Miscellaneous.

Love's Remembrance.

I will remember thee,—in that still hour When like a stream of beauty, from the west, Heaven's sweetest beam shed down a golden dowe Of light upon the waters,—whose unrest And moodiness might well be charmed away, By the pure loveliness of that soft ray!

I will remember thee,—when night hath thrown
Its dreams around the sleeper, and repose
Hath calmed the worn and aching spirit down
To brief oblivion of its waking woes;
Then—when deep silence reigneth over all,
My lonely thoughts thy image shall recall.

I will remember thee,—when morn hath hung
Her banner on the hills,—and kindling dreams of sunlight, in warm diamond showers are flung
Upon the surface of the bounding streams
Which move in their exulting course along,
Free as the murmurs of their own wild song.

I will remember thee, -- when summer's balmy sigh Breathes o'er the mountains, and the laughing earth

Is zoned with roses—while deep melody

Ilath in the woods, with the wild flowers, it

From joyous birds, who mid their green homes ther pour forth their music on the clear blue air. I will remember thee, -through many a scene

Of pleasantness and solitude;—for thou Upon my dark and troubled path hath been A vision blest and cheering,—as the bow
That spans the thunder-clouds: a thing of light,
As early hope's first dreamings pure and bright.

A Touching Story.

The following affecting story purports to have been given by a father to his son, as a warning de-rived from his own bitter experience of grieving and resisting a mother's love and counsel:

"What agony was visible on my mother's face when she saw that all she said and suffered, failed to move me! She rose up to go home, and I folowed at a distance. She spoke no more to me till she reached her own door. 'It is school time now," said she. "Go my sor plied firmly.

"Certainly you will go, Alfred, I command you "Certainly you will go, Alfred, I command you.
"I will not!" said l, in a tone of defiance.
"One of two things you must do, Alfred—either go to school this moment, or I will lock you in your room, and keep you there till you are ready.

"Alfred, choose now," said my mother, who laid her hand on my arm. She trembled violently and was deadly pale. If you touch me, I will kick you," said I in a terrible rage. God knows I knew not what I said. "Will you go, Alfred?"

"No," I replied, but quailed beneath her eye.

me !—1 raised my foot and kicked her—my sainted mother. How my head reels, as the torrent of memory rushes over me! I kicked my mother—a leeble woman—my mother. She staggered back a few steps and leaned against the wall. She did not look at me. I saw her heart beat against here. "Then tollow me," said she, as she grasped my arm firmly. I raised my foot—oh! my son hear me!—I raised my foot and kicked her—my sainted

'Oh! Heavenly Father," she cried, " forgive him, he knows not what he does."

The gardener just then passed the door and seeing my mother pale and almost unable to support hersell, he stopped; she beckoned him in. "Take herseli, he stopped; she beckoned him in. "Tak this boy up stairs and lock him in his own room, said she, and turned from me. Looking back as she was entering her room, she gave me such a look—it will forever follow me—it was a look of agony, mingled with the intensest love-it was the last unutterable pang of a heart that was broken.

In a moment I found myself a prisoner in my own room. I thought for a moment I would fling myself from the open window and dash my brains t, but I felt afraid to die. I was not penitent. At times my heart was subdued, but my stubborn pride rose in an instant, and bade me not yield. pride rose in an instant, and bade me not yield.— The pale face of my mother haunted me. I flung and felt asleep. Just at twilight I heard a footstep approach the door. It was my sister.

"What may I tell mother for you!" she asked. " Nothing," I replied.

Oh, Alfred, for my sake, for all our sakes, say that you are sorry-let me tell mother that you are sorry. She longs to forgive you."

I would not answer. I heard her footsteps slowly retreating, and again I flung myself on the bed to pass another wretched and fearful night.

Another tootstep, slower and feebler than my sister's disturbed me. A voice called me by name.

I cannot tell what influence, operating at that ent, made me speak averse to my feelings .-The gentle voice of my mother that thrilled thro me, melted the ice from my obdurate heart, and I longed to throw myself on her neck, but I did not But my words gave the lie to my heart, when I said I was not sorry. Danger of Electioneering.

The Picayune rejoices in the possession of a live

Yankee as a correspondent, who having wandered as far south as Louisiana peddling notions, has settled down somewhere in the Caddo country, or some other undiscovered region of the State, and there concluded to run for Congress. The following extract of a letter to the editor of the Picayune, lescribing one of his electioneering tours, is a speimen of the luck he had in this delightful business "Well, I put up with a first-rate, good natured feller that I met at a billiard table. I went in and was introduced to his wife, a fine fat woman, who looked as though she lived on laffin; her face was so full of fun. After a while—after we'd talked about my gal, and about the garden, and about the weather, and so on-in came three or four children, laffin and skippin as merry as crickets. There warn't no candle lit, but I could see they were fine looking fellows, and I started for my saddle bags, in looking fellows, and I started for my saddle bags, in which I had put a lot of sugar candy, for the children, as I went along. "Come here," said I, "you little rogue, come along here, and tell me what your name is:" the oldest then come up to me, and says he:

"My name is Peter Smith, sir."
"And what's your name, sir?" said I.
"Bob Smith, sir."

The next said his name was Bill Smith, and the fourth said his name was Tommy Smith. Well, I gave em sugar candy, and old Miss Smith was so tipled that the lawfield of the said that the lawfield of the said that gave, em sugar candy, and old wiss 5 mith was 50 tickled that she laughed all the time. Mr. Smith looked on, but didn't say much. "Why," says I, "Miss Smith," I wouldn't take a good deal for them four boys, if I had 'em, they're so beautiful and sprightly.

"No," says she, laffin, "I set a good deal of store
by 'em, but we spoil 'em too much.
"Oh no," says I, "they're ra'al well behaved children, and by gracious, says I, pretending to be startled by a sudden idea of a striking resemblance tween them boys and their father, and I looked at Mr. Smith, "I never did see nothing equal to it," says I—your eyes, mouth, forehead, a perfect picture of you, sir," says I, tappin' the oldest on the pate. I thought Miss Smith would have died a pate. I thought Miss Smith would have the a laffin at that; her arms fell down by her side, and her head fell back, and she shook the hull house

"Do you think so, Col. Jones" says she, and she looked towards Mr. Smith, and I thought she'd go off in a fit.

ou in a ni.
"Yes," says I, "I do really think so."
"Ha, ha, ha—how-w!" says Mr. Smith, kinder half laffin, "you're too hard on me now, with your jokes."
"I ain't jokin' at all says I, "they're handsum children, and they do look wonderfully like you."

Just then a gal brought in a light, and I'll be arned if the little brats did'nt turn out to be mulatdarned if the little brats did nt turn out to be minute toes, every one of 'em, and their hair was as curly as the blackest niggers. Mr. and Mrs. Smith never had any children, and they sort of petted them little niggers as play things. I never felt so streaked as I did when I see how things stool. If I hadn't I did when I see how things stood. If I hadn't kissed the little nasty things, I could a got over it: but kissing on 'em showed that I was in airnest, (though I was soft soapin' on 'em all the time;) how to get out of the scrape I didn't know. Mrs. Smith laffed so hard when she see how confused I was, that she almost suffocated. A little while afterwards there was a whole (gmilly of relations afterwards there was a whole family of relations arrived from the city, and turned the matter off but next morning I could see Mr. Smith did not like the remembrance of what I said, and I don't believe he ll vote for me when the election comes on. I 'spect Miss Smith kept the old fellow under that joke for some time.

Beauty in Men.

BY MRS. M. A. DENNISON. "I can tell when a woman's face is beautiful," said a friend to us the other day, "but I don't know what you call a handsome man," We might have referred him to the popular romances of the present day for a description of manly beauty, but having little sympathy for those think that in so saying we are correct.

"I do not like a pretty man With pretty lips and pretty walk, With hands that prettily sport a fan, And delicate lips that prettily talk,"

The frank, open countenance, cheerful with the light of a sunshiny disposition; the thoughtful, placid brow or low lips, firm when in thought, yet flexible and smiling in conversation, the goodness of a refined nature illuminating every lineamentgive us these in preserence to all your set, fine faces. And even the irregular seatures of what are called decidedly plain men, we have seen glow with an expression absolutely beautiful as some all pervading theme of interest lighted up the face, so that the crooked nose, even the heav orehead, and the dull eyes, have caught a reflec tion of the inner loveliness, the beauty of the soul.

Then, gentlemen, remember, it does not need the ir and face of an Adonis to please and interest us adies. Only let us read upon the countenance the stamp of a cultivated mind, or the quick lighting up of the eye, as some generous impulse prompts to an act of kindness; let us behold you e dignified and courteous, gentle and refin to all alike, even to the erring, delicate in your attentions (especially to us ladies,) unbending in your will only when in the absolute right, gentlemanly in your address, and neat in person, and we all will (those whose opinion is of any value of course) pronounce you handsome without a dissenting voice. Remember that the qualities of the hearts and actions of the life stamp the features with an ineffacable mark either with goodness or and cultivate those affections and habits which will write upon the tablets of your countenance that which no one reading can but love and admire.

Atrocious Villainy!

The trial of the individuals charged with various attricties at Detrict and its neighborhood, was still in progress at our latest dates. The testimony embodies a train of facts of the most startling character, and proves that a band of wicked men unted themselves trateling for the most injunities. united themselves together for the most iniquitous urposes. As a sample of the evidence we invite ttention to the following:

"On or about the 11th of September I had a conversation with Fitch, in which he said if they did not succeed in throwing off the trains during the State Fair at the Points, named West of Jack-son, Whitebridge, Dry Marsh, and at the high emnkment east of Francisville, they would burn the four depots at Detroit, Ann Arbor, Jackson and

"He said he wanted to show the people of Mich ican that the feeling against the road was not local.
If they could succeed in killing from 100 to 150 persons during the Fair it would bring the company to their terms—they would, if this did not do it, burn them. And he then proposed to give me or any body else $1000 for burning these four depots, or $250 for either of them; he said he thought I ould be a good person to do it, as I had frequent

It will be seen from the foregoing that the particulars of this transaction proposed to kill 150 persons for the purpose of bringing the railroad company to terms! This stated in a work of rowould be denounced as absurd and prepos terous in almost any age or country. Another witness testified that on the 20th of August last he, in connexion with several others, moved the track at Michigan Centre, and thus the train ran On another occasion two of the parties laid stick 12 feet long, a foot wide, and seven or eight inches thick, across the track over a culvert, and the train was thus injured and detained. At another time a piece of iron was placed on the switch, with the object of throwing the train off. On several occasions the cars containing passengers were stoned, and a witness was threat giving the enormous amount of 132,860 quarts, death if he should expose these diabolical move during his life time. The excise on this quantity ments. We trust the guilty parties will meet wit ments. We trust the guilty parties will meet with adequate punishment. The Coad Wheat.

Our readers will remember the notice which was taken of a variety of Wheat, which bears the name of the gentleman who had raised a considerable of the gentleman who had raised a consideration quantity last year from a small package obtained from the Patent Office—the extraordinary qualities awarded to this wheat, created considerable demand for it, and the seed was sold for $4 per bundled. and as high as $10 offered for it.

and as high as $10 offered for it.

A small package was obtained from the Patent Office in F340, by Geo. D. Coad, Esq. who presented it to his nephew, J. Edwin Coad, Esq., of Great Mills, St. Mary's Co., Md., who cultivated it in his garden in 1847—the product was a pint and a half in 1848, 2 bushels—in 1849, about 25 bushels —in 1948, 2 busines—1947, were sown, and 5 other-were made, 20 of which were sown, and 5 other-wise disposed of—in 1850, Mr. Coad reaped 300 bushels, 150 of which he sold or distributed gratuitously, and the other 150 bushels were sown from which his present crop was reaped. Just be-fore haivest, the father of Mr. Coad left with us some of the heads of his wheat, (of which he had also about 40 acres in cultivation.) and the accounts we had received of it, induced us to accept n invitation to visit him, to satisfy ourself of the character of the wheat then growing on his own and on the farm of his son. We arrived there on the 15th of June, and found some parts of the field ready for harvesting, we passed through it in various directions, to obtain a fair sample of the whole field, which was brought up and exhibited at the meeting of the State Society on the 18th ult .-There is nothing positively known as to the origin of this wheat—as well as can be remembered by he Messrs. Coad, the package from the Patent Office was labelled, that it was from New York, where 52 bushels to the acre had been raised from -another account, is, that it was received from Troy. The heads of the wheat are very compact; Troy. The heads of the wheat are very compact, rather long, with 3 grains in a bar, sometimes 4 are found—the grains unusually large—it is a white bearded wheat, the average height of the field was fully 5½ feet—the straw is very bright, uncommonly large at the bottom, gradually ta-pering to the head, where it is very small; this wheat ripens slowly, but is not a late wheat; the rain has improved each successive year since it vas cultivated, showing that it is peculiarly suited o our soil and climate. Mr. Coad's soil is princito our soil and climate. Air. Coad's soil is principally a white oak, heretofore limed, and the field had from 100 to 200 lbs. of guano to the acre put on it last fall; most of the field was corn ground, the wheat sown after the corn was taken off last year, it was seeded in October, some as late as the 15th of Wayney he and cultivated the some as his 5th of November and cultivated the same as his other wheat, some of it drilled in, (1½ bushels to the acre,) and some broadcast at 1½ to 2 bushels to the acre, but no difference could be found in the field between that where 1½ and the larger quantity was sown. Last year it escaped the rust, though several other varieties, viz: The China, the old Red Chaff, and Etrurian, in its immediate vicinity, were much injured by it, Etrurian less than others. In walking through various portions of the field, we could discern but little difference in any part of it; last year a picked acre, accurately measured, produced 35 bushels; the whole field averaged 25 to the acre, the season was far more favorable this year, and we can hardly be mistaken in saying, hat the field will produce an average of forty bu to the acre. Mr. Coad has about 100 acres in this variety, and his father, 40. We have never so glorious a sight, and we doubt if such a field was ever seen in this country before; certainly not in Maryland, the heads contained on an average 75 grains, twice as large as the common grains, some of the heads which were counted, had upwards of 100 grains. We have shown the samwe brought home with us, to gentlemen from the best wheat districts of our own, and the States of New York, Pennsylvania and Virginia, and with or New York, rennsylvania and Virginia, and with but a single exception, they all pronounced it su-perior to any other they had ever seen. Mr. Coad sold his surplus seed last year, as before remarked, for $4 per bushel, and has numerous orders on hand, some remaining over from last year. He

the third it is the first of the second of t Kissing .- A correspondent of the Wilmington Herald says the following rules have been adopted by the middle-aged married gentlemen, when they assume the priv assume the privilege of kissing their young and pretty cousins. They certainly (says the Richmond Whig) seem to have formed a very accurate conception of the proper manner in which this innocent luxury should be enjoyed:

"Of course you must be taller than the lady yo "Of course you must be tailer than the lady you intend to kiss; take her right hand in yours, and draw her gently to you, pass your left arm over her right shoulder, diagonally down across her back, under her left arm, press her to your bosom, at the same time she will throw her head back, and you have nothing to do but to bend forward and press your lips to hers, and the thing is done; don't make noise over it, as if you were firing off percussion caps, or trying the water cocks of a steam engine, nor pounce down on it like a hungry hawk upon an ocent dove, but gently fold the damsel in your arms, without deranging the economy of her tippet or ruffle, and by a sweet pressure upon her mouth, evel in the blissfulness of your situation without macking your lips on it as you would over a roast urkey.

MEXICAN CLAIMS ON THE U. STATES .- It ap pears the Mexican Government is trumping up large claims against the United States, under the reaty of peace with that country. The subject i ded to in a Washington letter to the New York Express:

I have seen to-day a foretaste of the claims which the Government of Mexico is preparing against the Government of the United States, for not ful-filling the terms of the treaty of San Luis Potosi. These claims are coming here in shoals, and those I saw to-day in the hands of single individuals were the amount of 11,000. The gentleman who held them was a Mexican; and in his opinion the whole amount of new claims will exceed sixted nillions of dollars.

They grow out of a violation of the article of the freaty, by which the United States was pledged to protect the Mexicans on the frontiers, from Indian depredations and spoliations. They demand remuneration now for houses burnt, cattle driven off, and a general waste of property they say to the mount of millions.

The Mexican Minister has already called the ttention of our Government to these demands, and ill push them home upon this Government with will push them nome upon this Overlinent white earnestness and determination. If our Government should be ultimately a great loser from these de-mands the wrong will fall upon Congress, which over and over again had its attention called by the President and Secretary of War to this most obectionable feature in the Treaty. It was one, however, which the Mexicans deemed essential to their safety, and without it they declared they would not ratify the treaty. I have just referred to the Treaty, and the Article upon this subject in that Treaty upon which reliance is placed for the recovery of losses by Indian depredations. This provision reeds in a man-ner which does not warrant the construction put upon it by the Mexican authorities, or those upon it by the Mexican authorities, of these claims for the in Mexico are husbanding up these claims for the purpose of a future depletion of the Treasury.—Says the Treaty, Article 1:
