- HOME IS WHERE THE HEART IS. 'Tis Home where'er the heart is, Where'er its loved ones dwell,
- In cities or in cottages,

  Thronged haunts or mossy dell;
  The heart's a rover ever,

  And thus on wave and wild, The maiden with her rover walks, The mother with her child.
- 'Tis bright where'er the heart is; Its fairy spell can bring Fresh fountains to the wilderness,
- And to the desert—spring.
  There are green isles in each ocean,
  O'er which a section glides;
  And a heaven on each sunny shore,
  When Love's the star that guides. Tis free where'er the heart is;
- No chains, nor dungeon'd in, May check the mind's aspirings, The spirit's pealing hymn!
  The spirit's pealing hymn!
  The heart gives life its beauty,
  Its glory and its power,—
  'Tis sunlight to its rippling stream,
  And soft dew to its flower.

The Lovers of Vire,

A BEAUTIFUL STORY. The sun was shining as fair as the sun could shine, on a lovely May morning—bright, yet gen-tle; warm but fresh (mid-way between the water-ing pot of April and the warming pan of June) the heautiful valley of Vire Stretched at he foot of a long steep hill, crowned by a pretty airy looking town, whose buildings, in some part gathered on the very pinnacle, in others running far down the slope, as if coquetting with the rich valleys that woo them from below, lay this loveliest of valleys that Nature's profuse hand ever gift-ed with beauty; the soft clear stream of the Vire winding sweetly along between the green sloping hills, and rich woods, and fields, and chateaux, and hamlets, and the birds singing their song of love. as its calm waters, silvered by the sunshine, roll beautifully by them. Could you but look upon it, you would not find it difficult to imagine, how the soul even of an obscure artizan in a remote age, that valley, and by the side of that stream. It was there in the beautiful Vale of Vire, some twenty years ago, that Francois Lormier went out to take his fast May walk with Mariette Duval, ere the relentless conscription called hise from his happy home, his sweet valleys, and his early love; it was a sad walk, as may well be imagined; for though the morning was bright, and nature, to her shame be it spoken, had put on her gayest smiles, as if to mock their sorrow, yet the sunshine of the scene could not find its way to their hearts, and all seemed darkened and clouded around them. They talked a great deal, and they talked a long time; but far be it from me to betray their private regrets, at this their tender leave taking. I would not for all the world—especially as I know not one word about it—except, indeed, that Francois vowed that the image of Mariette should remain with him forever—should inspire him in battle, and cheer him in the bivouac; and that Mariette protested she would never marry any body except Francois Lormier, even if rich old Monsieur Daoussefort, the great Foulan, were to lay himself and his fortune at her feet; in short, that when his even long years were out," Francois should find her still a spinster, and very much at his service.

the hearts of all the youths in the place, by her rned beauty and her native grace. But, still, Francois was not forgotten; and when several came, at different times, to ask her in marriage, he good dame, her mother, referred them directl to Mariette, who had always her answer ready, and with a kind word and a gentle look sent them away, refused but not offended. At length good old Monsieur Datoussefort presented himself, with all his money bags, declaring that his only wish was to enrich our gentle Mariette; but she was steady, and so touching did she talk to him about her poor Francois, that the old man went away with the tears in his eyes. Six months afterwards he died, when, to the wonder of the whole place, he left his large fortune to Mariette Duval!

Meanwhile, Francois, from a light handsom cript, became a brave steady soldier. Attached o the great Northern army, he underwent all the hardships of the campaigns in Poland and Russia, but still he never lost his cheerfulness, for the cheerfulness, for the e never lost thought of Mariette kept his heart warm, and even sian winter could not freeze him. All through hat miserable retreat he made the best of everyhing. As long as he had a good tender piece of saddle, he did not want a dinner, and when he met with a comfortable dead horse to creep into, he found board and lodging combined. His courage and his powers of endurance called upon him, from the first, the eyes of one, whose best quality was the impartiality of his recompense. Francois was rewarded as well as he could be rewarded; but at length, in one of those unfortunate battles, by which Napoleon strove in vain to retrieve his forunes, the young soldier, in the midst of his gallant daring, was desperately wounded in the arm. Pass we over the rest. Mutilated, sick, weary, and ragged, Francois approached his native valle and, doubtful of his reception-for misery makes and, doubtill of his reception—for misery makes sad misanthropes—he sought the cottage of Madame Duval. The cottage was gone; and on inquiring for Madame Duval, he was directed to a fine farm house, by the banks of the stream. He dragged his weary limbs thither and knocked tim-Entrez," cried the exceedingly good humored voice of the old dame. Francois entered, and unbidden, tottered to a chair. Madame Duval gazed for a moment, and then rushing to the stairs, called odly, "Come down, Mariette! come down, here is Francois returned!

Like lightning, Mariette darted down the stairs, saw the soldier's old great coat, and flew towards it-stopped-gazed on his haggard face, and empty sleeves; and gasping, fixed her eyes upon his coun Twas for a moment she gazed on him thus in silence; but there was no forgetfulness, nor coldness, nor pride about her heart—there was sorrow and joy, and love and memory, in her very glance. "Oh, Francois! Francois!" cried she at length, casting her arms round his neck, "how thou hast suffered!" As she did so, the old coat fell back, and on his breast appeared the golden cross of the Legion of Honor. "N'importe!" cried cross of the Legion of Honor. "N'importe!" cried she as she, saw it, "Voila ta recompense." He pressed her fondly to his bosom. "My record is here!" cried he, "My recompense is here!"

WESTERN ENTERPRISE .- A line of mail stages has been organized to ply between Independence and Santa Fe, and went into operation on the 1st July. Two stages leave Independence on the first of every month. The Independence Commonwealth thus describes their equipment:

The stages are each capable of conveying eight passengers. The bodies are beautifully painted, and made water-tight, with a view of using them as boats in ferrying streams. The team consists of six mules to each coach, the mail is guarded by 8 men, armed as follows:-Each man has at his sid strapped up in the stage, one Colt's revolving rifle; in holster below, one of Colt's long revolving nis ter below, one of Colt's long revolving pis tols; and in his belt a small Colt revolver, besides a hunting knife—so that these eight men are pre-pared, in case of attack, to discharge one hun-dred and thirty-six shots without stopping to load.

LIVER COMPLAINT, Abduction Case at New Orleans. A MELO DRAMA .- The New Orleans papers

ave lately given an account of the abduction of a young Polish girl by a mulatto, in New Orleans, he being rich, and representing himself to be white, and her subsequent restoration to her relatives by judicial decision. The girl most vehemently protested against this course, but it appears from the following, from the Crescent of the 15th, that upon deliberation she not only saw the error of her course, but avenged herself on the man who attempted to ruin her:-AN ATTEMPT TO KILL JAUBERT BY RESECCA BIEBNSTIEN.—This young girl, who was forced on Friday last to obey the order of the Court and return to her relatives, from the companionship of Jaubert, has, it seems, been fully satisfied of the falsehoods by which this man gained her person. Yesterday, wrought up to frenzy by the disgrace which he had entailed upon her, she undertook, with the aid of relatives and friends, to wreak a summary tevenge. She visited Jaubert at his store, corner of Julia and Tchoupitonlas street, and invited him to walk with her, stating at the time that she had just escaped from the custody of her family. The father of Jaubert, suspecting danger, insisted that he should not leave the house, but the llow declaring that he would face the world if

Rebecca were with him, donned his best attire and

Rebecca were with him, donned his best atture and accompanied her.

They proceeded to the corner of Annunciation and Race streets, followed at a short distance by three friends of the girl, who were there to aid her in case of emergency. During the walk Jaubert communicated the fact that he had offered $1,000 to an acquaintance, if he would assist him in again taking her from the guardianship of her family.—
While thus conversing, Rebecca suddenly threw off her bonnet, upbraided him in violent terms for his infamous course, told him that she was satisfied off her bonnet, upbraded him in violent terms for his infamous course, told him that she was satisfied of the falsehood of his solemn oath that he was not of negro blood nor a married man, and then with a motion too quick to allow his retreat, she drew a pistol from her dress, presented it and fired, the ball penetrating his cheek and shattering the teeth of his left jaw. Jaubert staggered, but the desperate girl finding her work but partially done, instantly drew another pistol and planting it directly in his drew another pistol and planting it directly in his girl finding her work but partially done, instantly drew another pistol, and planting it directly in his face, pulled the trigger. The weapon failed to sec ond her intention—it snapped, and her friends fearing violence from Jaubert, immediately came up to her aid. One of them, pistol in hand, advanced to the wounded man and offered a fair combat, but Rebecca declaring that she would vindicate her own cause, snatched the third weapon and again essaved cause, snatched the third weapon and again essayed to shoot the late companion of her flight, Jaubert retreated as the infuriated girl advanced; and he summer, a son of Mr. Abm. Crabill, of this counterteated as the infuriated girl advanced; and he owes his life to the fact that she could not, with her ignorance of the weapon, discharge the load.

A parley here ensued in this singular affair, and Jaubert, before the crowd of persons assembled, declared, that after Rebecca had left her home, he had but two interviews with her. both in the presence in the Weldon Herald, published at Weldon. but two interviews with her, both in the presence of others. They have absolutely become the standard Medicine of the day. They are purely vegetable and so admirably compounded that when taken in large doese they speedily cure acute diseases, and when taken in small doese they operate like a charm upon the in small doses they operate like a charm, upon the most delicate, nervous female, and have raised numbers from their beds when all other remedies had failed. We here refer to but a few of the many miraculous cures effected by the use of said Pills. SPINAL AFFECTION.—Anna Wood, of Rutland, Jefferson county, N. Y., was cured, after she had been confined to bed 5 years, with Spinal disease and Abscess of the Lungs. The bill of her regular Physician (Dr. Johnson, of Clay,) had amounted to $600. See circular.
