WANAMAKER ARRAIGNED.

THE EDITOR OF A MAGAZINE BRARDS HIM IN HIS OFFICE.

He Tells Him That a Pension Agent is Violating the Postal Laws, and Wanamaker Allows Him to Do So.

ington Dispatch to New York Sun

Washington Dispatch to New York Sun.

A stormy interview took place Friday in the office of Postmaster General Wansmaker, between that gentleman and Mr. Patterson, of Chicago, the editor of The United States Mail, a magazine published in the interests of postal employes. The loud and excited talk attracted the wondering attention of quite a crowd of persons in the adjoining rooms and corridors, yet none about the department seemed to know what the row was about. The facts which led up to the war of words are said to be substantially as follows:

About three months ago there were regularly mailed in Washington, and in course of time received at the Chicago postoffice, several hundred large mail sacks filled with sample copies of the National Tribune, a weekly paper published in Washington by George E. Lemon, the pension claim agent. These papers were regularly addressed, but whether to bonafide residents of Chicago or to fictitious persons does not appear. The dispatch of this mail from the Washington postoffice was in violation of one of the best known regulations of the department, as well as of the United States statutes. On each of the wrappers containing a copy of the paper, which is an important factor in Mr Lemon's claim business, appeared words to this affect:

If this paper is not delivered to the person addressed, the postmaster will please deliver it to any ex-union soldier or to some one interested in claims growing out of the war of the rebellion.

The act of which the printing of this of the war of the rebellion.

The act of which the printing of this actics on the wrapper is a direct violation was passed by Congress and approved by the president March 3, 1879, and reads as

That mail matter of the second class (which includes newspapers) shall contain no writing, print mark, or sign thereon or therein in addition to the original print, except as herein provided, to wit: The name and address of the person to whom the matter shall be sent, and index figures of subscription book, either written or printed, the printed title of the publication, the printed name and address of the publication. the printed name and address of the pub-lisher or sender of the same, and written or printed words or figures or both indi-cating the date when the subscription to such matter will end.

This disregard of the law was brought to the attention of Editor Patterson who the attention of Editor Patterson, who made a formal complaint to the postmaster general, but after waiting in vain for neral, but after waiting in vain for saily three months for some action by a department, Mr. Patterson decided to me on to Washington and ascertain if possible, the cause of the delay. He accordlugly arrived here yesterday and immediately went to the postoffice department, where he met Judge Tyner, the assistant attorney general for the department. It developed that when the complaint reached the postmaster general he referred it to his third assistant, Mr. Hazen, who in turn referred it to the postmaster general he referred it. to his third assistant, Mr. Hazen, who in turn referred it to the assistant attorney general, Judge Tyner. The name of Lemon did not seem to inspire as great a degree of terror in the judge's mind as it seems to have done in that of each of the others, for he immediately looked up the law, upon which he formulated an opinion holding that the acts complained of were, without a shadow of doubt, plain violations of both the spirit and letter of the law. The judge, in his conversation with Mr. The judge, in his conversation with Mr. Patterson, expressed himself as greatly shocked at such gross violations of the law by a man of Lemon's experience and knowledge of the postal laws.

Mr. Patterson then called on the postmaster general, of whom he incurred if any ter general, of whom he inquired if any-thing had yet been done in the Lemon

"Yes," said Mr. Wanamuker, "I have decided to allow Mr. Lemon to continue to send to allow Mr. Lemon to continue to send his papers through the mails as he has been doing,"

"With the same request on the wrap-pers?" queried Mr. Patterson.

"Yes, with the same wrappers."
"Is it possible," said Mr. Patterson, "that you will continue to permit the law to be violated, knowing as you must that every paper sent out by Lemon bearing the request to postmasters is in violation of the laws?"

The postmaster general interrupted Mr. Patterson, and said, with a great deal of feeling, that he (Patterson) had printed lies about him and the department

"I never printed a charge in my paper against this department," shouted Patterson, "that I cannot prove," and then warming up to the subject, he continued in about this strain; "Fil tell gou, Mr. Wanamaker, why you permit this man to violate the plain letter of the law with impact of the law in the plain letter of the law with impact of the l punity. It is because his money helped to make your appointment as postmaste general a possibility. It is because he is a big man in your party, so big that you cannot and dare not oppose, much less cannot and dare not oppose, much less offend him, even though you know he is constantly violating a law which you took olemn oath to protect and enforce. It is cause he is one, and the biggest one, of half a hundred pension sharks here in Washington who thrive and have grown immensely rich on pension legislation, and whose money your party cannot well do

Durion this arraignment the postmaster-general became very much excited, but in reply could only stammer out: ou are an impudent and an impertin

Patterson declares that he will not allow the matter to rest where it is, but will take such measures as will bring the case before the courts and the people for a verdict.

A BRIDGE SWEPT AWAY.

The Rising Waters of the Ohio Wreck An Uncompleted Structure. At 3:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon the flood in the Ohio carried out the channel span of the new Union railroad bridge at the north end of Wheeling, W. Va. The bolts connecting the channel span with the spans on each side were cut loose and all the machinery, engines, &c., moved off the long span. Lancaster Commandery of Knights Templar Leave For the Conclave.
Lancaster Commandery, No. 13, left this city on Niagra Expres, over the Pennsylvania road, at 10:59 this morning, for Lock Haven, where the annual conclave of the Grand Commandery is being held.
The members of the commandery gathered at their hall at 10 o'clock, and a half hour afterwards started for the railroad station headed by the Iroquois band. This fine musical organization had twenty-five members and they played very well. They had expected to don their handsome new uniforms this morning, but on account of the rain they wore their old suits, shipping the new ones to Lock Haven in trunks, to be used in tomorrow's parade.

Upon arriving at the station the members of the commandery took possession of two cars which had been provided for them by the railroad company. The rear car was a combination and in the baggage apartment a table had been spread on which Charlie Eckert had spread a lunch to be be eaten on the way.

The commandery took quite a goodly number of their members along and the names are as follows:

The Actives Decide to Leave the Inter-The Actives Decide to Leave the Interstate League and Disband.

The Lancaster base ball club is a thing of the past, and the game they played on Saturday in Harrisburg was their last. This afternoon Manager Goodhart stated that he would play no more games. Had the grounds been in fit condition he would have played the Lebanon team here to-day, but as there was rain the visitors could not be disappointed and they will not be obliged to come here to-morrow. Manager Goodhart will pay the players what is coming to them and that will take all of his capital. The men will take lave for their homes and several may get engagements elsewhere. The Harrisburg people are said to have an eye on Gill. Which team will take Lancaster's place it will be difficult to tell. A five League circuit will never do and Easton is not considered solid yet. The Harrisburg people have been blowing that they could easily get towns to take Lancaster's place and now they have a chance. origin.

There was a heavy rain storm, with thunder and lightning, at Johnstown, Pa., on Sunday afternoon. The rain fell in sheets for about half an hour, flooding streets, filling cellars and doing great damage. Railroad street, in Cambridge City, was under water, the water being up to the first floor in about 50 houses. The east bound track of the Pennsylvania railroad was covered to the death of two or three feet by dirt washed down from the hills at several places between the stone bridge and Morrisville, delaying trains for a couple of hours. The west bound track was similarly obstructed between Consmuch and Lohnstown maugh and Johnstown.

Whit-Monday, or "Pfingsti," although the holiday has been growing worse and worse each year. There are some young country folks in town to-day, but the number is very trifling compared with years gone by. Nearly all of the shops, manufactories, &c., are being operated as usual, although a few are shut. Some young folks are taking a holiday, but wish they did not have it, on account of the rain.

The Jolly Bachelors were greatly dis appointed on account of their picnic, which they had arranged to have at Telis Hain They concluded, however, that the weather hould not interfere with them, so sent drum corps to advertise the picnic which is being held despite the overflow of the heavens this afternoon. It is quite a novelty to attend a picnic with gum boots on and wearing oars. The rain also pre-vented the game of ball at the park be-tween the Lebanon and Lancaster clubs. That is a great pity, as it is very certain that Lancaster people will have a chance to see but very few more games.

The house of Max Deichier, 27 North Queen street, was greatly damaged during the storm of last night. The house next door to Mr. Deichler, on the north, was formerly owned by Samuel Demuth's estate, but it is now being torn down to make way for Grant street, which is being opened into North Queen. George Lamparter purchased the material in the building, which Charles Schwebel is tearing down for him. The roots of the building that is being torn down and that of Mr.

Deichler are even. On Saturday in tearing off the slate of the Demuth building the workmen got too far to the south and took many from the roof of Mr. Deichler's house. This left a hole and the roof was anything but water proof. The heavy rain of last night caused the water to pour into the garret in volumes. It made its way thence into the parlor on the next way thence into the parlor on the next floor, soaking the furniture and carpets and almost filling the piano. From that it ran down into the store room on the first floor doing a great deal of damage to stock. It ran all the way down into the cellar. The walls of the house were badly used up, and they will have to be repapered, and may even have to be replastered in some places.

A BETTER GAME.

The Actives Come Near Winning In Harrisburg on Saturday.

In Harrisburg on Saturday the Active bail club of this city played their second game with the mixed aggregation of darkeys and white men, and made a much better showing than on Friday. They hit Stecher quite hard in the early part of the game and the pitcher retired after he had been struck in the face by a hard hit ball. Gamble then took his place and little was done with him. Sterling pitched a fairly good game, but had poor support. Benedict, a Harrisburger, who was tried by the Actives, was a failure. The full score was as follows: The Actives Come Near Winning In

Iwo Fishermen Catch Sheriff Tomlin-

Two Fishermen Catch Sheriff Tomlinson's Poultry on Outlines.

A good story is told of two well known fishermen of this city, who were out at the creek trying their luck one day in the latter part of last week. They had set outlines the night before and when they went to lift them they had a surprise party. Not only did they have several cels, but they also had a pair of Sheriff Tomlinson's finest and largest ducks, one on each of two lines. The flat-footed birds had been swimming around where the lines were and they tried to gobble up the fish which were on the lines for bait, with the above result. They were unable to get away until the fishermen came and took the hooks from them. The ducks then ran home, and although, they are alive they have very sore throsts. The fishermen upon their return to town told of their good luck with the cels but said nothing of the ducks. As soon as they had liberated the ducks from the lines they made tracks for town, but Mr. Tomlinson found out all about their big catch.

A FRIGHTPUL RUNAWAY.

Iwo Horses Run Over a Pair of Mules With a Wagon.

There was a frightful runaway in the village of Marticville on Friday. Martin Eshleman, a well-known farmer of the neighborhood, stopped his team, which was composed of two horses at the tongue, and two mules in front, at Good's hotel, in the village. The animals were hitched to a heavy wagon, and after they had stood for awhile they frightened at some object. They started down the road at a fearful rate of speed, and the mules in some way became loose from the tongue. They fell to the ground, and while they were struggling in the dirt the tongue horses ran over them, taking the wagon with them. The mules were terribly cut and bruised, and are not able to work at present. The wagon was upset and badly broken, and the tongue horses were injured. When the team started a little boy, while seven years, was in the wagon. He was unable to get out, and when the wagon was upset he was thrown some distance. Strange to say, he was not burt beyond a few slight bruises. With a Wagon.
