MARY'S AWAY. Spring hath returned once more, Mary,
To deck the earth in green;
Cold winter's reign is o'er, Mary,
He's vanished from the scene;
All Nature's aspect seemeth glad,
Where'er I roam or stray—

But, oh! this breast of mine is sad, I've watched and waited long, Mary, For thee I loved so dear; ror thee I loved so dear;
I've listened for thy song, Mary,
Through many a weary year;
But she whom I so much adore,
Has left me now for aye;
That voice I'm doomed to hear no more,
Now Mary is away.

Yet time keeps gliding on, Mary, The seasons come and go,
And here I linger on, Mary,
A prey to grief and wo;
Though once sweet happiness did seem
To bless me day by day;
Alas! mine was a fleeting dream,
For Mary is away.

Oh! whither hast thou gone, Mary? Why hast thou left me here? Deserted and alone, Mary,— Oh! why art thou not near? Oh! broken now is every vow, My mind's to grief a prey, And peace and I are strangers now

Vocal Music in Germany--How Taught.

Taught.

BY WM. E. BRADBURY.

Vocal music is, in Germany, deemed of such importance to all classes that, for generations, it has been, introduced by Government as a prominent branch of popular education. The child enters school at the age of eight years, and remains in the same school until fourteen or fitteen. No parent is allowed to remove a child from one school to another, (unless a change of location renders such removal heavy penalty. Commodious, convenient and pleasant school houses, and thoroughly qualified teachers in all the respective departments being provided, there is no other reason for removal than a change of residence. The advantages of remaining in the same school and indication that it is a same school committees. One of these advantages is the opportunity afforded to the teachers of studying and disposition, temperament, talent, or turn of mind of the puril. This, I believe comprehends almost eventure the provided and apparently in a dying state. Add to this the fifth of the room and the half naked condition of the sufferers, and we wonder not that the scene long haunted the observer. He went in. The girl could not speak, but the man cried "water" in a feeble voice, and pointed to the girl as if to attract the stranger's attention to her. The traveller, Mr. J., of Cincinnati, hastened away, taking with him at in pan, and says he never ran-harder in his life than he did about half a mile to a small stream handle to a small stream had about a mile to a small stream had a manually through the mud, throwing the old rathetrap of a buggy from side to side, as it groaned and creaked most mournfully. "Hillo!" vociferated his pursuer, more fiercely than he could not speak, but the man that then speak in a whisper. He pointed to the girl and said.—"she's starving." Mr. J. gave the girl some water, which appeared to which had a mile to a small stream had a friends of education, whether parents, teachers of studying and the water of the provisions and haster of the provisions and haster of the provisio disposition, temperament, talent, or turn of mind of the pupil. This, I believe comprehends almost every thing else, and is the corner stone of a thorough and useful education, both mental and moral. There seems to be three paramount reasons for making music a branch of school education in Germany and Switzerland. 1st. Its power, as a direct means of mental and moral discipline. 2nd, Its atractiveness as an amusement or relaxation from aborious study. 3d, Its advantages in after life to the pupil, both as a social and religious being. In house for of these particulars it is considered of great imall of these particulars it is considered of great inportance; and in the best schools I have visited, the chil Zurich and Berne in Switzerland, the popular course has been to adapt each music lesson to one or the other or all of these branches. To be more explicit. isic teacher either gives at one season of the year his particular attention to instruction in the elements of music and music reading; at another o rehearsal or singing for relaxation or amusemen and at another to practising the music of the church; else, as is more generally the case, he combines the three departments in one, and each lesson has its proportionate share, viz: 1st, practice of the music of the church, (choral singing;) 2d, instruc-tion in musical notation; 3d, singing of cheerful and lively juvenile songs, for recreation. This ar-The pupils begin to study note singing at the age of nine or ten years. Previous to that they sing chiefly or entirely by rote. This is considered advantageous until the musical ear is sufficiently rained and cultivated. The scale is first presented

He now tells them that these taken from one of the letters of the alphabet. This method is very thorough, although somewhat lengthy. The pupils sing almost entirely from books, the black-board being used merely for illus-The more advanced classes of pupils are improved by the frequent introduction and regular ractice of new and interesting music, rather than spent in the best schools, in practising the vowels, merely articulating them for the purpose of obtaining a good delivery, both in singing and speaking. But one of the pleasantest features of all is that the pupils are not wearied by too hard study, or if they become a little fatigued at any time, they know that some delightful recreation is to follow struction, and the pleasure of half an hour's social singing is a sufficient reward for persevering in any of the more laborious and less interesting exercises. I was much amused and delighted, on one occasion, o see the young countenances beam with a smile of approbation, amounting to "I thank you, sir," when the teacher, after a lesson of close elementary study, said, "Now we'll sing something lively," it is natural to children to love that music which is most like their own natures-light, joyous and free. Now they sing briskly, merrily, heartily, because naturally. The little mill-stream, that has so long been dammed up that it may ac once more set at liberty goes leaping, and dancing, and singing along its sparkling way, rejoicing in its freedom. So do these little singers pass from the heavy and useful, but not dull choral practice and elementary confinement, to the merry "song of the cuckoo" and "the lark" to the "singer's song," and the "song of father's birth day;" to the song the season—of the sun, and stars, of the "beauti-world and the blessed giver God," with the ever dear and welcome songs of "Vaterland." These are the daily occurrences of the "school room," and if you would know how such privileged children prize their school, you have but to step in and hea.

With us in America it is different. As a nation we have neglected entirely this subject in our early ducation, and the natural resit is that the large proportion of our adult population cannot sing, and thousands mourn over their loss when it is too late, or the pressure of care and business preyent them from attending to the subject. Could our school compilers that the subject is the subject of the subject o committees, trustees and parents, be prevailed upon to take this matter in hand, and be in earnest abo would have it properly and on a perbranch of study, not of recreation merely—an in calculable amount of good would follow. The next generation, at all events, would feel its revivifying fluences, in their social and home circles and in worship of the sanctuary, and would rise up and call us blessed."

He arrived the next morning before a cottage in an open field, and stopped to beg some thing to eat and concealment while he reposed a little. But he found the inmates of the cottage in the greatest distress. Four little children sat trembling in a corner, their mother was weeping and tearing her hair, and the father walking the floor in agony. The galley slave asked what was the matter, and the father replied that they were that morning to be turned out of doors, because they could not nay their reu. But after he was gone, the father asked a private interview of the mayor, to whom he told the whole story. The mayor was so much affected that he not only added fifty francs nore to the father's purse, but wrote immediately to the minister of justice, begging the noble young prisoner's release.
