BREVITY OF LIFE. BY FRANCIS QUARLES. Behold How short a span To measure out the life of man ? In those well-tempered days, his time was then Surveyed, cast up, and found but threescore years and ten. Alai ! And what is that ? They come, and slide, and pass, Before my pen can tell thee what. The posts of time are swift, which having run, Their seven short stages o'er, their short-lived tash is done. Our days Begun, we lend To sleep, to antic plays And-toys, until the first stage end : Twelve waning moons, twice five times told, we give covered loss-we rather breathe than live. We spend A ten year's breath Before we apprehend What 'tis to live, or fear a death; Our childish dreams are filled with painted joys Which please our sense awhile, and waking prove but toys. How vain. How wretched, is Poor man that doth remain A slave to such a state as this ! His days are short, at longest; few, at most; They are but bad, at best ; yet lavished out, or lost.

They be The secret springs That make our minutes flee

On wheels more swift than eagles' wings: Our life's a clock, and every gasp of breath, Breathes forth a warning grief, till time shall strike a death

Our new-born light

And this how soon to gray-haired night! We spring, we bud, we blossom, and we blast, Ere we can count our days, our days they flee so

They end When scarce begun; And ere we apprehend That we begin to live, our life is done. Man, count thy days, and if they fly too fast

For thy dull thoughts to count, count every day thy last.
