

MANY EMINENT DEAD.

NOTABLE MONUMENTS IN THE ALBANY RURAL CEMETERY.

Close by the monument of Thurlow Weed is that of a distinguished business man who was contemporary with both Weed and Marcy—Erastus Corning.

Among the many names which are engraved on marble in this cemetery, and which have also found a place in the history of the country, is that of Gen. William L. Marcy.

Half the century the revolutionary war and the present day William L. Marcy was governor of the state of New York.

WHERE ERASTUS CORNING LIES. He was elected to the supreme court, and in 1831 was elected to the United States senate.

Close by the grave of Thurlow Weed is a large granite block in the cottage style placed to the memory of Daniel Manning who was born in Albany in 1831, and died here in 1887.

Close to the monument of all in the rural cemetery is the one to the memory of the wife of Robert Lenox Banks, of this city. It is a fine piece of sculpture, known as "The Angel at the Sepulcher."

GOSSIP ABOUT OARSMEN. The Athletic Club of the Schuylkill Navy will send a junior and senior eight to the Labor day regatta at Staten Island.

AMONG THE SENATORS.

WALTER WELLMAN'S LETTER FROM THE NATIONAL CAPITAL.

Mr. Cockrell, of Missouri, the Watchdog of the Senate—Senator Butler and His Smaller—Senator Plumb a Good Fighter. Senators Farwell and Blair.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—In the senate we find some interesting superlatives and contrasts. Senator Cockrell, of Missouri, is the greatest nigger in the body.

The tall, thin, sharp faced, shrill voiced senator from Missouri is the finest example in congress of the genuine old fashioned controversialist. He would rather have a word war any day than sit down to a feast.

There is no doubt of Senator Cockrell's courage. He comes from a family noted for its courage and its recklessness.

There is one senator whom Cockrell fears. Senator Butler and Senator Cockrell, though now good friends, will probably fight a duel some day.

Senator Plumb is another good fighter. He is one of the few frank, blunt men who carry their frankness and bluntness into the senate chamber.

EIGHTY-FIVE BLOOD.

The Baseball Leagues Are Battling For Existence.

PLAYERS THREATEN DIRE THINGS. The struggle between the "new masters" and the "old masters" in baseball for public patronage shows no signs of diminution.

"Out of existence" was the first slogan advanced by the "new masters" in their varied assortment of "Live and let live" and "Fair competition" and other watchwords.

The situation of affairs has delighted the partisans of both sides, while it has much disappointed those whose sympathies, while strong for one side or the other, do not extend to the fact that professional baseball in this country is in a bad shape.

The main stumbling block in the way of an arrangement of a non-interfering policy, which many conservative people think would be best for the game, is the fact that the National League club owners that there is not room for two leagues of the first class rival clubs in the same city.

That Boston, Brooklyn and Philadelphia will have a hot race for the National League pennant.

That Chicago, Boston and New York will make the running for the Players' league championship.

That Buck Ewing's confidence in Brother John is now having its reward.

A NOTED WESTERN ATHLETE.
