His execution would doubtless have been fixed for an earlier day, but that there is a law in the State of Maine providing a year's grace, to give opportunity to the culprit to gather evidence to prove his innocence, in case of his wrongful conviction. The closing scenes of the trial, were both solemn and affecting ones both when the jury returned their verific; of goalty, and when Chief Justice Whitman passed sentence upon him. After the verdict was pronounced by the jury the prisoner was asked if he had any, thing to say why sentence of death should not be passed. He looked a moment at the judge, and then casting his eyes upon the jurors, said in a voice somewhat tremulous at first, but very soon in his usually cool and stoical manner.—"The verdict is against an imposent man. I thank God there is a higher court innocent man. I thank God there is a higher court than this—a tribunal before which we must all appear, where witnesses cannot swear falsely. I had much rather be in my own situation, than in the situation of him who may be now within the sound of my voice. Mr. CLAY'S GREAT DAYS.—Mr. Clay is certainly the luckiest saint in the political almanac. Ordinary objects of popular worship are content with one "great day" in a year set apart for their benefit; but, if we are to believe St. Harry, he has a greatest day in his life" about twice a week. At the Prothonotary of said court, his account of the Baltimore, he had one of these great days —at said estate: Baltimore, he had one of these great days—at Philadelphia not less than six or eight—and in New York he has nothing else." The only a great day which seems to be determined to clude the great day which seems to be determined to clude the great day of April, 1848, for the confirmation of the Kontralian in the great day which seems to be determined to clude the great day of April, 1848, for the confirmation of the great day of the confirmation of the great days of the great days of the great days of the confirmation of the great days of the Kentuckian, is the Fourth of March.
