A statement having found its way into the news_ papers, that a son of Judge Londstreets, of Montgomery county, had been bitten by his own dogwhile in a rabid state, we deem it proper to say that it is incorrect, but a fine boy in his employment, named John Dagen, is the real sufferer. The lad was amusing himself with the dog-a young bull terrier—when he was severely bitten by him on the arm. This was at once followed up by his biting also a cow and a horse. The dog then left home and bit a number of dogs in the neighborhood most of which were killed. In the case of the boy, remedies were applied under the direction of Dr. George FRY, residing near Skippackville, Montgomery county, who has the reputation of having arrested the progress of this terrible disorder in several cases, and is thought this terrible disorder in several cases, and is thought to possess a specific for his cure. About six weeks have now clapsed since the lad was bitten, and no Lancaster, will be offered at public sale, a valuable have now elapsed since the lad was bitten, and no alarming symptoms having yet appeared, it is sincerely to be hoped that all danger is past.

With respect to the cow and the horse, we are informed, that they were each successfully treated in the following manner :- To a pound of elecampane was added two quarts of milk, which were boiled down to one quart, making a single dose and administered three successive mornings.

These methods of treatment, we learn, have been attended with more reported success than we are willing to make public lest in a matter of so much mischief, rather than benefit, result therefrom Neither, perhaps, has sufficient time elapsed to test the remedy in reference to the boy. Two or three years ago, as we learn from the indefatigable Holden, the announcement was made in the literary world, that a new historical romance from the pen of C. F. Hoffman, would soon appear to be entitled, "Red Spur of the Rampo," As it never has appeared, many hungry expectants for it may not have heard of the reason of its being kept back. It may certainly be laid down among the

It had got to to ears of the reading public, and expectation was on the qui vive for its appearance. The author, ac cording to his custom, placed the manuscript sheets in a large portfolio by the side of his writing table to prevent their straying away. Happening one day to take a look into his literary sa'e, he discovered, much to his astonishment and trepidation. that there were not more than half dozen sheets of MS, in it. His feelings cannot perhaps be even imagined. . His long labors had come to nought.-But his manner of submitting to his loss, puts him, in that matter, by the side of Newton, in the time of his tribulation

Mr. Hoffman called to the chambermaid, who had taken care of his room, and said:

"For what purpose have you taken them Mary!" said the author.

"Sure, sir, to kindle the fire; and I thought yo were very good to put them there?" said Mary. " And pray Mary, how long have you been it the habit of taking papers out of here?"

"All the winter, sure," said the innocent Mary, " but I didn't think there was any good in them for they were scribbled all over

He treats natural teeth with a view to their preservation and beauty, with the same care and precision which characterized his preceptor and predecessor, and for which he was so much beloved as a professional man. As a student of Dr. Van Patten's he is perfectly familiar with his mode of treating diseased teeth for which he was unsurpassed.
