Sent down from Heaven to me The Cup of Cold Water.

One beautiful evening, in the year 1815, the par ish priest of San Pietro, a village a few mile tant from Sexille, returned much fatigued to his little cottage, where he found his aged housekeeper, the Sen ra Margarita, watching for him. withstanding that one is well accustomed to the sight of extreme poverty in Spain, it was im-possible to help being strack by the utter destitution which appeared in the house of the priest; the more so, as every imaginable contrivance had been resorted to, to hide nakedness, of the walls, and the shabbiness of the furniture. Margarita had prepa red for her master's supper a rather small dish of olla-podriga, which consisted, to say the truth, of the remains of the dinner, seasoned and disguised with groat skill, and with the addition of some sauce, and a name. As she placed the savoury dish upon the table, the priest said: "We shall thank God for this good supper, Margarita; this olla podriga makes one's mouth water. My friend, ona porriga makes one's mound water. Aty friend, you oright to be grateful for finding so good a sup-per at the house of your host! At the word host, Margarita raised her eyes and saw a stranger, who had followed her master. Her countenance chan-ged, and she looked annoyel. She glanced indig-nantly first at the unknown, and then at the priest, who, looking down, said in a low voice, and with the turnidity of a child. "What is enough for two, is always enough for three; and surely you would not wish that I should allow a Christian to die of unger? He has not tasted food for two days." "A Christian! He is more like a brigand!" and honger

Margarita left the room murinuring loud enough to be heard. Meanwhile the unwelcome guest had remained standing at the door. He was a man of great height, half-dressed in rags, and covered with mud; while his block hair, piercing eves, and carbine, gave him an appearance which, though hardly pre-possessing, was certainly inferesting. "Must I go?"

Can't do without a Paper.

A SOLILOQUY, BV "ONE OF THE PEOPLE."

What! do without a paper! No, l've tried it to my sorrow; So, to subscribe for one, I^{all} go, Nor.wait until to-morrow. Should lovers hang or drown themselves, Or other foolish caper, I never got to hear of it— I do not take the paper.

Why, there's my neighbor, Toby Stout, Why, there's my neighbor, I toby St IIe always hears the news, And having news to talk about, IIe never gets the " blues;" While others yawn in ennui, His mind is light as vapor; The cause is plain to half an eye-He always takes the paper!

While neighbor Stout hears all the news,

Though I have studies which require Much time and mental labor,

Much time and montal haber, Yet I can spare a little time As well as Stout, my neighbor; Though time be precious, I can use A longer midnight taper, And thus find time to "read the news"— Therefore, I'll take the paper!

The Minister's Joke.

The Knickerbocker for May has the following mong its budget of jokes-it is a good one: "A friend in Stockbridge, Mass., sends us the folwing anecdote of Rev. Zeb. Twitchell, a Metholist clergyman in full and regular standing, and a member of the Vermont Conference. At one time e represented Stockbridge in the State Legislature. Zeb," said our informant, "is a man of tair talents, both as a preacher and musician. In the pulpit he s grave, solemn, dignified-a thorough, systematic in a solution of the pulpit, there is no man iving more full of fun and drollery. On one occa-tion, he was wending his way towards the seat of Annual Conference of Ministers, in company with nother clergyman. Passing a country inr he remarked to his companion: "The last time I stop-ped at that tavern, I slept with the landlord's wife!" In utter annazement, his clerical friend wanted to know what he meant. I mean just what I say,' re-plied Zeb, and on went the two travelers in unbroken silence, until they reached the Conference. In the early part of the session the Conterence sat with closed doors, for the purpose of private business, and especially to attend to the annual examination of ch member's private character, or rather conduc during the past year. For this purpose a clerk call-ed the roll, as was the custom, and in due course Zeb's name was called. 'Does any one know aught against the conduct of brother Twitchell during the against the conduct of brother Awitchell during the past year?' asked the Bishop, who was the presi-ding officer. After a momeut's 'llence', Aeb's travel-ing companion arose from his seat, and with a heavy heart, and grave demure countenance, said he had a duty to perform; one that he owed to God, to the church, and to himself. He must therefore discharge ted what Zeb had told him while passing the tay ern, how he slept with the landlord's wife, etc. The grave body of ministers was struck as with a thunderbolt; although a few smiled, and glanced first to him, he said in a faint vote, he decomption into the said of the said state of th with
