Wanted-More Pensions. In the fiscal year 1884-85, the government expended for pensions $56,102,267, about one-fifth of the total cost of government, including interest on the national debt. The expenditures for pensions for the year ending June 30th, as now officially stated, amounts to $109,357,584. Thus, in five years, it has nearly doubled—the pensioners costing the government one-third, instead of one-fifth of its annual expenditures. Besides this our little army and navy cost between fifty-five and sixty millions annually, while the German army, numbering millions, and perhaps "the finest on the planet," is estimated to cost for the present year only $91,726,293. Last year the governor of Illinois, addressing the Illinois department of the Grand Army, said: "If the government paid a million dollars daily for pensions, the nation as a nation would be just as rich at the end of the year as it was before, as the money would still be in the hands of our own people." Commenting upon this demagogue's drivelthe silliest that ever leaked from an empty skull-Gen. M. M. Trumbull, a soldier for the Union and a life-long Republican, remarks, in the Popular Science Monthly : "To take a million dollars a day from industry and bestow it upon idleness is a patriotic form o dragoonade much recommended by politicians like the governor of Illinois. The * nation as a nation' is not injured by it the money is still in the hands of our own people. It is merely taken out of the hands that earned it and put into other hands to spend it."

The soldiers that marched in grand review before the president in 1865 were not an army of weak, diseased and encebled invalids, but brawny veterans, full of health, strength and lusty life. Yet so debasing has the pension system prover if we can believe the official tesony of the commissioner of pensions, that these men, honest patriots as they were then, have become corrupt perjurers by the thousands. For over a million pension claims have been filed since 1861, each of which has been sworn to many times ; in the same period many more than half a million have been allowed; and of these, more than a quarter of a million are the claims of old soldiers. Such a showing makes the English pension list, which all honest Englishmen have looked upon for years as a national disgrace, appear in comparison mean, parsimonious, even nig-

It is due to the honest veterans of the great war, the battle-scarred heroes of a hundred battles—it is due to their own onor and just fame ter effeck this infamous raid upon the public treasury. Why do they not rise up as one man and demand a halt? Alas, they know only too well that there are many modest and deserving invalids and poor coldiers' widows, who really deserve overnment aid, and that while thou ands of brazen-faced perjurers have received pensions, these have not. Besides this they urge, and truly, that the best and most deserving among the invalid veterans are too proud to ask for slims even from the government whose life they offered up their own to save ; let the government, therefore, bestow it They favor a general pension law, although none feels more than they the base uses to which such a law, in the light of past experience, will be put.

The whole history of the system forms a sad commentary upon the morality of the people.

Equality. When Thomas Jefferson said that he held it to be a self-evident truth that all men are created equal, he did not mean that they were created with equal physical, intellectual and moral endowments but with an equal right to the enjoyment of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. Although, in the progress of modern science, we have seen that "the individual withers and the world is more and more," we have also seen that civilization has placed the vast inequality among men in a clearer light than has ever before been shed upon it-The baseness of the majority, the fact that only a remnant in each generation rises above the dead level of mediocrity, is more patent that ever before. While the world lasts "the sun shall gild the mountain top before he shines upon the plain" and in each generation, if "many are called," it is more certain than ever before that "few are chosen." And every advance in the progress of science, of invention, and of the arts increases this inequality; it is increased by the diffusion of liberty, by the general amelioration of the condition of the great masses of the people and by universal education. It is not physical, intellectual and moral equality which our forefathers endeavored to establish, but equal conditions and opportunitiesan equal right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. For in what con-dition are men, physically, intellectually and morally most nearly upon the dead level of equality? Manifestly, in the lowest savage state, under a despotie chief, with absolute power over the property, liberty and lives of his sub-lects. And where do we see the greatest variety, or inequality, in their power? Assuredly in the state of highest civiligation. Savages are as nearly alike as peas. The poets, statesmen, philosophers and artists of the most highly enlightened nations, are as widely separated in their powers as the fixed stars in their clate will be sold.

The rewards of the public service, be says, are not so great as those of other vocations. Is this true? If the senator means that intellectual activity of equal power will acquire more wealth in other rocations, he is only stating another and triter truism. But since when has the acquirement of wealth been looked upon by our best and ablest men as the greatest of rewards? If we have come to this, then truly, not only the public service, but the whole moral tone of society has most wofully degenerated. But it is not No man in the land to-day of high character and honorable ambition.

f he were offered on the one hand the place once occupied by Daniel Webster or Henry Clay, and on the other that of Vanderbilt or Gould, would accept the place of the latter. Other reasons than the one assigned by Senator Ingalls must be sought for the degeneracy of the public service, nor are they hard to find. Indeed, the senator himself indicates them when he speaks of the increasing number of immensely weathy men, and of the power which great wealth always gives to its posses. ors. So long as our laws do not prevent the bribery at every important election of one-fifth of all the voters of our cities our politics will continue to be controlled by the party which secures the largest number of wealthy men ; they will continue to be corrupt; and the control of the machine, and hence, of political power will fall into the hands of men of the second and third class intellectually, and of the lowest class morally. Whe can imagine, without stimulants, men like Webster, Benton, Clay or Calhoun, condescending to perform the work which the requirements of the modern machine compel from mon like Quay Hence our intellectual giants are found chiefly in the professions, while men of Born parties in this state have made platform declarations in favor of ballot reform. Which party, if successful, will redeem its pledge? Consider Mr. Quay's universally acknowledged political methods; consider well the character of his candidate, and the contrast afforded by that of his opponent, ex-Governor Pattison, and this question contains its own answer. For this is, in a special sense, Mr. Quay's campaign. It was his convention; its platform and its candidates were dictated by him. and the whole secret of his power lies in bis skill in procuring and expending enormous corruption funds. It is this which has raised him to his bad eminence in his party and in the state. It is by this that he succeeded in defeating the will of the people in the election of a minority presi-dent. It is by this that he hopes to elect governor " whom he can own." If ballot reform were adopted in Pennsylvania this Republican Othello's occupation would be gone. By carrying out this pledge, he and the party which so tamely submits to his dictatorship, have everything to lose-The Democracy, on the contrary, by redeeming theirs have everything to gain.

great wealth and low cunning usurp the seats of the great senators and representatives of the younger and purer days of the republic.

The Central American "republics" are again fighting, although a few short weeks ago congratulations were exchanged on the prospects of their union in one respectable nation. In this part of the world nobody knows or cares much what it is all about, but it is a pity that people should be slaughtering each other to sustain rival military despotisms in a land that seems to peed only peace.

THE Beaver county Republican commit tee has repudiated the nomination of Me-Dowell for Congress, and appointed a committee to arrange with representatives of other counties in the Twenty-fifth district for the holding of a convention to nominate another candidate. McDowell will not withdraw; and the probability is that there will be two Republican candidates. The prospects are that a Democrat will be slected. Lawyer Wallace, who bought delegates, and Messrs. Tate and Shaffer. who accepted bribes, have been arrested. Quay is in the thick of this factional fight Other breaks in his party will keep the boss busy. Meanwhile the Democrats are harmonious and likely to so continue. The apathy in the opposing camp is much water on the Pattison mill.

THERE is great excitement in Vienna, and not a little anxiety in London, because of news of a revolt of the Bulgarians against the firm, despotic rule of Stambuloff. The British ambassador to Turkey suddenly appeared in London on Sunday, traveling by the quickest route from Constantinople, and started back again the same

SECRETARY BLAINE does not seem to be making very much impression upon Congress with his Spanish-American reciprocity idea. He advanced and firmly maintained the doctrine that our exports would be greatly increased if an amendment to the tariff bill should authorize the president to declare our ports free to the products of any American nation, upon which export duties are not imposed, provided that nation admits free certain products of the United States. The congressmen who think it safer to stand aloof from Blaine, while he is careening around with such small regard for McKinley, Reed & Co., pretend to fear that it would be very dangerous to give this enormous power to the president. It is even doubted whether this grant of power can be transferred to the president alone. The Philadelphia Ledger publishes a long and labored study of South American trade, leading to the conconclusion that even with reciprocity our manufacturers can not compete in South America with those of Europe, and that by the agricultural development of the Argentine Republic the market for our agricultural products will be closely limited.

The Fireman Accused. The Fireman Accused.

The shocking murder of Engineer Vandevanter of the Cincinnati, Jackson & Mackinaw, while on his engine, and the probable fatal wounding of his fireman, Samuel Roadhouse, resulted on Sanday in the arrest of the latter, charged with the crime. He protests his innocence and sticks to his first statement that they were both assaulted by an unknown man.

both assaulted by an unknown man.

Roadhouse and Vandevanter were known to have been quarreling for several days, and the detective's theory is that Vandevanter knocked Roadhouse down, injuring his head horribly, who then waited his opportunity and struck the engineer with the hammer, which was found exwerted hammer, which was found covered

Officers are also searching for Mock who was sent to the penitentlary on Vande-vanter's testimony, and swore to kill the latter. It is known that a man answering latter. It is known that a man answering Mock's description inquired if Vande-vanter was on the train.

Guatemalans Defeated.

El Universal, of the City of Mexico, publishes an account of a battle between Guatemalans and San Salvadorians, in San Salvador, in which the former wore defeated with heavy loss. The Guatemalan force numbered 9,000. General Barrundia, the Guatemalan refugee, has left Oaxaca to take part in the war. He will probably raise the standard of revolt in Guatemala. Private telegrams from San Salvador say that the San Salvadorians captured the Guatemalan artillery in the battle which took place on Thursday.

TIED HERSRLY IN A KNOT.

A Society Beile Wins a Wager, But There Was a Funny Hitch.

Pretty Fanny Beale, a lively Cincinnati society bud, is visiting her coustn Neilie in Piqua, Ohio. Young Mr. Filley, of St. Louis, and his sister Mina are also visiting at the same house. Barnum's circus was in Piqua the other day, and young Mr. Filley took the girls to see the show. In discussing the performance afterward the young man expressed his particular wonderment at the feats of a female contortionist. He was especially amazed at the highly accomplished manner in which she twisted her foot around the back of her neck and made a cushion rest for her head out of her heel. The warmth with which Mr. Filley expressed his admiration of this act of the contortionist seemed to nettle Miss Beale a trifle; and she turned up her nose and said, "Pshaw! That isn't anything to brag about. I can do it myself!"

Cousin Nellie and Miss Filley screamed, and assured Miss Fanny that she was awful, and young Mr. Filley laughed at her and pooh-poched. But the spoiled beauty's Cincinnati sporting blood was up, and she turned to Mr. Filley and said, in decided tones: "I'll just bet you the price of a box of kid gloves that I can!"

Young Mr. Filley promptly took the bet. Then the delicate question as to how Miss Beale's ability to perform the acrobatic feat could be proved to the satisfaction of the young gentleman arose, and it was finally settled that Cousin Neilie should be present while the act was on, as referce for Miss Beale, and that young Mr. Filley's sister should also be there, in the interest of her brother.

The three girls retired to Miss Beale's room, and young Mr. Filley waited on the piazza for an official report of the result of the feat. Spasmodic bursts of mirth from Miss Beale's room reached his ears for a time, and then there was a painful silence for a few seconds. This was finally broken by screams of laughter, an exclamation of

"Blinked if I don't believe the little

This was followed by a scream or two not prompted by mirthfulness or wonderment. Suddenly Cousin Nellie burst from the room and ran out, shouting in alarmed tones for her mother. Young Mr. Filley arose.

"Has she done it, Nellie ?" he asked.
"Has she done it, Nellie ?" he asked.

"Has she done it, Nollie?" he asked.

"Oh, Mr. Filley!" Miss Nellie sobbed,
"She has done it, but she can't undo it!
Please run for a doctor! And, oh, Mr.
Filley, get an old one!"
Fortunately a physician of forty years practice in the town lived only two squares away. Young Mr. Filley called him in a Scrofula in Children.

"In the early part of 1887 scrofula appeared on the head of my little grandchild, then only is months old. Shortly after breaking out it spread rapidly all over her body. The scabs on the sores would peal off on the slightest touch, and the odor that would arise would make the atmosphere of the room sickening and unbearable. The disease next attacked the eyes and we feared she would lose her sight. Eminent physicians of the country were consulted, but could do nothing to relieve the little innocent, and gave it as their opinion, 'that the case was hopeless and impossible to save the child's eyesight.' It was then that we decided to try Swift's Specific (8, 8, 8.) That medicine at once made a speedy and complete cure. For more than a year past she has been as healthy as any child in the land."
