, which had been fired from a heavy field piece. The blacksmith was an old darkey and the boys were his sons. When he saw the shell he said:

"You git out wit dat were foolishness."

be said:

"You git out wid dat yere foolishness!
Didn't I dun tole you not to bring any mo'
of 'em yere?"

One of the boys threw the shell saide,
and then the old man went with me down the road to point out the public hitchingpost. We were gone about half an hour and were within 100 feet of the shop, when there was a loud explosion. A great hole was blown out of one side, and a part of the roof was bulged up, and the two boys came tumbling out through the smoke and ran against us. The old man grabbed one by the arm and whirled him around and demanded: " Didn't I dun told ye to let dat foolish-

"Didn't I dun told ye to let dat foolishness aloue?"

"She's 'sploded!" gasped the boy.

"In co'se she 'sploded, an' now I'ze gwine to 'splode you!"

And he drew him to a shade tree, broke off a limb and tanned his jacket till the boy yelled murder. Then he entered the shop and found it almost a wreck. The boys had placed the shell on an anvil and struck it with a sledge, and the anvil had blown ten feet away. Miraculous as it may seem, neither boy was injured in the slightest.

"Sich triflin' can't be abeared," growled the old man as he hunted around for his scattered tools. "Didn't I dun tole 'em to let dat nonsense be? Didn't I know dat dem Yankees didn't go an' fill up deir shells wid co'meal an' breechesbuttons? Of co'se she 'splode. It was her bizness to 'splode. Now you sot down till I find Moses an' wollop him, an' den Illi tell you wat part of dat fight I seed wid my own eyes."

The Premature Straw Hat.

From the Washington Post.

The thermometer is now at the stage when a man sees some one with a straw hat on, goes home, tries his old one en, and concludes it will do for this summer. and concludes it will do for this summer. The next day he sees another straw hat and determines to wear his. But his courage fails him. On the following morning, with a bosom full of resolution, he puts on the straw tile and sallies forth. He feels lonesome to a degree that is fraught with untold misery, and makes a vow to wear his black derby until June.

Supremely Delightful To the emaciated and debilitated invalid is the sense of returning health and strength produced by Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. When that promoter of vigor is tested by persons in feeble health, its restorative and vitalizing potency soon evinces itself in improved appetite, digestion and nightly repose, the sole conditions under which strength and nerve quietude is vouchsafed to the human system. A gain in flesh of course ensues upon the restoration of digestion and assimilation. As surely as winter follows the fall of the leaf, does disease shadow the footsteps of declining strength, when the premature decadence of vitality is not arrested. Marasmus, consumption and other wasting maladies are prompt to fasten upon the enfeebled. Avert disease, therefore, with this grand enabling tonic, which not only restricted to the infirmities of age and those of the Saratoga, N. Y., ster sex. suited the best local physicians, and spent hundreds of dollars for medicines of different kinds but without receiving the slightest beneft. I was advised finally to visit Hot Springs. This Idid, but becoming disgusted with the treatment I was receiving there, commenced taking swint's Specific (S. S. S.) The effect that S. S. had on me was truly wonderful. I commenced to recover after taking the first bottle, and by the time I had taken twelve bottles I was entirely cured—cured by Swift's Specific (S. S.
