From the Baltimore Clipper THE DIAMOND.

A father had two daughters fair, One was quite young, the other older; The elder wore a dame like air, The elder wore a dame like air,
The younger, she was blyghe and bolder.
He said one day, "This diamond bright,
I'll give to her who proves the wittiest;"
Their large blue eyes beam'd at the sight
And no one knew which looked the pretty

The elder said, "The gem is mine, For all the young men in the city Acknowledge that Pin superfine, Not only beautiful, but witty; My eyes, they say, like diamonds are— My eyes, they say, like diamonds are
My teeth as beautiful as pearls;
My lips are rubies rich and rare,
And amber are my flowing curls!

Oh, then," the younger archly said, GH such a store of gems are thine, Some light donation should be made

Some light donation should be mad To poverty so rare as mine. That gent is but a frozen tear. By cold decedt so often shed; I shineth bright in fashion's "sphere It coldly shineth over the dead." 'You'r right; my child," the father cried, "This costly gem I give to thee,"
"Alas! alas!" the elder sightd,
"I thought the diamond was for me!"

"Well, take it," said the laughing child,
"And let it with the others glow;
But give me—and she archly smiled)—
In fair exchange your youngest beau!"

Wrongs Unredressed.

Curr Police, March 22 .- The lawyers, in order o show the perfection of their science, pretchil that for every wrong there is a remedy." The hard ass of Mr. Wm. Hedger, a worthy and much abusold citizen of Philadelphia, proves at least, that the use of the word "every" in the above proposi-tion, is not correct. Mr. Hedger, conceiving that his personal appearance might be improved by having some of the orange-colored fringe trimmed away from the lower part of his physiognomy, went into the barber's shop of Solomon Wright, seated himself in the chair of state, and submitted is chin to the skilful handling of one of Mr. Wright's operatives. The operation was successfully performed, until it came to that point when he artist makes use of his customer's nose as a andle, in order to give him a steady countenance hile the dangerous looking edge-tool is performing ils work in the vicinity of the wind-pipe. At this critical moment, Mr. Jonathan Perch, a barber from Kensington accompanied by his friend, Mr. Simeon Fox, entered the shop, armed with the aueiving the terrific countenance of his former "boss," tried to maintain his position by tightening his grasp on Mr. Hedger's nose, and thus resisted all the efforts of Perch and his friend Fox, to pill him dut of the shop. Perch struck at Richard's hand to make him relinquish his grip, but the worst of the Alore was required by the uplicitly Hedger on the hory was required by the uplicitly Hedger on the hory was required by the uplicitly Hedger on the hory was required by the uplicitly Hedger on the hory was required by the uplicitly Hedger on the hory was required by the uplicitly Hedger on the hory was required by the uplicitly hedger of the African Race, who point to Egypt as a proof of what that race has accomplished, are wholly upper lip, from which proceeded a stream of blood, which mingling with the lather with which H's face was well stuccoed, formed a composition strikingly similar in appearance to the mixture of brown and thickened milk, which is somemes sold for "strawberry ice-cream." Mr. Wright, the proprietor of the shop, seeing one of his worken assailed in this furious manner, snatched up a heavy wash basin and launched it at the head of Mr. Perch. Mr. P. dodged, and the basin revolving on its greater diameter, encountered the head of Mr. Hedger in its orbit, and made a crash almost equal to that which Mr. Whitson predicted would take place when a certain comet should run afoul of the earth. Mrs. Wright, who was in a back room, heard the smash of the valuable china basin, looked out, and perceiving Mr. Hedger in the midst of the fragments, reasonably concluded that he was re author of the damage. Looking about for some offensive weapon, she could find nothing better than a sheet iron vessel full of coal dust, with which she hastened to the scene of conflict, and completed a picture of distress by scattering a peck of ashes on the head of the afflicted Hedger. The smothering cloud which was raised by this discharge compel d all the persons engaged in the tumult to desis in order to clear their throats, eyes and nostrils from the penetrating dust. Mr. Hedger sought re-dress at the Mayor's office; but where was the le-gal remedy? Perch was justified in capturing his lugitive apprentice. Richard had taken hold of H.'s nose with the sanction of the owner, and his rough treatment of it was excused by the surprise and excitement of the moment. Mr and Mrs. Wright acted with the best intentions, and the in jury done to Hedger by them was the result of ac cident and mistake. In short, as in all cases of steamboat explosions and railroad disasters, "no-body was to blame," and Mr. Hedger, though a used up man, must do as Longfellow advises-"grin

An Apple-Woman Puzzlen.—A few days since, a pleasant looking, middle-aged man, with iron-gray hair, stopped at an apple-woman's stand on Chés-nut street, and paying for one of her finest pippins, he cut it in two, when, much to the woman's astonishment, a five dollar gold piece rolled out from the core. "Why," said he, "these are golden pippins you sell; shall I have another at the same price? She was so astonished at the occurrence as to be mable to reply, and the buyer, taking silen consent, cut another, when a golden seed, of still greater value, dropped from it. Recovering from her surprise, she refused to sell any more to him, and forthwith commenced cutting her apples up on her own account, without finding what she expect The purchaser was, after some haggling about uffered to pay for another apple, as woman was again surprised by a golden eagle be-ing found within it. A crowd had by this time gathered, who, recognizing Blitz in the purchaser about to cut another pippin, when Blitz offered to show her how to accomplish the feat. Handing her his own knife, he used a little magic powder and on cutting the apple she found her labors re warded with a quarter-eagle. This Blitz allowed her to keep in return for his joke, but cautioned the to cut up any more apples without borrowing his knife and some powder. Ledger.

KINDNESS.—The strongest bond of union in ciety is kindness. It may be shown at all times and under all circumstances, and is the cheapest of all the remedies for the numerous ills that affect us in the journey of life.

"A little word in kindness spoken.

May heal the wounded heart or broken >: And what is so sweet as the memory of a kind act. We may have contributed to the relief of disress, or given succour to the needy—made the widow's heart to rejoice, or dried the orphan's tears: There is a luxury in the thought that we have don that which blesses twice, him who gives, and him who receives. All without may be dark but the Who that has a heart to feel, or a hand to execute, will not be kind? Who consulting his own hapne is in our heart, the warmth lis there .ess, as well as that of others, will not do good and improve every opportunity to minister to the comfort of those around him, Visit the afflicted -spend an hour with the poor and distressed.

"'Tis worth a thousand passed
In pomp and ease—'tis present to the last."

First of April.

Just as we were about leaving our office yeste Just as we were about leaving our office yesterday afternoon, an urchin came to us and enquired "are you the man that reports for the papers? If you are, officer W—— says you had better come to Hughes' Quay and get the particulars of that horrible suicide that took place this morning."—Not waiting to hear more, and thinking that our light of the particulars of the particulars. wished us to receive the particular n advance of all others, we immediately in advance of all others, we immediately started with all possible despatch to procure the particulars of the horrid catastrophe. When we reached Hughes' Quay, we were almost out of breath, and with note book and pencil in hand, we began to enquire from the eager crowd on the what the rause of the assemblage, who the party was that had committed suicide, where the body was, &c.—

An old gentleman stepped up to us, and said "stranger, the body of the unfortunate young lady that committed suicide this morning is lying in there," pointing to a small frame house near the head of the dock, with windows, and doors shut, "and the Coroner has been sent for to hold an inquest." We of course being all anxiety could We of course being all anxiety, could quest. We of course being all anxiety, could scarcely restrain our impatience, and were about to proceed to jump the fence and endeavor to gain admittance in the rear of the house, when some me cried out "here comes the Coroner." We de isted, and sure enough there was the Coroner, alnost out of breath, endeavoring to summon a jury

After a considerable time, a jury was sworn, and off they started, we among the rest, to the house for the purpose of investigating the cause of the inhappy death. The coroner was a little puzzle how to act when he reached the house, and found it so securely fastened, but after consultation with the jury, it was determined to break the door in and enter; just as the door was about to be opened a little boy cried out that a window shutter in the yard was opened, and the window up. The core ner, jury and ourselves jumped the fence, and, oh, horrible to relate, when we reached the window, what a sight met our anxious gaze—there lay on the floor a female with her throat cut from ear to ear; a deathlike stillness prevailed for more than a minute, when the coroner, followed by the jury entered the window, and proceeded to examine the corpse, when, to their utter astonishment, they found that in reality, it was only a woman of strine. The coroner, jury and ourselves, left without uttering one word, and for the balance of the day, it appeared as if some one was whispering in ou ears, April fool.—Baltimore Clipper.

rovernment :

The county of Philadelphia, from one extreme to the other, extends about twenty-three miles, and has an average breadth of about five and one-half miles. It comprises one city, seven incorporated districts, five borougns, and a population of about four hundred and ten thousand souls, of which only 121,417 are in the city proper. The city and seven incorporated districts are, to a great extent, compactly covered with houses, have the appearance of unity, and contain about three hundred and forty thousand souls. The remotest point of the contain thousand souls. The remotest point of the county from the State House is about fifteen miles. The city of New York embraces the Island of Manhattan, extends fourteen miles in length, and has an average breadth of about one and a half miles.— The rural parts of the island contain only the annall villages of Harlem and Manhattan ville, and the entire city a population of about fiv hundred and fifteen thousand souls. The funded debt of the city and county of Philadelphia is about city of New York is about eleven millions of dol lars. The ratio of tax paid for corporation and ties, but may be fixed at $1,31 per cent. of value, while in New York, for like purposes, it is everywhere, not including the rural parts, $1,13\frac{1}{2}.

VALUE OF AN ACRE OF COAL LAND .- The Potts ville, Pa., Mining Register, alluding to the cheapness of land in that quarter a few years ago, says now an acre of coal land is worth 18,000.

Many set down a higher figure. In the South Basin, (that is, from the Sharp Mountain to the Mine Hill,) where we have all the veins, viz., thirteen, including red and white ash, the whole thickness of the coal is ninety feet. Allowing one half of this for fault waste in mining we have 45 feet, or 15 yards in thickness of merchantable coal.— There being 48,000 square yards to the acre, we have, by multiplying this number by this thickness, 72,000 square yards or tons of coal per acre, which, at the rate of 25 cents per ton, brings $18,000.— This is a fair estimate of the real value of an acre f our coal land, without exaggeration or embellishment. It is not strange, therefore, that our lands have increased, and are still increasing, in value. In England, coal lands not possessing near he intrinsic value of ours, sell at from one to two thousands pounds sterling per acre, "A gentleman of the neighboring city of Charleston, whose son was considered in a hopeless state from the diseased condition of the respi ratory apparatus, was induced to administer Dr Stone's medicine. All the phosphate of lime pro cured at the shops appeared to him to him to be imperfectly prepared—being coarse and otherwise objectionable. A purer article was prepared especially for the occasion, reduced to an impalpable powder, and ten grains were administered three times a day, followed by a swallow of cod liver oil. No material change was discoverable in the nations for two weeks. Suddenly as it were fixed pain of long standing in the chest then abated; sleep became relieshing, the appetite improved, strength returned, and from being moved about the apartment reclining on an invalid chair, he is now daily riding, on an average, ten miles on herseback facing the wind and breathing the cold with impu nity. This is a synopsis of a case related by a grateful parent, who would be glad to have others inder similar circumstances, make an effort with the phosphate, combined with cod liver oil.

This is the first section of the Mountain Division, and it avoids Inclined Plane No. 1. and the Portage tunnel, which, together, formed the most serious obstruction on the Portage road.— The completion of this section will uniformly make a difference of an hour in the morning time of the passenger trains, and often as much as twelve hours will be gained for the freight trains— the latter frequently reaching the head of the plane too late to be passed down before the next morning. There is a deep, thorough cut through solid rock on this section, extending 110 feet in depth, and there is a beautiful iron bridge, one hundred and thirty feet long, and forty-five feet above the water. This additional length of finished road, at a point of so much consequence, is an important advantage gained for the convenience and interest of the public, and all will, doubtless, be gratified at the intelligence.
