ADDRESS, THE INTELLIGENCER,

LANCASTER, PA., July 23, 1890.

The Alderman's Court. While all the world has advanced with the rapidity characteristic of an oge of steam and electricity, law reform alone, as in the days of old, has moved with the pace of a snail. Only a hundred years ago the common law of England, which is the law of Pennsylvania to-day, was bloodier in its penalties than the code of Draco. More than two hundred offenses were punishable by death. Every year Sir Samuel Romily, that great and good lawyer, arose in his place in Parliament to present and advocate his bill for the amelioration of the criminal code and the abolition of these barbarous penalties. Year after year the stupic for limiting squires voted it down, and it was only after the efforts of a life time that he succeeded at last in accomplishing the great reform. More than seventy years ago Jeremy Bentham drafted his famous Reform bill, for the purpose of correcting the manifold evils and abuses of parliamentary government. Chief among the reforms which he most strongly urged, with all the powers of his great mind, was a secret ballot. Yet in spite of the time which has clapsed; in spite of the brilliant and unanswerable advo. eacy of John Stuart Mill, Bentham's distinguished disciple, critic and expositor; in spite of the electoral frauds which our people have endured and which a secret ballot would have rendered impossible, we are only awakening at this late day and for the first time to the serious necessity of its adoption.

Why is legal reform so difficult and so tardy? Is it because that it must be secured, not by the efforts, but in spite of the bitter opposition of the legal profession? Is it because lawyers as a class ssess an excessive veneration for the past-a Chinese worship of ancestors that dulls the judgment and shackles the mind-that embraces an evil because it is old and rejects a good because it is new? He who opposes righteous innovation pitches his camp in the last ditch of moral cowardice. Are lawyers in this worst sense conservative So, too, is the mule that has grown blind from weary years of toll in a dungeon If this is truly a government of, by, and for the people, our laws and the constitution of our courts should be framed, above all things else, for their benefit. They should exist, in Bentham's phrase, "for the greatest good of the greatest number." No invidious distinction should be made between the rich and the poor, but justice should be impartially administered to all alike. It should be cheap, it should be certain, it should be swift. When the poor ask it, they should not be crowded into a narrow and dingy room before some cessful ward politician, base, densely ignorant and mercenary, while the wealthy find it in the almost regal surroundings of a supreme court, presided over by trained justices, deeply learned in the law, and whose cultivated minds are "rich with the spoils of time." Yet this is precisely the distinction we make, although never weary of boasting of our equal laws, equal rights and equal conditions.

To the poor, the friendless and the unfortunate, who possess neither time nor means to prosecute appeals, the primary court is the court of last resort. The Russian serf is not more helpless than they under the decisions of the too frequent besotted ignoramus they call the "squire" and the writs issued to and executed by the ward constable. Let us enter one of these "temples of justice." We find a narrow, meanly furnished office and a judge who conducts the business for revenue only. He has but few books and these serve only to confuse him ; he possesses that very "little learning" which in his case is truly a "danrous thing;" while only too often he lacks that sine qua non of the judgment seat—a spotless character. He has secured his nomination and election chiefly as a reward for questionable party services, and he means to make the office pay all the traffic will bear. Instead of discouraging litigation, he does all in his power to promote it. He returns every case to court because he gets less for dismissed cases. Lawyers know by experience that it would be just as profitable to try to milk he-goats in sieves as seriously to defend an accused person before a "squire," for no case is too microscopically small for the average

"After I had spent a mint of good money to get elected in this ward," claimed one of these worthies, indignantly, to the writer, "and after I had worked up a good business they turn around and elect this youngster in my place, to reap all the benefit. What has be ever done for the party?" And one of the methods by which he had worked up a good business was to offer to keep tally for the boys who in the suburbs played base ball on Sunday, thus getting the names of these unsuspecting violators of the law, whom he had brought before him the next day, compelling their parents and guardians. mostly poor people, to pay the fines and costs, which he imposed. And he saw nothing save praiseworthy smartness in this contemptibly base act. And his seusibility? The very stones of Lancaster e mild be made to blush crimson with hot shame before this man be made could to change color. Nor was he of coarser fibre than the average of his kind. "The wrongs which the poor of the great cities suffer," says an able and eloquent advocate, "from the evils of the primary system of courts are beyond description. What great apostle of referm, what lover of justice and his fellow men, will lead the way to a better administration of the law for the friendless and the poor? Even the justices of the supreme court of the United States hear cases in the first instance in the circuit court, and surely some means can be devised to secure a just supervision and summary control of proceed lugs in the primary state tribunals."

Let us abolish these courts altogether and substitute a single salaried officera gentleman of high character learned in the law.

Not United. John H. Landis, of Windom, this county, on Tuesday visited Philadelphia and the headquarters of the Republican state committee. What he reported to Chairman Andrews of the political situation in this county is published by the city papers of this morning. The Inquirer says:

"Ex-Representative John H. Landis, of Lancaster county, who was identified with the Independent movement of 1882, when questioned regarding the outlook in his county, said: 'No candidate for governor has ever received as large a majority in Lancaster county as Senator Delamater will have.' Mr. Landis said that the farmers of the state who are Republicans will support their party candidates and pointed to the result of the primary elections in Lancaster, Mercer and other agricultural counties, all of which elected Delamater delegates to the state convention."

Mr. Landis is certainly not ignorant of the fact that there is disaffection in his party's ranks in this county.

Five of East Donegal's prominent citizens and farmers have openly declared against Boss Quay's ticket, and there are intimations from many Republicans that they will vote for Pattison.

This is truly an age of steam and elec tricity. All things move with a speed the very thought of which would have taken away the breath of our plodding but much more stable ancestors. This is as true of current literature as it is of mechanical inventions. The fame of the popular author of these days grows to a rank maturity as quickly as the weeds of the garden. But no sooner does the flower of his genius attract universal attention and admiration than some new flower draws away the popular fancy, and the plant of yester-day is called a weed, as the plant of to-day will be called on the morrow. Think of the immense popularity once possessed by "Uncle Tom's Cabin," "Lorna Doone," and Hugh Conway's "Called Back," So, too, was the craze over John Habberton's "Helen's Babies," and the run upon the booksellers for "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," and for "Robert Elsmere." When we consider the vast amount of really excellent permanent literature and the fact that over twenty-five thousand new books are published annually, we can feel with added force the wisdom of Emerson's rule-" Never read a book that is not a year old,"

A LAUDABLE enterprise is projected in Philadelphia by the Workingmen's club connected with St. Mark's Protestant Episcopal church, an enterprise both of an economic and educational nature. The club is endeavoring to increase its membership of 250 three or four fold, and to es tablish other clubs throughout the city, in order to extend as far as possible the benefits of membership in cheaper coal and honsehold provisions, such as coal oil, flour, potatoes and sugar. But in addition to this economical advantage are those of a social and educational character. St. Mark's club possesses a convenient and comfortable building, on the first floor of which is a large billiard ball and on the second a lecture room, gymnasium and library containing 3,500 well selected volumes. Each member pays a fee of $3 anqually, which entitles him to all the privileges of the institution. In the winter there is a course of free lectures covering every field of thought and investigation and de livered by the ablest men of the city. It is proposed that every church in the city, not is a church, but as an institution for the benefit of its laboring membership, will establish such a club. St. Mark's is in hearty sympathy with the "university extension" movement inaugurated by the University of Pennsylvania in company with other prominent institutions throughout the country. This is simply the Chautauqua plan carried on by lectures instead of by reading. The lectures will be delivered at a merely nominal cost upon subjects such as electrical engineering, physiology and hygiene, history and political economy

The laboring men and women of Laneaster have already established a circulating library, and propose next winter to sudeavor to establish a course of free lec tures similar to that of St. Mark's club. Our college professors and most eminent professional men will be invited to lend their ald to this enterprise. In addition to this, a debating club is now organizing, which will be largely composed of laboring people, though not confined to them Truly, the world moves, and the men and women who do the world's work are no longer in the rear.

AN ANGEL OF MERCY. Miss Fannie Gary's Noble Act of Self-

Miss Faunie Gary, the talected daughter of Judge Joseph E. Gary, of Chicago, has worked for two weeks in a Division street tailor shop and has proved herself a worthy member of the Girl's Friendly society of St. James' church.

St. James' church.

It was several years ago that Jens Anderson deserted his wife and children, leaving them penniless in the worst quarter of Milton avenue. The day soon came when there was no food in the house and starvation istared the inmates in the face. Death was hovening near when a breeful property of the started the sta was hovering near when a knock came at the door and Miss Gary entered. With the aid of her associates she soon saw that there was plenty to eat and to wear for the immates of the little home. The two girls Mathilda and Mary were secured positions in a tailor shop, and work was also pro-vided for the mother. Miss Gary never lost sight of her charges, and three weeks lost sight of her charges, and tures ago she noticed that the hard work and long ago she noticed that the hard work and long hours were telling on Mary Anderson. So she offered to send her to a pretty resort on Lake Wisconsin.

"I can't go," sobbed the girl, who is only fifteen years of age, when she called at Miss Gary's home a few days later.

"The boss tatior will not allow me leave unless I find some one to take my place, and I can't find anybody."

and I can't find anybody."

Miss Gary thought a moment, then said:
"You go and enjoy yourself, and I will see that your place is taken."

Mary left, and the next morning as the train was specifing the little worker westward, Miss Gary, clad in a plain black gown, entered the tailor shop and announced that she had come to take Mary Anderson's place. All that day she stitched away at the coarse cloth, and on every away at the coarse cloth, and on every morning for two weeks she was at her self-appointed task. Leaving her füther's home at 6 in the morning, she did not re-turn until 7, and it was not until Mary Anderson returned that it was learned that Judge Gary's daughter had worked for two weeks in a talker show. two weeks in a tailor shop.

A YOUNG THIEF'S METHODS.

He Chloroformed and Then Robbed Girls and Women of Their Jewelry. A man who gives the name of Walter A man who gives the name of Walter Van Valkenberg was arrested in Chicago on Monday hight for a series of strange crimes. He is accused of chloroforming and then probling innocent girls and women of their jowelry, money or valuables. Van Valkenberg says he is 19 years old. Sunday, July 13, Miss Kittle Howell, a Philadelphia girl who is visiting a cousin in Chicago, reported at the central station the Chicago, reported at the central station the loss of diamonds worth $550. She said she had been chloroformed and robbed by Van Valkenberg. She told the detectives that Van Valkenberg had been introduced to her by a friend, and that he had invited her to the theatre. She started to the theatre with him the evening of July 11th, but he said it was to late, and proposed a trip to a beer garden, where they drank lemonade. She suddenly became very sick and started home. Becoming too sick to trave!, Van Valkenberg took her into a saloon, telling her that he would yet symethics. ing her that he would get something that would relieve her. He ordered lemonade, and offered the bartender $5 to "fix" the drink. The bartender refused. Van Valkenberg himself drugged it—probably with chloroform—and before Miss Howel! could reach the sidewalk and take a car she be-came unconscious. She knew nothing fur-ther until Saturday, when she awoke in a room at the Hixon house. All of the dis-monds, valued at $550, were gone. When next heard from Van Valkenberg had taken a young woman into a saloon, and, under the pretence of examining her diamond ring, walked out of the place with it in his possession.

Monday night the young man was found in company with Mrs. Dora May. The woman wore diamonds worth over $1,000, and the young man had a bottle of chloroform in his pocket. He had also the diamond ring he had stolen a few days before. He did not deny his guilt, and produced the greater portion of Miss Howell's diamonds.

Pence on Earth

Awaits that countless army of martys, whose ranks are constantly recruited from the victims of nervousness and nervous diseases. The price of the boon is a systematic course of Hostetter's stomach litters, the finest and most genial of tonic nervines, pursued with reasonable persistence. Easier, pleasanter and safer this than to swash the victualing department with pseudo tonics, sleoholic or the reverse, beef extracts, nerve foods, narecules, seatilyes and poisons in disguise. "Tired nature's sweet restorer, baimy sleep," is the providential recuperant for weak nerves, and this giorious franchise being usually the consequence of sound digestion and increased vigor, the great stomachic which insures both is productive also of repose at the required time. Not unrefreshed awakens the individual who uses it, but vigorous, clear headed and tranquit. Use the Bitters also in fever and ague, rheumatism, kidney troubles, constipation and biliousness.

My finger nails came off and my hair dropped out, leaving my head as clean and smooth as if it had been shaved. I consuited the best local physicians, and spent hundreds of dollars for medicines of different kinds, but without receiving the slightest benefit. I was advised finally to visit Hot Springs. This I did, but becoming disgusted with the treatment I was receiving there, commenced taking Swift's Specific (S. S. S.) The effect that S. S. S. had on me was truly wonderful. I commenced to recover after taking the first bottle, and by the time I had taken twelve bottles I was entirely cared—cured by Swift's Specific (S.
