CLOVE ANODYNE TOOTHACHE DROPS. An immediate and perfect Cure.

THOSE who have felt the painful throbbing and ex cruciating pangs of this disease shooting through their jaws with most tormenting perseverance, and, as is often the case, have received but little sympathy from iends on such occasions, will no doubt be much pleased know of a remedy that will never fail to quiet forey the unmerciful offender. This remedy is the CLOVE the unmerciul offender. This remedy is the CLOVE ANODYNE, an unfailing cure.

The following testimony is from one of our most distinguished practical Dentists:

NEW YORK, Dec. 19, 1844.

Mestrs. A. B. 4, D. eradicate recent heaves at this season.

Great Spring Purifier.—The Heave Powders given in small doses, will be found most useful at this season. They stimulate the skin to cast off the superfluous hair and produce new; they loosen the hide, give a glossy appearance to the coat, protect against disease; they also form their fine alterative and restorative powers, purify the blood and renovate the whole system, which horses require at this season as much as any of the human race, who find a preparation of Sarsaparilla useful to correct a vitiated state of the fluids, incident to the change of weather, which in the spring affect all animal as well as vegetable life.

THE THREE HOMES. "Where is thy home ?" I asked a child,

Who in the morning air,
Was twining flowers most sweet and wild
In garlands for her hair. "My home," the bappy heart replied, And smiled in childish glee, "Is on the sunny mountain side Where soft winds wander free."

O! blessings tall on artless youth, And all its rosy hours,

Vhen every word is joy and truth,

And treasures live in flowers!

"Where is thy home?" I asked of one Who bent, with flushing face, To hear a warrior's tender tone In the wild wood's secret place;

She spoke not, but her varying cheek, The tale might well impart; The home of her young spirit meek Was in a kindred heart. Ah! souls that well might soar above, To earth will fondly cling, And build their hopes on human love,

That light and fragile thing! "Where is thy home, thou lonely man?" I asked a pilgrim gray, Who came, with furrowed brow, and wan, Slow musing or his way. He paused, and with a solemn mein "Upturned his holy eyes,

"The land I seek thou ng'er hast seen, .
My home is in the skies!"

O! blest-thrice blest! the heart must be To whom such thoughts are given, That walks from worldly fetters free;— Its only home in heaven.

How comes it that this little volume, composed by humble men in a rude age, when art and science were but in their childhood, has exerted more in sence on the human mind and on the social sys tem, than all the other books put together? Whence comes it that this book has achieved such marvelus changes in the opinions of mankind-has ban ished idol worship—has abolished infanticide—has put down polygamy and divorce—exalted the con -raised the standard of public morality—created for families that blessed thing, a christian home—and caused its other triumphs by causing benevolent institutions, open and expansive to spring up as with the wand of enchantment? What sort of a book is this, that even the wind and wave of human passions obey it? What other engine of social improvement has operated so long and yet lost none of its virtue? Since it appeared many boasted plans of amelioration have been tried and failed, many codes of jurisprudence have risen-run their course, and expired. Empir after empire has been launched on the tide of time and gone down, leaving no trace on the waters.—
But this book is still going about doing good, leav ening society with its holy principles—cheering the sorrowful with its consolations—strengthening e down, leaving no trace on the waters.the tempted—encouraging the penitent—calming the troubled spirit—and smoothing the pillow of death. Can such a book be the offspring of human genius? Does not the vastness of its effects demonstrate the excellency of the power to be of God?

Doine Goon.—He is indeed the wisest and happiest man, who by constant attention of thought, discovers the greatest opportunities of doing good, and with ardent and animated resolution breaks through every opposition that he may improve Anecdote of Washington.

The following anecdote of Washington was told nany years since; the name of the relator is not on the 6th instant, at which Father Matthew attenow recollected, but it is remembered that the con- | ded. In the course of his address, he said:

C. S. one of the contractors for supplying the American Army, then (1780) stationed at West Point, with fresh provisions, had, on several occasions, when the high price of cattle threatened to sions and t calculated, failed to furnish the requisite supply, and in lieu thereof, ad interim, gave to the Quarter-Master of each regiment, a certificate, specifying that there was due to such regiment, so many ra-tions of beef, &c. These certificates did pretty well for a while and the privation was horne with characteristic patience by a soldiery, accustomed to hardships, and ready to endure anything in the cause of liberty and their country. But even pa-tience has its limits—the cause of the omission became at last understood, and dissatisfaction mantested itself throughout the ranks. Remonstrances from the subordinate officers had been repeatedly nade, and promises of amendment readily and repeatedly given, till at last, finding that nothing but promises came, it was found necessary to complain to the Commander in Chief. Washington, after hearing the story, gave immediate orders for the arrest Mr. S. Upon his being brought into camp and placed under guard, the offi-cer having him in charge waited upon the General to apprise him of the fact, and to enquire in what way and by whom the prisoner was to be fed.

"Give yourself no trouble, sir," said Washington,
"the gentleman will be supplied from my table."

The several hours of breakfast, dinner and sup-The several hours of breakfast, dinner and supper passed, but not a mouthful was furnished to the delinquent prisoner. On the ensuing day, at an early hour in the morning, a waiter in the livery of the General, was seen bearing upon a silver salver, all the seeming requisites for a meal carefully covered, and wending his way to the prisoner's room. Upon raising the cover, besides the apparatus for breakfast, there was found nothing more than a certificate that there was due to Mr. C. S. than a certificate that "there was due to Mr. C. S. one breakfast, one dinner, and one supper," and signed "G. Washington." After the lapse of a reasonable time the delin quent was conveyed to head-quarters, when Wash-ington, in his peculiarly significant and emphatic way, addressed him with:

"Well, Mr. S. I presume that by this time you are perfectly convinced how inadequate to satisfy the cravings of hunger is the certificate of a meal. which will benefit not only themselves, but their are perfectly convinced how inadequate to satisfy the "Parlour Cook," &c., &c., with all sizes of NINE PLATE WOOD STOVES, and a love of their country superior to all others: for I trust after this you will furnish no further occa-more fatal thing to the eyes of horses than when she devised this plan of depriving the horse of what nature intended he should enjoy. But says one, how are blinders injurious to the horse? Because they gather dirt and heat around the eye. Dirt irritates the eye, and heat produces inflammation—These bridles so entrammed the eyes of the horse that he is compelled to be constantly straining them, to see his way. The over exertion of the nerve brings on disease. Eves were not made in vain. Had they been needless, the Creator would not have located them in the head. They were placed on the corner of the head that he migh have the advantage of looking in different directions. Men in the abundance of their wisdom, concluded that the horse had too much sight, and they wished o curtail it; hence the origin of blind bridles and liseased eyes are inseparably connected. True, genuine greatness never feels above doing any thing that is useful; but especially the truly great man will never feel above helping himself.

A boy was once tempted by some of his com-panions to pluck ripe cherries from a tree, which his father had forbidden him to touch. "You need not be afraid," said one of his companions, "for it your father should find out that you had them, he is so kind that he would not hurt you."

"This is the very reason," replied the boy, "why I would not touch them. It is true, my father would not hurt me; yet my disobedience I know would hurt my father, and that would be worse to e than anything else." A boy who grows up with such principles, would be a man in the best sense of the word. It betrays a regard for rectitude, that would render him trustworthy under every trial. A Genuine Progressive. Father Matthew. A farewell temperance meeting was held in Cork, nection of the individual with the events of the Revolution, was calculated to inspire confidence in its authenticity:

C. S. one of the contractors for supplying the C. S. one of the contractors for supplying the for their sympathy, their well-proved sympathy, with my countrymen, and for the abundant and happiness which it especially confers amongst the people who inhabit its boundless extent. I find it impossible for me at present to accomplish much in Ireland—much does not remain to be accompliin Ireland—much does not remain to be accompa-shed, for the greater part of the Irish people have taken the total abstinence pledge; and though there have been lapses and breaches of the pledge, the numbers who have been deluded by temptation are as nothing compared to the great body who still remain faithful to their solemnengagements. The impossibility of my labouring as I was heretofore accustomed, in the cause of temperance, is a mat-ter merely confined to my own feelings. I could not, in justice to myself, witness the distress which now prevails throughout the entire land—destitu-tion quite as great as that which existed in the years 46 and 47, when famine was at its height, and people thought such misery could not again be equalled. "It is to relieve myself from this dreadful necessity, and perhaps also, for the sake of my own bodily health, which more particularly prevents me from making the attempt; and as I cannot effect any good here during the -present season, I am anxious to avail myself of the leisure afforded by the unhappy state of this country, to fulfil my. long promised visit to the people of America, and to throw myself on the kindness and forbearance of that great and considerate mostle who will beake of that great and considerate people, who will make allowance for my weakness, produced by severe in-firmity, which has continued for more than twelve months.

"I/go also to afford myself the pleasure and consolation of beholding my exiled countrymen, not, as here, lingering through a life of protracted start vation and constant misery, but in the midst of prosperity, enjoying the remuneration of their industry, and all the comforts that plenty and domestic happiness confer. I am anxious to visit that tic happiness confer. I am anxious to visit that land where I will behold no Irishman or Irish women deprived of the necessaries of life, but where I will see all enjoying peace and prosperity under the wings of the American eagle.

A Lesson for Young Men. The editor of the Methodist Protestant of Baltimore, concludes a notice of the murder recently committed by John Price, with the following ouching remarks: Price is a notorious character, well known in our midst as "City John." The writer of this was a school fellow with him, and remembers "John Price" when he was a playful, happy little boy. It is painful to think of the changes that have come over that smooth faced child. All our recollections not, but his name has long deeds of riot and infamy. Price is said to be gentle and easily managed— a fellow of good heart in the sense in which men of the world use that phrase—when sober—but from the gaming table, and from the remorae of a Inveterate Habits. There is nothing more familiar to our daily obrvation than the power and inveteracy of habits, insomuch that any decided propensity is strength-ened by every new act of indulgence, and virtuous principle is more firmly established than before by every new new act of resolute obedience to its ditates. The law which connects our actings of boyhood or of youth with the character of man-hood, is the identical law which connects our actings in time with our character in eternity. The way in which the moral discipline of youth prepares for the honors and enjoyments of a virtuous manhood, is the way in which the moral and spiritual discipline of the whole life prepares for a virtuous and happy importally the series of the series spiritual discipline of the whole life prepares for a virtuous and happy immortality; and on the other hand the succession of cause and effect from a profligate youth and dishonest manhood to a disgraced and worthless old age, is just the succession also of cause and effect between the miscleeds and lepravities of our history on earth, and our endunce of worthlessness and wretchedness for Drunkenness is severely punished in Sweden; whoever is found drunk for the first time has to pay a fine of three dollars, the second time six dollars, the third time about nine dollars, besides he oses his right to vote, and on Sunday following he is lastened to a post near the church door. For the fifth offence he is confined six months in the Penitentiary; for the sixth twelve months. The punishment is still more severe to those who are found drunk at fairs, and public places, &c. There is no excuse for drunkenness,—no ardent spirit is permitted to be given to soldiers, students, servants, &c. The informer is entitled to one belof of the &c. The informer is entitled to one half of the fine. The Laws on this subject are read once every
