ENGLAND.-Domestic politics are extremely quiet, and will doubtless remain so until Parliamen re-assembles in October. The aspect of public feel ing in the United States, respecting the British en-croachment in Fisheries, has awakened much at-tention among all shades of politicians. The genreading of the treaty, but the Government is blame-ed by many of the leading journals for using the show of force without due previous notice; at the same time, it is stated that nineteen ships, of which a list is given in the Colonial papers, are not more than the usual fleet on the British American and West India Station, while one of the vessels, the Tane, mentioned as sent to the scene of difficulty, is in fact being paid off at Woolwich. The appre-hended trouble has caused considerable feeling, and with other circumstances, has had a depressing el-

No particular significance was attributed to the note of Mr Webster, respecting the fishing rights, the matter was considered susceptible of an easy and am cable adjustment. The Daily News winds up an article on the subject, by almost accusing the Derby Government of wishing to forment war abroad, for the purpose of stopping progress at home. The Times hints that Mr. Webster may, perhaps, be courting popularity, but blames the British Foreign Secretary for seeking to protect the trade by bounties, at the same time siding with the British Government's interpretation of the treaty.

The general Elections having been brought to a close throughout the United Kingdom, there was a complete lull in party and political excitement.— Each section of politicians was quietly counting its strength and marshaling its forces for the approaching parliamentary struggle in October. There ned to be an idea that any Government would be impossible, according to the co new Parliament, as in it neither Lord Derby or Lord John Russell would be able to command a sufficient majority to establish a strong Government. A Iresh appeal to the country will therefore be made at no The Cunard Company are understood to be about to build, on the Clyde, a steamship of larger ton-

Active opera tion were therefore commenced to save the move able property, and in a short time a large quantity of flour and grain was got out of the mill and preserved from destruction. Meantime the firemen were making vigorous efforts to save the buildings adjoining the mill. In this however, although they worked for nearly two hours with ene gy that calls for the highest praise, their exertions were not fully successful. A large frame warehouse adjoining the mill was also destroyed. Se eral smaller buildings along side of it were saved.

The destruction of property by this fire is estimated at about $20,000. Of this $8,000 we understand is covered by insurance in the two companies located in this connty. The loss does not en-tirely fall on Col. He had not gone lar before he commenced feeling a tickling sensation in his stomach, and on his arrival at home was quite unwell. Getting worse a physician was called in, to ed something while drinking from the branch, which produced his sickness. After trying several remedies, a rowerful emetic was administered when a live leech was thrown up, which the unfor tunate man had evidently swallowed at the branch above mentioned, it having remained alive in his stomach for several days. Although relieved from the leech he died in a day or two afterwards, from the injuries which it had inflicted.

Another Indian Treaty.—Col. D. D. The treaty will be held this Fall at Atkinson, or in that vicinity, ear the point where the Santa Fe road crosses the Arkansas. The tribes who will be invited to it will include all those bordering on the Arkansas, and including those of New Mexico No definite time has been fixed forthe holding of it but already, it is understood, a large portion of the Camanches have assembled on the Arkansas.— These Indians would not attend the treaty at Fort Laramie last Fall, because of their hostilities and fears of the other tribes .- St. Louis Intel.

Among the supplementary resolutions offered at the Free Soil Convention at Pittsburg, was one declaring "that all men have a natural right to a portion of the soil-living and dying-at their birth and at their death. AMERICAN WORLD'S FAIR. The Association is about to erect a stupendous building, framed of iron, and filled in with glass, similar to the 'Crystal Palace' of London, in which they propose to hold a grand Fair, to open on the second day of May next.—
This will, no doubt, be by far the greatest exhibition that has ever taken place on this Continent and will equal in many, and some points surpass in interest its great predecessor across the water Its finale will be the most exciting, as it is under stood that an effort will be made by our foreign rivals to regain the laurels which they lost at the lose of the London exhibition. The public ha sufficient confidence in American skill to know that very effort will be made to place the industrial ability of our own countrymen in its most favora-ble light, and to this end the cordial co-operation of all classes is most earnestly solicited.
