A Contrast.

Next to General Cass. JAMES BUCHANAN Was perhaps the most prominent candidate for the Presdential nomination, by the Baltimore Convention and never will the members of that conventionforget the magnanimous and patriotic course pursued by the Pennsylvania delegation, and the friends of Mr. Buchanan, when it was definitely ascertained he could not receive the number of votes requisite to ensure his nomination. His conduct since that time has been in striking contrast with that pursued by Martin Van Buren. The acts of one prove him to be a pure patriot, an incorruptible Democrat, and an honest man, while the acts of the other exhibit him in the light of a selfish politician, a reckless disorganizer, and a traitor to the Democratic party.-Buffulo Courier.
