The Allentown Sufferers.

A meeting for the relief of the sufferers by the Allentown Fire is advertised to be held in the Court House in this city, This Evening. We trust this initiatory step for holding collections in this City and County may lead to a successful effort in behalf of the sufferers. The hearts of this community have ever been attuned to responsive agreement with the calls of Benevolence, and will not we are sure, prove cold and unconcerned in this instance. The extent of the calamity, and the pressing necessities of the sufferers, may be realised to some extent from the following statement.

Appeal to the Public.

FELLOW CITIZENS: - A dire calamity has befaller us; one which no human prudence could foresee nor human power and energy avert. A fire, origiin an obscure corner of our town, driven onward by a strong and steady gale of wind, ha swept through the centre of our prosperous and beautiful place, and left it a mass of blackened walls and smouldering ruins. From the height of prosperity, have all within its range been suddenly prostrated to comparative want and wretchedness -the labor of many years, in three short hours completely destroyed, while many, very many, have been stript of every thing except their trust in God, and their strong reliance on the benevolence of their less unfortunate fellow citizens at home and abroad.

From the best estimates that have been made we ascertain the actual loss to be an amount equal to one fourth of the assessed value of all the real and personal property in our town, which contains nearly four thousand inhabitants. To replace this we do not even hope-to restore the sufferers to the position which they occupied before this calamity, we deem impracticable; but we do hope by the aid of those who can "feel for other's woes" to lift from the ruins amidst which they now sit, helpless and almost hopeless, many of those who have lost their all, and enable them to begin the world again with renewed confidence in God and their fellow man. To our fellow citizens we appeal for that assistance which you can so easily afford, which will relieve so much suffering here, which our grateful hearts will never forget, and which Heaven will not fail to reward.

Permit us to suggest to you to request the editors to accompany any notice they may take of the fire with this circular, and adopt such other measures as in your opinion will enable your fellow citizens most easily to remit to the proper officers of our finance committee whatever they may feel disposed Nancy Musser, in her 27th year. to contribute in aid of the sufferers.

From the Pittsburg Post.

The Pennsylvania Volunteers. The Building Committee of the National Washington Monument have extended an invitation to the Military of the several States of the Union to be present at the seat of Government on the 4th of July next, to take part in the ceremony of laying the corner stone of the Monument about to be erected there in honor of Washington. This invitation has been made to the Military of Pennsylvania, through the Adjutant General, who, being away from home when the invitation reached him, and being thus unprepared to extend to the several thing the several through the several t and being thus unprepared to extend to the several brigades, regiments and companies, a particular and the Committee. It is to be hoped that all editors throughout the State will copy this letter of Gen. Bowman, or at least call the attention of their readers to it, at the earliest moment practicable:

THE NATIONAL MONUMENT. Pirranung, June 5, 1818 The Military of Pennsylvania, have been earnestly and respectfully invited to unite with the military and citizens of Washington, in laying the corner-stone of the National Monument, on the 4th of July next; and I have been requested to com-municate the fact to the Volunteers, which I do-

Gen. Cass at Home. The following from the Detroit Free Press shows

how the nomination of Gen. Cass was received by his friends and neighbors, who have known him

Yesterday was a great time of congratulation among the democrats of our city. Every one you met in passing through the streets, carried the expressions of his feelings in his countenance—a rapressions of his feelings in his countenance—a rapressions of the streets, carried the expressions of his feelings in his countenance—a rapressions of the city of the streets of the city ners of the streets, and on the walks, could be seen knots of persons eagerly listening and mingling their expressions of pride and joy at the result of the deliberations of the convention. The hearty, warm grasp of the hand was but an indication of the taneous warm feeling of the joy and gratifica-

It is a high and deserved compliment to the personal qualities and character of Gen. Cass, that here, at home, his nomination for the presidency is most cordially responded to, not only by the entire democratic party, but that it meets with the approbation of several of the most respectable members of the other party, who announce their determination to support him, as they believe him to be bers of the other party, who announce their determination to support him, as they believe him to be honest, capable and devoted to the best interests of the country. We can mention the names of dozens of our oldest citizens, usually voting with the whigs, but never wanting office, who have known Gen. Cass intimately and personally for nearly a score of years, who have already declared that they will vote for him, their attachments to his personal character, and gratitude for his public services outweighing their objections to his political principles. Let the little, unfledged whigglings of the hour who flutter around the Advertiser, and contribute their filth to its columns, continue their villification r filth to its columns, continue their villification and abuse of Gen. Cass, and this class of personal supporters of him from the whig party will be vast-

Beautiful Extract.

The Boston Mercantile Journal selects the following from the Foreign Review for April, 1839, as one of the finest passages in the whole range of English literature. The subject treated of is the benefit of

"When Tamerlane had finished building his pyramids of seventy thousand human skulls, and was seen standing at the gate of Damascus, glittering with steel, with his battle axe on his shoulder, till fierce hosts filed to new victories and carnage, that pale on-looker might have fancied that nature was in her death threes—for havoc and despair had taken possession of the earth, and the sun of manhood seemed setting in seas of blood. Yet it might be on that very gala day of Tamerlane, a little boy was playing nine-pins in the streets of Mentz, whose history was more important to the street. whose history was more important to them than twenty Tamerlanes! The Tartar Khan, with his shaggy demons of the wilderness, passed away like the whirlwind, to be forgotten forever—and the German artisan has wrought a benefit, which is yet measurably expanding itself, and will continue to expand through all countries and all time to Napoleon Bonaparte, compared with the iveable types of Johannes Faust."

Reinhardt's Patent glass Pad Dou-ble and Single Lever Truss, For the support and cure of Rupture, or Hernia.

THIS TRUSS has the superiority of any heretofore in use, lst, on account of its durability and cleanliness, the rupture pad being of glass, (in any shape or form.) the adjustments of the springs to suit the action of the body, and calculated to be fitted to either side. The rupture pad has a double motion; lst, by revolving on its own axis; 2d, by the lever to which it is attached, and where said lever is connected to the main spring. The superiority which this Truss has over others is obvious in this, that it is most effectual in retaining the parts in their proper place, and making due pressure; it is always clean; its shape or form is durable, which in stuffed pads is not the case, as they become saturated with the fluids from the body. The Umbilical Truss is unsurpassed, being so adapted as to remain perfectly secure where applied. For the support and cure of Rupture, or Hernia.
