"A Song for the Ladier." BY CARRIE.

It never gives me trouble how
My beaux and friends are drest,
If with boyish caps they make their bow,
Or trip me Oxford's best.

I care not if they visit me

In dress coats or in frocks,
It is the man I wish to see—
The tailor's work but mocks.

I do not care a cotton thread,

If gaiter boots they wear, I never bother my poor head With any such a care.

But now when we are tired of skirts, And wish to change the fashion, These mawkish, gawkish, dandy flirts, All get in such a passion.

What! woman wear the pantaloons! b us of our apparel! Thus loudly cry the silly loons, And each takes up the quarrel.

You busy bodies, sleek as moles, Drones in the hive, not bees, Just " lay this unction to your souls," We'll wear just what we please.

If Turkish trousers suit our eyes, And shorter skirts we'll wear 'em; And woe betide him then who tries To make us girls for swear, em!

The Model Husband.

His pocket book is never empty when his wife calls for money. He sits up in bed, at night, feed-ing Thomas Jefferson Smith with a pap spoon, while his wife takes a comfortable nap and dreams of the new shawl she means to buy at Warren's the next day. As "one good turn deserves another" he is allowed to hold Tommy again before breakfast, while Mrs. Smith curls her hair. He never makes any complaints about the soft molasses gingerbread that is rubbed into his hair, coat, and vest, during these happy, conjugal seasons. He always laces on his wife's boots, lest the exertion should make her too red in the face before going out to prome-nade Washington street. He never calls any woman "pretty," before Mrs. Smith. He never makes absurd objections to her receiving boquets, or the harem are the enuchs, all of whom are black.—
The chief of their corps is an aged "gentleman of color," possessing a Sultan's confidence in am eminent degree, and in official rank is higher than any velocipedes and crackers, without any aperiors asked. last novel from Captain this, or Lieutenant that .velocipedes and crackers, without any questions asked. He never breaks the seal of any of his wife's billet doux, or peeps over her shoulder while she is answering the same. He never holds the she is answering the same. He never notes the drippings of the umbrella over her new bonnet while his last new hat is innocent of a rain-drop. He never complains when he is late home to dinner, though the little Smiths have left him nothing but bones and crusts.

fore Mrs. Smith has a chance to run over the advertisements, deaths and marriages, &c. He always gets into bed first, cold nights, to take off the chill for vertisements, deaths and marriages, &c. He always gets into bed first, cold nights, to take off the chill for the purpose of serving their wives, sisters and its wife. He never leaves his trowsers, drawers, daughters; they cost four or five times as much as shoes, &c., on the floor, when he goes to bed, for his wife to break her neck over, in the dark, if the seldom po baby wakes and needs a dose of paragoric. If the children in the next room scream in the night, he home, and no officers of rank occupy it with him. don't expect his wife to take an air-bath to find out what is the matter. When he carries the children up to be christened he holds them right end up, and don't tumble their When the minister asks him the namehe says "Lucy-sir," distinctly, that ne need not the child, till the sermon is over, while his wife remains in church to receive the congratulations

If Mrs. Smith has company to dinner and there are not strawberries enough, and his wife looks at him with a sweet smile, and offers to help him, (at the same time kicking him gently with her slippe under the table) he always replies, "No I thank you, dear, they don't agree with me."

Lastly. He approves of "Bloomers" and "petti-

MINERAL WEALTH OF OHIO .- The Athens (O.) Messenger makes the following remarks respecting the iron mines of that State:

"That the iron business in this region is destined at no very distant day to become one of vast mag nitude, must be apparent to even the casual observer. Extending through the counties of Lawrence, Gallia, Jackson, Meigs, Vinton, Athens and Hocking, we have a belt of iron ore averaging some twelve miles in width, and extending a distance of one hundred or more in length, each square mile of which can be made susceptible of keeping up a furnace employing one hundred hands, and yielding eight tons per day, (valued at $25 per ton,) for any desirable period of time. Coal of the very best quality, from three to twenty and even thirty feet in thickness, also underlies the counties named, t gether with others-sufficient to last for ages as a means of fuel for for manufacturing in their midst. as well as for supplying the market demand north

Place fitty or a hundred or more of these furna ces at different points in this mineral region—each producing annually from $60,000 to $100,000 worth of pig iron—creating a great variety and in inexhaustible demand for business and labor— furnishing steady, sure and profitable home market for all productions of the soil-and who can calcuwith an available coal region occupying an area less than the counties of Athens and Meigs united, manages to produce annually $50,000,000 worth of iron-or an aggregate nearly equal to the entire agricultural exportations of the United States; and yet, at this day, the mineral region of Ohio alone s susceptible of being rendered four-fold more valuable than the entire mineral region of England!

ANECDOTE OF A WIDOWER.-A ministerial acquaintance of ours, who had lost his wife and had become wearied of his second edition of the single state, was once instructing a congregation from the passage 'Use this world as not abusing it,' &c. In the course of his remarks he took occasion to mention some things which a Christian could dispense with in this world. In this category he placed a wife. He had however, scarcely said, A man may do without a wife,' when his own experience stoutly protested, and he finished this branch of the subje saying in the simplicity of his heart but, my orethren, it's mighty hard.'

APPECTION .- "If there be reserved for human life a joy more exalted than all the others, it is that of beholding its last moments cheered by the fondness and affection of a virtuous progeny; and if there be a pang more agonizing than any other, it is that of a dying parent, whose last thoughts rest upon the crimes of a depraved but fondly loved and his Palaces.

One of the most interesting articles we have perused in a long time, appeared in the last num ber of the Knickerbocker Magazine. The subject discussed was the Turkish Government, and very many facts are related, which, to our readers, will e matters of interest. The present Sultan, Abdul-Mejid, is in his twen ty-ninth year, and succeeded his father in 1839, when but seventeen years of age. Previous to his accession to the throne, but little was known of his early life, or the way in which he was brought up. He had several sisters and one brother, all by other mothers than his own. The former have since his accession died, with the exception of one, who is the wife of the present Minister of war. His brother still lives, and re-sides with the Sultan in his palace. The mother of the Sultan was a Circassian slave. She still lives. She is a large, portly lady, yet in the prime of life and resides with her son, over whom she exercises great influence. In person the Sultan is of middle stature, slender and of a delicate frame. His address when unrestrained by official forms and ceremony, is gentle and kind in the extreme-more affable and engaging than that of his Pachas; and no one can approach him without being won by the goodness of heart which his demeanor inditunate, and he takes a peculiar pride in bestowing his honors upon men of science and talent. Among his own subjects he is very popular and much be-loved; they perceive and acknowledge the benefit of the reform which he has instituted, and he no longer need apprehend any opposition on their part. In some of the more distant portions of his empire, such as Albania, where perhaps foreign influences is exerted to thwart his plans, his new system of military rule has not yet been carried out; but it evidently soon will be, especially when its advantage over the old is felt by the inhabitants. The palaces of the Sultan, on both banks of the

Bosphorous, though externally showy, are very plain and simple in their interior arrangement.—
They are surrounded by high walls and guarded by soldiery. The first block of buildings which the traveller approaches on visiting them, up the Bosphorus, are the apartments of the eunuchs, the sec-ond his harem, or female apartments, and the third those of the Sultan. Beyond these are the offices of his secretaries, guard, and band of music, all beyond the walls of the palace. The number of eunuchs is some sixty or eighty, and the females in the harem are about three to four hundred. The Sultan never marries; all the occupants of his hahim, and who succeed to his throne. The remainder of the semales are employed as maids of honor, who attend upon his mother, his savorites, his prother's and mother's favorite, if he have one, and upon his children. Many hold offices in the palace, and are charged with the maintenance of good order and regularity. Many of them are aged le-males, who have been servants to his father, his mother, and sister and brotner, and have thus claims upon his kindness and protection. The only males who have the right of entrance to the imperial the different ladies of the harem, do their shopping in the bazaars, carry their messages, and accompany them on their visits. Indeed, their duties are much like those of well bred gallants in our country, without any of the ambitious feelings which animate the latter; and certainly they never aspire to the possession of their affections. Some of them grow wealthy, possess much property, and slaves of both sexes, but as they can have no females, the Sultan is their legal heir. Eunuchs are possessed an ordinary black slave, and the highest officers sess more than ten of them at once.

seldom, however, commands their attendance : their duties are to keep watch at the principal entrances, and to salute him or any of his higher officers who may arrive at or leave the royal residence. secretaries write out his orders, and the chief of their number receives all foreign functionaries or Turkish dignitaries who visit the place on business One of them is the Sultan's interpreter, and translates articles for his perusal from the foreign papers received from Europe and America by the Sultan. All official documents are sent to the chief secretary by the different ministers of the Sublime Porte, and those received from the foreign embas sies and legations are translated there previous to being transmitted to the Sultan. No foreign legation ever transacts any official business vith the Sultan, or through the chief (private) Secretary; but the latter may be visited on ters relating to the sovereign personally. Docu-ments from the Sublime Porte are always communicated through the Grand Vizer, who has a num-ber of port folios, in which these are placed, and he sends them to the palace by certain functiona-ries charged especially with their conveyance. Of these the Vizer possesses one key, and the Sultan, or his chief Secretary, another. The Sultan passes several hours of the day, from eleven to three, in margin, either by his own hand in red ink (as is customary in China,) or he directs his Secretary to So very sacred are all manuscripts coming from his pen, that these papers seldom ever leave the bureaux to which they belong except af-ter his decease. It is only on such documents that the autograph of the Sultan is ever seen.

OUR ANGLO SAXON ANCESTORS!-The people of Massachusetts, says the Orleanian, are mor to boast of their Anglo Saxon descent than enizens of any other State in our Union. While England makes light of everything American and despises Americans, that consummate toady, Abbot Lawrence, a New Englander, and minister to Britain, beslavers the English on every occasion where opportunity offers. Wonder if our representative does not think more of Old England than New England? How otherwise, and he on the spot can he remain silent when such diatribes as the following from that mouth piece of the kiugdom, the Londo

Times, are poured out: "If the Americans do excite a smile, it is by their pretensions. Whenever they come out of their own province of rugged utility, and enter into competition with European confidence, they cerinto competition with European confidence, they certainly do make themselves ridiculous. Their furniture is groteeque, their carriages and harness are gingerbread, their carpets are tawdry, their patchwork quite surpass even the invariable ugliness of this fabric, their cut glass is clumsy, their pianos sound of nothing but iron and wood, their book binding is that of a journeyman working on his own account in an English market town, their day guerrotypes are the sternest and gloomiest of all guerrotypes are the sternest and gloomiest of all daguerrotypes, their printed calicoes are such as our housemaids would not think it respectable to wear. Even their ingenuity, great as it is, becomes ridiculous when it attempts competition with Eu rope. Double pianos, a combination of a piano and violin, a chair with a cigar case in its back, and ther mongrel constructions belong to a people

BT U. J. JONES. There is nothing in the wide world so well calculated to throw a chilling influence over the finest flow of animal spirits, as to be a victim by a bore a real Neddybray cackle—like the fife of Othello— an earpiercing bore. How then is it to be caught by one when the skies are lowry, business is dull, and you have a note to pay in the bank? Ah! don't mention it—a wet blanket aint a circumstance.

When I was in the tobacco and segar business, had just such a customer. He came down from the mountain once a week, to buy a couple hundred half Spanish segars, and he always made it the pretext to bore me for a couple of mortal long dency. I tried innumerable experiments to get rid of him, but all proved abortive.

It is hardly necessary for me to bore the reader with a repetition of my bore's conversation. It was of the usual mixture of hyperbole and braggadocia, mixed up with personal adventures, rare encounters, and wise saws from his own will. cording to his account, nobody could make him believe that any segars were made that sold for 40 dollars a thousand. "No, sir-ee, Bob." It wouldn't do to cram such stuff down his throat he wasn't green, if he was born among the foliage of the Allegheny mountains. If I advanced an cates. "How much?" "Well, just hold on a moment, until I explain. You see there are nineteen boxes and they cost me just $5 a box. Now, you shall have them in this way, give me one cent for the first, two cents for the next, and so continue doubling the amount on to the last box, until you take the whole nineteen boxes." "I'll take that offer," said Borem, springing from his seat; " let me call in a witness." "Certainly."

A mutual acquaintance was called in, and a for feit of $5 was put in his hands to bind the bar-gain, and we commenced operations.

"Billy Barnes," a rather eccentric divine, who ninistered to a Harrisburg congregation years agone, we think, about the time of the memorable tors, decidedly disapproved of the custom of leaving church during service, and one evening, while preaching, when a young lady of the congregation had got about half way up the aisle leading to the door, he at once "dropped his parable" and arrested her further progress, by bawling at the top of his voice; "There goes the devil's daughter! The damsel, unabashed, immediately turned around and courtseying gracefully, pertly replied—"Good-bye father," with an emphasis on the word "father" that was unmistakeable. These are some of the sad and melancholy ef-These are some of the sad and melancholy effects produced by early habits of youth, viz: Weakness of the back and limbs, Pains in the head, Dimness of Sight, Loss of Muscular Pawer, Palpitation of the Heart, Dyspepsia, Nervous Irriability, Derangement of the Digestive Functions, General Debility, Symptoms of Consumption, &c. Mentally.—The fearful effects on the mind are much to be dreaded: Loss of Memory, Confusion of Ideas, Depression of Spirits, Evil. of Foreboding, Aversion of Society, Self Distrust, Love of Solitude, Timidity, &c., are some of the evils produced.

NERVOUS DEBILITY.

Weakness of the system, Nervous Debility and premature decay generally arises from the destructive habit of youth, that solitary practice so fatal to the healthful existence of man, and it is the young who are the most ap to become its Viciliums from an ignorance of the dangers to which they subject themselves. Parents and Guardians are often misled, with respect to the cause or source of disease in their sons and wards. Alas! how often do they acribe to other causes the wasting, of the frame, Palpitation of the Hent, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Derangement of the Nervous, System, Cough and Symptoms, of Consumption, also those serious Mental effects, such as loss of Memory, Depression of Sprits of peculiar firs of Melancholy, when the truth is they have been caused by indulging NERVOUS DEBILITY. sion of Spirits of Peculiar his of Metancholy, when the truth is they have been caused by indulging Pernicious but alluring practices, destructive to both Body and Mind. Thus are swept from existence thousands who might have been of use to their country, a pleasure to their friends, an ornament to security.

WEAKNESS OF THE ORGANS WEARNESS OF THE ORGANS immediately cured and full vigor restored.

Oh, how happy have hundreds of misguided youths been made, who have been suddenly restored to health from the devastations of those terrific maladies which result from indiscretion.
