HISTORY OF LIFE. l saw an infant in its mother's arms;
Years passed—I saw a girl with woman's charms
In sorrow weeping.

Years passed-I saw a mother with her child; And o'er it languish;
Years brought me back; yet through her tears she
In deep anguish. [smiled

I left her—years had vanished; I returned, And stood before her; A lamp beside the childless widow burned-Griet's mantle o'er her! In tears I found her whom I left in tears,

On God relying;
And I returned again in after years,
And found her dying. An infant first-and then a maiden fair-A wife—and then a mother— And then a childless widow in despair—

Thus met a brother! And thus we meet on earth; and thus we part, To meet—oh! never

Mr. Calhoun's Last Moments.

We find in the Charleston Mercury the following is evidently from one who witnessed the departure of the great Statesman of the South. He says, Vesterday it became clearly apparent that he could survive but for a very short period. He was restless and evidently weaker, but notwithstanding restless and evidently weaker, but netwithstationing he set up for two hours in the early part of the day. He could not tear himself away. "She is a most fascinating creature," thoughthe, "and good letters were read to him, upon which he commented. He remarked that he felt unusually wakeful, and requested his son to lie down, who objected. Then he asked his son it he felt uneasy. His son replied: "I do;" "had you not better take some wine, father?" He replied: "No; his pulse, remarking, that it was very low. Mr. Calhoun said: "I feel that I am sinking; but you had better lie down, John." His son did as he was requested, but felt very measures the difference of your hand.

He did so, when Mr. Calhoun put out his arm and asked him to feel his pulse, remarking: "I have no pulsation Take my watch from the table and ir trunk;" which was done. He then sinted to a bureau of drawers, and said: "Take! my papers, and put them also in your trunk."-(These papers are the manuscript work on Govern ent and the Constitution.) He then remarked: "The medicine has had a delightful effec in a perspiration." At about 5 o'clock his son took a seat by the fire, desiring his father to take some rest, who said he had not rested at all. His son asked him it he had any pain. He replied:-"No, I have not felt the slightest pain throughout this whole attack." His son asked: "Are you comfortable now?" He replied: "I am perfectly

A Short and True Story.

David Wentworth had the kindest of hearts.-There was neither mete nor bound to his benevo-lence, except inability. And happy were any man who had a tithe of the prayers that were offered up for the welfare of my friend, by the untortunate and wretched whom his hand had relieved. I speak of prayers—for it was the only reward the obtained; I mean here—but I forgot.

David was paying his attentions to an excellent young lady of his native city. She was wealthy, beautiful and accomplished, and consquently had many suitors. Among them were richer and nobler (in extraction I mean) and handsomer men than David Wentworth but n'importe there was a kind of frank-heartedness about my friend, that could not fail to bring him somewhere near the heart of his mistress, even if an emperor had been his rival The young lady hit upon a project to put the characters of her lovers to the test. She had found a poor widow with a family, in distress, in one of her benevolent excursions, and the idea occurred to her, that it would be a good opportunity to ascer-tain what sort of stuff her lovers' hearts were made Letters were forthwith indited, setting forth the good woman's tale, and forwarded to the different gentlemen in the widow's name, requesting an

The first reply was a lecture on idleness and begging, and concluded with information that the writer was not accustomed to give to those he did not know. This was from a $10,000 a year. The second advised her to apply to some of the benevo lent societies whose business it was to relieve those who were truly in want. This was from one who taken a leading part in the several charitable asso ciations, and whose pharasaical liberality had been blazoned in the Gazette. The lady thought, that interested as he was in the success of those institu ions, he displayed a very commendable reluctance about taking the business out of their hands. A third from a good-hearted and generous kind of sellow—enclosed her a five dollar bill with his compliments. Several took no notice of the poor wom in's petition. But there was another answer which the lady read with far different faings. It was from David, from $800 a year—and I need not say like himself, kind and consoling. It spoke of the writer's narrow means, the rule he had adopted, un less persuaded of the object, and concluded by requesting an interview. "If," said he, "I find myself unable to afford the assistance you require, I trust I may be of service in interesting others in your behalf. Nor was this mere profession. For it was but a few weeks before the widow found herself comfortably located, and engaged in a thriving little business, commenced by the recommendation, and carried on by the aid of my friend. And all this was done in genuine scripture style. There was no sounding of trumpets—and the right hand knew not the doings of the left. But his lady love was a silent observer of his conduct, and he received many a kind statement, which is characterized by that paper as glance from that quarter, of which he never sus- has come to be the universally admitted opinion "the official account of the last hours and death of Mr. Calhonn." # Andrew Jackson.

This pure and inflexible old man, whilst living, received a full share of the abuse and calumny of his enemies. Now that he is dead, his loss to the Nation is most severely felt. Mr. Webster, in his last great effort, pays the following compliment to the patriotism of the illustrious dead:-

"I hear there is to be a convention at Nashville. I am one who believes that if those worthy gentle-men meet at all at Nashville, in convention, their object will be to adopt counsels of moderation—to advise the South to forbearance and moderation, was never clearer; that he had great facility in ar- and to advise the North to measures of forbearance ranging his thoughts; and in reply to a remark of his son's, that he was fearful he was overtasking love, and affection and attachment in every part of his son s, that he was rearrul ne was overtasking his mind with thinking, he said. 'I cannot avoid thinking of the political affairs of the country. I could have but one hour to speak in the Senate, l could do more good than on any previous occasion of my life."

> The Comet of 1264 .-- The attention of astronomers is now, and for some time has been, directed to the great Comet of 1264, which is supposed to have returned in 1556, and which is ex pected to re appear about this time, It is supposed to have a period of about 292 years; to have its perihelion within the orbit of Venus; and at aphel to be nearly one hundred times the distance of the earth from the sun. Messrs, Barber and Hind of England, have expended a vast amount of labor in calculating the return of this comet; and accord ing to them, it is possible that, though expected it 1848, it may be retarded by Saturn, Uranus, and Neptune, till 1851. It appears by a letter published in the National Intelligencer, from Professor M. F. Maury, that the Rev. Mr. Jenkins, of Georgetown college, on the evening of the 28th of Novembe last, while at sea on a voyage from Baltimore to Rio saw a comet very distinctly, near the track of the sun in the west, about 14 deg, above the hor zpn. It was quite light, apparently as large as Mars, tail curved, and pointing southward, and nearly a degree in length, as visible to the naked ye, but much larger when viewed through the spy glass. It was seen for twenty minutes by all the crew, when a cloud intercepted it, and was not af terward seen. The information is too indefinite for any one to decide upon the identity of this comet with that of 1264 and 1556; but high chara-ter of Mr. Jenkins, it is not doubted that

WASHING REDUCED TO A SCIENCE. Stephen Crane's Patent Compound Wash Mixture.

THIS mixture is one of the most useful and important inventions of modern times, for washing clothes perfectly, with astonishing facility and despatch, and without injury to texture or color.

Every family, of whatever size, can do all their washing in one-third the time, exclusive of the rinsing and drying, without the labor of subbing, pounding, bleaching or boiling, thus saving time, expense and labor; while clothing itself will be saved from the wear and tear of machines and friction, and last much longer. Also for washing surfaces, and every article or thing which may require cleansing. The mixture may be obtained. surfaces, and every article or thing which may require cleansing. The mixture may be obtained for Lancaster county, at the Book St. re of Judd & Murray, opposite the Post Office, Lancaster city. All this can be tested at a small expense, and we most ample assurance that business placed in his hands will be attended to in such manner as cannot fail to afford satisfaction. in and for the counties of Lancaster, Berks, Lebanon, Dauphin, Schuylkill, Northumberland, Luzerne, Susquehanna, Wyoming, Wayne, Pike, Carbon, Northampton and Monroe.

Beware of imposition, as all violation of the Patent will be prosecuted.

Address MARTIN, JOHNS, Agent,

The undersigned, citizens of Lancaster city, have, for several weeks past, been using in their families "Crane's Patent Improvement in Wash Mixture," a compound for washing clothes and other purposes, and are perfectly satisfied of its incomparable utility. Upon the score of economy it waves one-
