FOR THE PROTECTION AND PERSERVATION OF WOOD AND METALS FROM FIRE, DECAY . AND OXIDATION. THIS PAINT has its basis in the Metal of Carbon, the most indestructible substance known in nature. Neither acids of any kind, nor fire act upon it in its pure state. The Metallic Paint has nothing combustible in it except the oil with which it is combined, and the union of the oil with the most left in the the Carbon of the part of the the metal (being both Carbons) is so perfect, that the cearacter of incombustibility is communicated to the compound so as to afford a pefect protection to any wooden roof, or other wooded ial oy it, from ignition by sparks or flakes of fire driver by the wind.

The Paint is therefore specially adapted to the protection of roofs, and wooden buildings of any kind, exposed to the action of sparks, or other flying ignited matter, in cities and towns and along the lines of rail roads, or wherever exposed to such 2. It forms, when applied to iron, a perfect protection against oxidation or rust, whether the iron be exposed to the atmosphere as in railing, or
