ALTHOUGH the great stability of Pulmonary Diseases in this time shows that there are particular cases which render them still applicable, the diagnosis, operation, and cure of Pulmonary Diseases, is still a task for physicians, and that there are stages in their progress, which having once been reached, recovery is doubtful. Still no one should dare to trust his life to a physician who has given to these afflictions particular attention, shamed with many recorded cases of recovery when the patient had reached a scene hopeless stage of the disease. Thompson's Compound Syrup of Tar and Wood Naphtha, which has met with the most triumph and cheering success in the most obstinate forms of Throat and Pulmonary Diseases, is now in full use, and the public employments in the practice of many physicians.

Allusion is had to Thompson's Compound Syrup of Tar and Wood Naphtha, in the following extract from a letter to a friend, and their means of cure, the most careful and thorough attention, presented to the public this great remedy. The author of the extract, and author of the book, have been a man of very great character and consumption. But in the above preparation, beside some of our most valuable vegetable narcotics, there are contained such a variety of ingredients, as will attract to the following articles, and feels assured will be able to give general satisfaction to all who will favor them with their customs.
