Votes for Governor of Pennsylva nia, from 1799 to 1848, WITH A FEW REMARKS.

For the perusal of your readers, Mr. Editor, and the encouragement of the Democratic party, the ollowing table of the number of votes given at the several Gubernatorial elections since the organization of parties in 1799, has been compiled-by which it will be seen that the great Democratic party has uniformly been successful in electing their candidates, when united. And here I take occa sion to say, that the party has never been more firmly united than at the present time. The unanimous nomination of their worthy and popular candidate, Col. WILLIAM BIGLER, by the Reading Convention, has been enthusiastically received by the whole party, and the inspiring cry, from one the whole party, and the impring city, from one end of the State to the other, is Democracy, BIGLER and our glorious Uniton. In the language of the immortal JACKSON, they declare that "the Union must and shall be preserved." This is the true moist with which they have actuated user the spirit with which they have entered upon the campaign—and if the Democrats of the Uid Keystone but do their duty and every man of them go to the polls on the day of the election, success will as heretofore attend their efforts, when united, and they will secure one of the most glorious victorics ever achieved by them in this noble Democratic State, in the triumphant election of BIGLER, CLOVER and the whole State ticket:

majority, 297. At the last election there was some disunion the Democratic ranks. In addition, it was just at the close of the Mexican war-and the promises of the close of the Mexican war-and the promises of Gen. Taylor to remove no man from office on ac-count of his political opinions and principles, and that he would make no difference between Whigs and Democrats, had a powerful effect. Governor Johnston also publicly professed to be an indepen-dent Democrat, and pledged himself, if elected, to carry out Democratic measures. Owing to these promises, and the popular excitement in favor of Gen. Taylor, on account of his military services, many Democrats lost sight of their ancient land-marks and principles, and voted for William F. $3 50 each, according to quality. marks and principles, and voted for William F Johnston for Governor and General Taylor for President, and which elected Mr. Johnston by the meagre majority of 297 votes over Morris Long streth. Soon after the election, the Democrats than had voted for Johnston and Taylor found to their disappointment that they had been deceived by false promises and hypocrisy—and disgusted with the snare into which they had been brought, ro-turned to their old party and friends, determined never again to be caught by Federal trickery and durations. Thus it appears from the foregoing table and Thus it appears from the foregoing table and statement of facts, that the Democratic party have always been successful when united. I appeal to honest and candid men of all parties to say whether ing to hope for at the ensuing election but certain and overwhelming defeat. Col. BIGLER was once a poor printer boy, from which he has rise if to honor correct moral deportment. He is now in the prime of life—aman of undoubted talents, a clear-headed, strong-mided stateman, of great firmuess of char-ping law, and felt proud in having done so. He also defended W. F. Johnston in his pocketing the bill for the repeal of the scouth section—that he had a right to do so. Senator Cooper and Gibbons were severally abused for having the honesty. to denonnce it as being unconstitutional, they both having voted for it. These remarks were not ap-proved by the Silver Grays present, but as the management of the Meeting was entirely under the control of the Woolly-Heads, they were compelled to swallow it. In touching the Compromise Meas-ures, he said that Gov. Johnston was perfectly right in being in favor of its repeal—and that it should be repealed in the face of the "Nigger Drivers," and of all the charges of Fandicism, etc. Stevens concluded upon his favorite hobby of Atolitionism. How sensible Whigs can endorse such a man as Stevens is much to be wondreed at. Hiester, a Silver Gray—was then called upon by some of his clan. I did not hear his whole speech, but know that he had not the courage to attempt to repudiate the attack of Stevens on one of the Silver Greg chiefa—Senator Cooper. The Silver Grays had er-without spirit or enthusiasm—having proved a de-cided failure. Judging by the meeting the Whig prospects look blue. But I must close, as I have already occupied too much space: Ere long an opportunity may serve when you will again hear from opportunity may serve when you will again hea from WHISTLING JACK. LARGE OATS .- The editor of the Harford Ga zette has been shown several stalks of oats raised on the farm of Henry G. Waters, Esq., of Harford One of the heads numbered one hun county. One of the heads numbered one hun and thirty-three pods, and the whole number of grains amounted to two hundred and six.

TOBACCO .- The cultivation of Tobacco has neve been carried on to so great an extent in Pennsyl-vania as this season. The high prices which good Pennsylvania tobacco commanded last year, has given this impetus to its cultivation and caused many persons to engage in it who never before ed it. The most extravagant rents have been paid for land, to be used for raising tobacco. In some sections of Lancaster county as much as seventy-five dollars per acre has been asked and freely given. The present indications are, that the coming crop will not be an average one and con-sequently, there must be heavy losses to the growers With a few exceptions, all the fields we have seen give poor promise of a good yield. We hope however, that the balance of the season will prove more propitious, and the crop will be an average

SETH CLOVER, the Democratic candidate for Canal Commissioner, is a highly in-telligent Farmer, of great industry and sterling integrity, and in all respects well fitted for the office, in whose hands the public interests will be safe.

From the signs of the times, based on informa-tion derived from every section of the State, there cannot be a doubt of the success of the entire cannot be a doubt of the success of the entre Democratic ticket. No one doubts Col. BIGLER'S election—the only difference of opinion is as to his majority. Some put it down at 15,000, others 18,000—but it is pretty generally admitted that it 8,000-but it is pretty generally admitted that it will not be much short of 20,000, and I should not be surprised if it even reached beyond that figure. assured that Pennsylvania will redeen pledge to her sister States in achieving one of the most glorious victories ever obtained in our noble old Commonwealth, in the triumphant election of BIGLER, Gen. For the Intelligencer.

Inklings by the Wayside.

MR. SANDERSON :- Happening to pass through Millerstown last Friday, and witnessing the "Stars and Stripes" waving from one of the hotels, while some ten or twelve persons were standing around, I was induced to inquire, "What's going on ?" A Whig meeting," was the reply. Sure enough umbia. I then recollected that that was the day on which there was to be such a glorious rally of the so-called Whig party. About 1 o'clock in the afternoon, the number present did not amount to more than thirty, and the one half were of those patriotic Whigs of the county, who are so extremely anxious to serve their country in some office the coming fall. Their special duty appeared to be to take every person by the arm on their arrival, and privately inquir whether they will not endeavor to send delegates to the coming Whig County Convention favorable to their nomination. Oh, self aggrandizement! You could plainly note that the leaders were very much casterians ""-etc. The nour of 3 arrived, and as yet, but few were added to the number, when the ar-rival of the Chief of the Woolly Heads was the signal to proceed to business. Alter being drummed up by the Strasburg Brass Band, (which by the way per-formed admirably.) the whole number, including "Whice Duracewice add how a could not runch have Whigs, Democrats and boys, could not much have exceded 150. The meeting being organized, John Strohm attempted to deliver an address, but, as customary, his effort was an abortion. If have often wondered why John Strohm is ever called upon to speak, as every member of his party knows that his ability is inadequate to the task. His effort onened with something about war-more much war-opened with something about war-not much won-der that that should be uppermost in his mind-that it should haunt his thoughts by day, and his dreams by night. His vote to starse the American soldiery upon a foreign soil ! And yet such is the man on the Whig ticket who solicits the suffrages of the people of Pennsylvania for the office of Canal Commissioner. Mr. Strohm's remarks were all coolly missioner. Wr. Stronm's remarks were all coolly received. He concluded by saying that he knew some of the Democratic nominees to be honest and good men, and whose qualifications he did not doubt, but-but then-on, they were Democrats? The famous General of the Buckshot War, alias World. Wild Oblications Woolly-Head Chief, was next called upon. His appearance was greeted by one hurrah for "Dad Stevens," one for "Washington," and one for the "Gettyeburg Tapeworm!" The substance of his speech may be judged, as every one knows his forte to be vile slarg, and migrapresentation. We com-
