BY THOMAS HOOD.

Those eyes that were so bright, love; But what they've lost in light, love, Was what they yee lost in light, love,
Was what they gave to mino.
And still those orbs reflect, love,
The beams of former hours;
That ripened all my joys, my love,
And tinted all my flowers.

These locks were brown to see, love, That now are turned to gray;
Bul the years were spent with me, love,
That stole their hue away.
The locks no longer share, love, When silvered by the moon.

That brow was fair to see, love, That looks so shaded now;
But for me it bore the care, love,
That spoilt a bonny brow.
And though no longer there, love,
The gloss it had of yore;
Still memory looks and dotes, my love,
Where hope admired before.

Fire in the Rear; OR, BILL JONES AMONG THE GALS.

The following story, contributed by a country friend, to the N. O." Delta." is too good to be lost, "though (says the Delta) its raciness may not accord with the exalted tastes of the Miss Nannyites, who dress the legs of their tables in frilled pantalettes, and faint over a nude cherub :"

Old Squire Parish was an hospitable old soul.— Every Friday evening it was the delight of the girls of the Academy, and the boys of the Schools and College, to go out to old Squire Parish's farm. bathe in the creek, search the orchard and the hen nests, and turn everything about the premises upside down. And old Squire Parish would sit in his chimney corner, pipe in mouth, and tell them stothe first settlement of the country, and nes about the first settlement of the country, and how "Old Hickory" whipped the Indians—for the old Squire had been in Jackson's army—and never let the boys off without at least one story about the "old man," as the Squire delighted to call the

One Saturday, about the middle of the afternoon Bill Jones—a wild, harum-scarum young fellow, of some sixteen winters—rode up to the Squire's door, and bailed the bouse. His summons was answered by that black young rascal Josh, who told Jones that the boys were gone squirrel hunting; but you better believe, Mass Bill, continued Josh, "that the gals is conveying on high the bush of the believe of the bush of the bus Josh, "that the gals is carrying on high. Why, Mass Bill, you can hear em equealing clean up here." Jones soon learned that the girls had gone to their usual bathing place, which was guarded by a "Dinah." On the other side of the creek, lay a broad sand bank, so that no one could approach it without being seen. Jones had been to the Squire's house so often that he knew all his stories "by and it was almost impossible to find the boys in the woods, so he determined to have some boys in the woods, so he determined to have some fun out of the girls. About a quarter of a mile up the creek lived "Old Aunt Judy," and there Jones and his attendant, Josh, immediately went. While Josh went to the old woman, and for a fo'pence purchased the largest gourd in her possession, Jones slipped behind the garden and threw off his clothes, then cutting off enough of the handle end of the gourd to admit his head, and making two holes for his eyes, he slipped it on his head and jumped into the stream. So soon as the ground renched the point above the bathing place, menced floating towards the shore until within lew yards of the bathers, when it drifted against a limb, which overhung the stream, and lodged. It Jones had looked through the loopholes, (he swears he did'nt) he' would have seen a sight that would have made the gourd itself blush. were three or four swimmers, alternately squatting down and rising up on their heels, and imitating the cry of the bull frog, and when one would say chug!" they would all plunge into the water, frog At another place they were striving to duck each other; while a third party was leading by force, into the water, a coy damsel, who had been too modest to undress before so many folks. But Jones' gourd did not remain long unnoticed in nd the damsel who espied it. sailed up to it, seized it, and with slight resistance off, and disclosed the curly head of Bill Jones!— Miss Betsy screamed and Bill Jones yelled! Miss Betsy and the other bathers rushed up the bank, and Jones, in his fright and confusion, followed turned on him, seized him threw him on his face, twined his arms around sapling, and having bound his hands with a 'ker-chief, Jones lay defenceless in the arms of his cap-The girls now leizurely dressed themselve and then each provided herself with a trim birch gan applying them to the back, sides, and legs of poor Jones. Jones twisted, and Jones writhed; he drew himself up, and he spread himself out; he egged and he prayed. But in vain. His captors were insensible to pity, until their rods frayed into ribbons. Alas, for poor Jones; he was not yet to escape. His tormentors provided themselves with fresh instruments, and stationed themselves in a row along the foot path of Jones' tree to the water's edge, and on the rock from which he was to plunge, was posted a stout country lass, strength he had often tried in a wrestle, and whose endurance he had often tested in a "brandance."— At last he was released, and told that he was to ru the gauntlet. He could not but comply. Straight ening himself up, and drawing a long breath, he started at full speed, as he thought; but at every step, something touched him that acceralated his known as "Jones' leap" ever since. Without stopping to see any more of his fair friends, Jones hastened to Aunt Judy's cottage dressed himself, gave Josh a thorough kicking, borrowed a sheep skin from Aunt Judy, mounted his horse and rode slowly back into town, And from that day to this Bill Jones has never shown stream that runs by its door.

across the stream at one leap. This rock has been

LADY SUBSCRIBERS .- The editor of a South ern paper pays the following compliment to his lady patrons, whom he justly regards as model

Women are the best subscribers in the world to newspapers, magazines, &c. We have been editor now going on eight years, and we have never yellost a single dollar by female subscribers. They seem to make it a point of conscientious duty to pay the preacher and the printer—two classes of unity that suffer more by bad pay (and no pay at all) than all the rest put together When ver we have a woman's name on our book we know it is just as good for two dollars and a half as a is for a ginger-cake. Besides, whatever they subscribe for they read, whether it be good, bad, or indifferent; if they once subscribe for a paper, they are sure to read it—upon the principle, we suppose, are sure to read it—upon the principle, we suppose, that if they did not, their money would have been thrown away—as an old lady whom we knew, for whose sirk servant of the suppose is the servant of the suppose of th sick servant girl the doctor prescribed a dose of oil; but as the girl would not take the oil, she took it herself, rather than let it be wasted. Hencee we say, they are the best readers. For these reawe had, any time in the world, rather have a Worthy the Ticket.

The Philadelphia Pennsylvanian now and the has a good hit at the follies or humors of humanity sketching them off with much felicity. The fol lowing will be appreciated. A Mr. Samuel Peabody was arrested by the watchman on suspicior of being intoxicated. The Mayor desired to know Samuel's opinion of the matter. He nargated his xperience thuswise: Well, sir I mout have been drunk, and I mou ot I can't pretend to say for certain. The fact s, I've done so little that way that I'll be blamed I know when I am drunk. I dare say some o the police gentlemen are better judges than I am, when it comes to that. But I'll tell you exactly what I did and how I felt, and if your honor con-cludes I was drunk, why I'll pay the fins and say no more about it. You see I was troubled with the wind, and took four glasses of wine for to start it Soon after a buzzing in my ears, and then the hiccops was awful troublesome, but that 1 thought vas the wind coming off. Then it seemed to me as I walked along the street, that an awning post or water plug every now and then would jump right before me, as if they meant to head me off. I was a little mad at this, and struck one or two of them with my knuckles, but I found that it was no use for my fist got the worst of it. It seemed like all the gas-lights had faces to them, some winked and some grinned at me, and one that stood before a hotel, nodded as if it was acquainted with me, and made a sort of a sign towards the door, as much acceptable of the stood before a sign towards the door, as much made a sort of a sign towards the door, as much acceptable of the stood of the sto made a sort of a sign towards the door, as much as to say, Go in, Sam, and get something to drink.' Which I did. When I come out there was the greatest to do that I lever saw, I was sure there was an earthquake, for the houses and steeples were all staggering about, and the street was rocking just like a cradle. It was a most sure thing speciable so I fatched up against a numbuling speciable so I fatched up against a numbuling speciable so I fatched up against a numbuling special seconds. blime spectacle; so I fetched up against a pump, and held on while I took a good look at the mag. nificent scene. No panorama could come up to houses, trees, fences, all rearing and plungig like wild horses! The sight was worth a dollar and a half, any how. If I have to pay a fine, I dont care for I got the full value of my money.

A Snorer's Troubles.

A pale, melancholy looking man, of forty o thereabouts, was brought up on the too common charge of sleeping out of doors. He did not look like a person of intemperate habits, and the watch-man inclined to the belief that he was not drunk at the time he was detected in the offence of sleeping on the pavement. At the request of the Mayor the prisoner told his story; and the following is a outline of the singular narrative:

"My name, (said he,) is Moses White. I am an nnocent man. My misfortune all arose from a nabit, over which I have no control. It is somehabit, over which I have no control. It is some-times said mockingly of boys, that they are 'very good when they are asleep: I That observation never could apply to me, for it was during my hours of slumber that I always; gave most offence to my friends, relations, acquaintances and neigh-bors. Not to keep you in suspense, venerated sir, I snored, hideously, horribly, supernaturally. The combined racket of three saw-mills and five cotton factories could not compare with the frightful din produced by the passage of the air through my breathing apparatus while I refreshed myself with tired nature's sweet sestorer. At the age of eighteen, my father turned me ont of doors, declaring hat such villainous snoring could not be permitted in any well regulated family.

"After years of adversity and vicissitudes, I succeeded in establishing myself in a very good business. I paid my addresses to a lovely girl, wedded -alas! the gentle creature never complained, but I, wretch that I am, knew what was wasting her away! Sir, it is horrible, but the truth must be told; my unhappy young wife was snored to death! I married again, and after three weeks of nightly torment, my second spouse sued for a divorce. She obtained one, by proving that it was impossible for a woman to sleep in the house which I inhabited. I sold my furniture and took lodgings; but I never could remain in any boarding house or hotel more than one week. My fellow lodgers, harrassed by my nocturnal discord always arose en masse, and insisted on my exp was I hunted from all sleeping associations, and was constrained at last to take my solitary nap, with no roof but the cope of heaven, over my head. But my fate had not done with me yet; for while was sleeping in a private street last snoring was so tremendous that it awakened this watchman, who was dozing on a bench half a square off. When they brought me to the station house, I snored the whole police force into a kind of delirium tremens, and if your honor sends me to the Tombs, I verily believe that my snoring will produce a fatal epidemic among my fellow prison-

A Cute Trick.

French women are noted for adroit swindling perations, which are alike celebrated for their success as for their novelty. We record an instance A fashionable lady recently drove up in a handsome rivate carriage to a well known lunatic asylum, situated a few miles from Paris, and requested to see the proprietor. Her wish being acceeded to ed the doctor that she desired to place her husband under his care, to see if a cruel mania uder which he labored, viz :-- that he had lost arge quantity of jewels-could not be removed.-After some hesitation the doctor consented, and the ady, on receiving his assurance, drove directly to value of several hundred pounds. Requesting a clerk to go with her, in her carriage, to procure the money for the goods she had taken, she drove with him to the insane asylum, and arriving there he was shown into a room. The lady then sought the doctor, told him of the arrival of her husband, and getting into her carriage again, drove rapidly away. The poor clerk after waiting and waiting grew impatient and violently rang the bell. The doctor made his appearance, and the clerk com-menced eagerly to enquire after the lady and his lewels, was forced into a straight jacket, the malady complained of as the doctor imagined making its appearance. He was confined several days be fore the lady's ruse was discovered. She and the jewels are as yet nonest .- N. Y. Mirror. ave struck two veins of Coal at the Delaware Company's shaft: the four feet vein at 462 feet be ow the water level; the seven feet vein, 20 fee eper. Probably within 20 to 30 feet further, at which was the object of the search, and the bold promise of the theorist who induced the costly ad-venture. We say, probably within 20 or 30 feet this mammoth Coal vein will be found. We feel ittle risk in the prediction, because the measures already penetrated answer exactly to the anticipations and the predictions of Mr. McGinnes, the nonprofessing geological projector—to whom be im-mortality and wealth. He has done for our Coaleld a service that we do trust will secure to him at least the fair and reasonable reward to which he is entitled, for his labor of brain, and the persesecuting scoffs he has endured for a year, from pro-fessed geologists and boasting practised miners.

To give a general idea of Mr. McGinnes's discovery, we will simply explain that it reveals the existence of all our big white ash coal seams underlying, at workable depths, all our red and grey ash coal veins; instead of their being confined to a parrow helt on the Northern nob boundary of this coal, and the value, of course, of three-fourths of this whole Schuylkill Coal basin—a sum which many millions of Dollars, many times told, only can express

PANTALOONS AND PANTALETTS .- On this subject the editor of the Detroit Free Press says he is for compromise. It the ladies get in the way of wearng the pantaloons, there is no use in opposing them to laugh at them, will do no good, to ridicule them dangerous, besides in such contests we are al ways sure to be worsted. And then they have ad vantages for concealing their defects, of which we are deprived, in short-"If they will, they will, you may depend on't; If they won't, they won't, and there's the end on't."

DR. JOHNSTON. DR. JOHNSTON,

Member of the Royal College of Surgeons, London, Graduate from one of the most eminent Colleges of the United States and the greater part of whose life has been spent in the Hospitals of London, Paris, Philadelphia, and elsewhere, has affected some of the most astonishing cures that were ever known. Many troubled with ringing in the ears and head when asleep, great nervoueness, being alarmed af sudden sounds, and bashfulness, with frequent blushing, attended, sometimes, with derangement of mind, were cured immediately.

TAKE PARTICILLAR NOTICE.

TAKE PARTICULAR NOTICE. Dr. J. addresses all those who have injured hemselves by private and improper indulgencies, hat secret and solitary habits, which ruin both ody and mind, unfitting them for either business body and mind, unfitting them for either business or society.

These are some of the sad and, melancholy effects produced by early habits of youth, viz: Weakness of the back and limbs, Pains in the head, Dimness of Sight, Loss of Muscular Power, Palpitation of the Heart, Dyspepsia, Nervous Irritability, Derangement of the Digestive Functions, General Debility, Sympioms of Consumption, &c.

Mentally.—The fearful effects on the mind are much to be dreaded: Loss of Memory, Contusion of Ideas, Depression of Spirits, Evil of Foreboding, Aversion of Society, Self Distrust, Love of Solitude, Timidity, &c., are some of the evils produced:

Weakness of the system, Nervous Debility and premature decay generally arises from the destructive habit of youth, that solitary practice so fatal to the healthful existence of man, and it is the young who are the most apt to become its Victims from an ignorance of the dangers to which they subject themselves. Parents and Guardians are often misled with respect to the cause or source of disease in their sons and wards. Alas! how often do they ascribe to other causes the wasting of the frame, Palpitation of the Heart, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Derangement of the Nervous System, Cough and Symptoms of Consumption, also those scrious Mental effects, such as loss of Memory, Depression of Spirits or peculiar fits of Melancholy, when NERVOUS DEBILITY.

Mental effects, such as 1088 of Melancholy, when sion of Spirits or peculiar fits of Melancholy, when the truth is they have been caused by indulging Pernicious but alturing practices, destructive to both Body and Mind. Thus are swept from ex-istence thousands who might have been of use to their country, a pleasure to their friends, an ornament to society.
